JUNE

JUNE, the year's tip top month, with best days and longest days will receive on the part of all a warm and cordial welcome. June's grass is cleanest and June trees are greenest. It is the month of gay blossoms and high-floating clouds. Average all the June days of your lifetime and you will find that the result approximates the year's perfection.

Besides it being the month of roses, weddings and school commencements, the sixth cycle of the year is rich in anniversaries. Here are some June anniversary dates for you to remember:

June 1, James Buchanan, 15th president, died, 1868; 2, Grover Cleveland married at the White House, 1866; 3, Confederate Memorial Day; 4, King George summoned McDonald, labor leader, to head government in 1929; 5, Philadelphia and Baltimore connected by first telegraph line, 1846; 6, Patrick Henry, American patriot, died, 1799; 7, Zachary Taylor nominated by Whigs for president; 8, Andrew Jackson, 7th president, died 1845; 10, Federal troops fired upon at Bethel by mistake, 1861.

June 11, First lake steamer crossed the ocean, 1891; 12, Declaration of Rights adopted, 1776; 13, Lord Hating, Yorkshire Nobleman executed in the Tower, 1483; 14, Flag Day; 15, Benjamin Franklin draws electricity from lightning with kite, 1752; 16, National Peace Jubilee, 1869, celebrating the Restoration of the Union; 17, Battle of Bunker Hill, 1775; 18, Miss Earhart, first woman to fly the ocean, landed in England, 1928; 19, Byrd welcomed in New York City after return from Antarctic, 1920; 20, DeSoto died and was buried in the river he discovered, 1542.

June 21, controversy between State and Church in Mexico ended, 1929; 22, A. W. Greely and six survivors of Arctic Expedition rescued, 1884; 24, Grover Cleveland, twice president, died, 1908; 25, Battle of Little Big Horn, Custer massacre, 1876; 26, first American Expeditionary Force reached France, 1917; 28, Archduke Francis Ferdinand slain, touching of World War, 1914; 29, earthquake partly destroyed Santa Barbara, 1925; 30, Gibbons was named United States Cardinal, 1886.

Then, from a financial standpoint let us not forget that the second installment of our income tax.

So comes and so will pass along the month of June. Let us enjoy every day and every hour of it.

A Time To Think Twice

SEVEN hundred employees of a large plant recently nearly lost their jobs because they struck for more money than the concern could pay, even after the union's own accountant had reported the result would be disastrous.

State labor officials, who had previously tried to fend off the strike, then exerted themselves to save the business for the community. After a week of being out, the employees called off the strike and accepted what the company had offered in the first place.

Probably a good many firms over the country are faced with the same kind of complexity. Their labor force sees them doing much business and reads of other companies granting increases. But obviously not all concerns are making big earnings.

Today is a time when workers need to watch not to be swung into errors of judgment by emotional waves. Sound labor gains can be endorsed as contributing to the general good. But each group of workers needs to study as never since the World War what moves are wise and likely to be successful under the individual conditions of that particular group.—Christian Science Monitor.

It is not necessary to use big space when you advertise in the News. Just a few lines will be read—you read this, didn't you?

Wedding Gift Suggestions

WITH June here many of us are bombarded with wedding invitations and announcements. The question of suitable, but inexpensive wedding gifts is paramount. A bit of advice is not amiss, quoted from the advice of a dowager lady with much experience in these matters. She said: "I give them all subscriptions to our home-town newspaper. If they set up housekeeping here they'll need the paper in their new home, just as they'll need milk every day and electricity. If they go away to live somewhere else, as so many young people do, then I believe they may need their home-town paper even more."

Here is a genuinely thoughtful wedding gift suggestion. Every newly-wed household is a new family unit in its community and should be well informed always, concerning local affairs. If they must move away, why break home ties completely? Their home-town newspaper can be a strong chain linking them to loved ones and fond friends. It's just like a letter from home. The News has handsome cards to send to the recipient of your gift.

We are for peace, but human beings have never found peace in cowardice and surrender.

Spring gardens are coming along fine, according to reports, but nobody has sent us anything to eat.

During the week ending May 24, 1,600 homes were finished making the total complete 12,261, Mr. Palmer reported.

Labor Secretary Pergins reported more dwelling units were provided in non-farm areas during the first quarter of 1941 than during any corresponding period since 1929.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE

in the struggle, there were those who were ready to take up the battle and in due time the world moved on in the direction of truths they had proclaimed and the ideals they had uplifted. Now it is our turn to sacrifice, to stand firm for rightness and justice among men in order that we may again move from the darkness of this day into the light of a new day.

Time and again men have plunged themselves into darkness and disaster ignorance and low morals, then once more they turn thru hardship, sacrifice and struggle to a brighter and better world of peace and freedom. Now we, as a part of the world culture among the nations of the earth, are faced with a second great world war. This same predatory monster of 1914-1918, with the philosophy of might makes right, is loose in the world again to enslave mankind upon all parts of the earth. This peril is far greater to our country and all freedom-loving peoples everywhere than we now realize. Indeed, our security and entire future are at stake. We have not yet awakened ourselves to the great dangers that lie ahead. It is evidenced in many ways but especially in our unpreparedness, even tho the American Legion has sought preparedness for more than 20 years. Our indifference and weakness permitted the progeny of the old monster of the First World War to rise in the form of totalitarianism, to grow up unchallenged, until it has gained such strength that once more it is challenging the powers of truth and righteousness in all parts of the world. This monster, governing under the ruthless power of Fascism, is out to destroy every vestige of democracy. Our democratic way of life is directly opposed to totalitarianism, Fascism, and all other "isms," except Americanism, because Americanism is our way of life and we have a right to it.

Fascism is first and foremost based upon nationalism, in which the state is first, the state personified, and the state enthroned above every name, save the dictator of that state. The human individual is sacrificed for the state, and all human rights are lost.

In a democracy, on the other hand the people and individual human life come first. Government arises out of the consent of the governed. It is a government for all the people by consent of all the people.

In the second place Fascism is based upon the philosophy of might makes right, and is, therefore a believer and a builder of a great military machine with which to conquer, plunder, and loot weaker and smaller nations. Our democracy has stood for the rights of humanity, liberty among all people, and against military machines, the equality of men, the equal opportunities of men and a defender of the rights of weaker and smaller nations.

In the third place Fascism is autocratic. It is a government in the hands of a dictator. It is not a government in the hands of the people as ours is. It is a government of a few overlords headed by a dictator, instead of a government of the people and for the people.

Lastly Fascism is state capitalism. It is the center of wealth and the control of both wealth and capital. Individual and group pursuits are discarded. The rights of the people to pursue with freedom occupations and vocations are no more. The individual becomes a slave for the state. The ideals and citadels of democracy are gone under fascism. Yes, the inalienable rights of man to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" are gone. The government by the consent of the governed, the first principle of the democratic way of life is gone.

Under fascism the second great citadel and principle of democracy is gone, namely the right, the dotty and the privilege of all the people to participate in the government and the affairs of society.

Under fascism also, our most important concept and central principle of democracy, that of the rights of human personalities and human individualities to develop their talents to the fullest fruition for the upbuilding and progress of the community, state and nation, are forever gone. When, therefore, we permit any of these "isms" to supplant our heritage and our cultural achivements, that belongs to democracy and Christianity is gone. There is no worthy substitute for wrong except the right, no good substitute for lawlessness except the law and no substitute for tyranny save that of liberty. If we are to save the nation and secure our national destiny, we must again prepare to sacrifice even greater than ever. It is, fellow citizens, a choice between our democratic way of life and slavery. We can, on the other hand, stand firm in the right, prepare, sacrifice our lives and fortunes if need be and keep our honor and freedom. On the other hand we can let ourselves float along in national apathy, but slavery for us and our children will be the final outcome. The greatest danger which lies on the road between this dark hour and the sunlight of a better day is within each and all of us, not in the power of might makes right stretching itself three thousand miles from over an ocean. In our willingness to sacrifice, to use our heads intelligently, to work hard, to have faith in the rightness of things, to be loyal to our best traditions, to the strength that brings success and peace again. If we fail to keep these qualities of citizenship alive and alert in our minds and hearts, then shame, slavery, and servitude will be our final lot.

But I have too much faith in our American people to believe that they will prefer slavery to freedom, or darkness to light. The finest and most courageous achievements of humanity have been made in this nation, the United States of America. The greatest philosophy ever conceived and thought out in the mind of man for human guidance and human relations has grown out of our indigenous American culture. We shall not, therefore, permit this hard-won liberty and culture, gained thru frightful cost to perish from this soil. We must hold and strengthen this permanent advance in civilized human relations at whatever sacrifice. There is no other choice with honor. To do otherwise would bring dishonor to the brave men sleeping eternally in this hallowed ground. We shall not, we cannot therefore, permit any dishonor to come to this heritage and the accumulated culture thus far achieved. The uplifting and the advancing of these step-stones of our cultural achievements for those who are to come after us is more precious than life itself. To save, to improve and transmit to posterity the best in our heritage given us by those who came before, becomes therefore, the essence and end of a good life. In this ideal lies the only basis of worthy and true citizenship. The greatest glory of a freedom-loving people, such as ours, is to save and to transmit this heritage to our children.

The choices made by our forefathers are built into all the affairs of our world, including physical, economic, moral and religious worlds. These assets which they have bequeathed to us are very great indeed. We must for our part conserve, improve and add to what we have inherited, and hand it on to our children richer in promise for their happiness than it was when we received it from our parents. Our descendants may do so in their turn, thus raising the level of man's struggle and reward to a higher and higher plane of happiness for each succeeding generation.

There is no better way to pay tribute to those we honor on this Memorial Day. There is no better way out of the darkness of this hour into the light of a better day.

This Week IN DEFENSE

President Roosevelt, stating the European War is "coming very close to home," proclaimed an unlimited national emergency. The President called upon "all loyal citizens to place the nation's need first in mind and in action" and said "the nation will expect all individuals and all groups to play their full parts, without stint and without selfishness."

Speaking over the radio, the President said it is the U. S. policy to give "every possible assistance" to Britain and her allies by whatever measures are necessary. He also said U. S. will not accept a Nazi-dominated world and will resist any German attempt to gain control of the seas or bases which could be used for an attack on the Western Hemisphere.

Production

OPM Director of Purchases Nelson, speaking at Baltimore, said Germany is producing war materials at a rate of $50,000,000,000 a year British production is at the rate of $15,000,000,000 a year "and the least we can do is see to it that British and American production together will top $50,000,000,000."

Mr. Nelson said "by throwing himself and his business into the defense program a business man risks something: by staying out he risks everything—not merely his business but the framework in which it is conducted, the set of economic and political arrangements which make the very existence of his business possible."

Labor Disputs

Labor Secretary Perkins appointed a three-man committee, including the Chairman of the Mediation Board and the Chief of the U. S. Conciliation Service, to select disputes to be referred to the Board. The U. S. Conciliation Service reported settlement of 23 additional strikes.

Selective Service

President Roosevelt proclaimed July 1 as Selective Service registration day for all men who have become 21 since the first registration on October 16, 1940. Selective Service Depuy Director Hershey asked local boards to give serious consideration to individual claims for deferment of men engaged in agriculture. Gen. Hershey notified local boards that Agriculture Secretary Wickard reported the defense program has drawn heavily upon the supply of farm labor and an adequate supply is becoming a serious problem, particularly along the Atlantic Seaboard, in Ohio and Michigan and parts of Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Arizona.

Army

Army Chief of Staff Marshall announced that training maneuvers this summer and fall are designed to create an "all-purpose" force capable of operating in the Arctic, the tropics, in desert or mountains. He said every man must be given basic infantry training before he can "pull his weight" as a specialist.

Undersecretary of War Patterson, speaking in New York, denied charges the Army is devoting too much time to basic training. He said "our is not a mass Army, staking its success on sheer weight of men and machines." He said the ratio of infantry to air service--nine to one in 1917-18--is now almost one to one and "our plans call for a higher proportion of armored and motorized units than Germany has today."

Navy

President Roosevelt approved legislation authorizing the purchase or construction of 58 additional naval auxiliary ships. The Maritime Commission began immediate acquisition of the vessels, including the 27,000 ton "America," largest liner ever built in the United States. The Navy asked Congress to grant naval commanders authority to "take whatever steps they deem necessary--for proper protection of the naval forces" in the U. S. territorial waters.

Navy Secretary Knox announced the Navy will open 23 schools for training regular and reserve enlisted men as petty officers. Mr. Knox estimated 114,500 of the Navy's 256,000 enlisted men will be petty officers by July 1. The Navy also announced a three-months course at Harvard to train 400 college graduates as supply officers.

Air

The President asked Congress for an additional $2,790,000,000 for planes for the Army and $529,000,000 for planes for the Navy. The War Department announced that construction of new Air Corps schools is "proceeding much faster than expected," with eight of 100 stations already completed and 50 partially occupied. Some of the fields, the Department said, were completed in three months.

The Air Corps announced that examinations of applicants for flying cadet appointments who have not had two years of college have been changed to include seven instead of nine subjects, with two of the subjects elective.

Pilots for Britain

War Secretary Stimson announced arrangements to train 8,000 RAF pilots, bombardiers and navigators in U. S. civilian and Army schools. The U. S will defray some of the cost from lease-lend funds. Mr. Stimson said the program would not interfere with U. S. pilot training.

Ship

The Maritime Commission awarded contracts for 120 additional merchant vessels To date, the omnibus said, 850 ships have been ordered —312 emergency vessels, 85 cargo ships for privae concerns, 72 tankers and 60 ships on British contracts. The Commission said the first of the emergency ships will be completed by November, a month ahead of schedule.

Congress voted the President authority to requisition foreign ships in U. S. ports.

Materials

A sample campaign to test effectiveness of scrap material collection by the public is being conducted in Richmond, Va., and Madison, Wis., under the direction of local defense councils. If the campaign is successful, the OPM said, it may be made nation-wide. In the meantime, citizens in other areas were asked to refrain from similar campaigns.

Nutrition

Agriculture Secretary Wickard told the National Nutrition Conference for Defense "at least three-fourths of us" do not have satisfactory diets. He said "we need to consume twice as much green vegetables and fruit, 70 percent more tomatoes and citrus fruits, 35 percent more eggs, 15 percent more butter, 20 percent more milk."

Surgeon General Parran of the Public Health Service recommended the following minimum daily diet: one pint of milk for an adult and more for a child, at least one serving of meat, one egg or substitute, two green vegetables, two fruits rich in vitamin C, bread and cereal, butter or oleomargerine, and "other foods to satisfy the appetite."

Prices

Leon Henderson, Price Control Administrator, reported that altho industrial production is now almost 30 per cent higher than in 1929, the cost of living has risen only about three percent and wholesale prices only about seven percent in the past year, considerably less than during the comparable period of the World War.
