MR. McKIBBEN LEAVES

It is felt that praise is due anyone who, in this crisis, voluntarily leaves his civilian work to join in the world wide fight for peace and the maintenance of our ideals as a democracy. One of our own teachers, Mr. McKibben, has done this very thing and it seems "closer to home" perhaps, because he IS one of our own acquaintances.

We read every day in newspapers the name of someone who has enlisted, and we murmur, "good for him," but perhaps we do not realize how much he will be missed by his friends—just as Mr. McKibben will be missed by us.

We know how hard it is for one to leave his home, friends and position to serve his country at home or in a foreign land, even for such a great cause as the preservation of world peace and democracy. We feel that Mr. McKibben has done a great thing and we wish him good luck and the best of everything. JB

Fight! Team! Fight!

Gr—fight—TEAM — BEAT, beat Alfred-Almond" were some of the cheers which came forth from the bleachers in the gymnasium Tuesday morning as the six peppy ACS cheer leaders led the student body in a pep rally.

The audience ably displayed its cheering potentialities which proved that it would and did stand firmly behind the team which fought so valiantly Tuesday evening that even with two of the best ACS players unable to take part, the opponents gained but a small margin. PEL

Student Council Meets

Last Wednesday afternoon during the activity period, the Student Council met in the science room with Mr. Maloy to discuss several different issues.

One of these was the question of admitting out-of-school young people to Social Hour. It was the feeling of the Council that unless these people entered into the spirit of the Social Hour better, it might be better to restrict the social hour to high school students only. It was also decided that new records be purchased for Social Hour.

These records will also be used for dancing at noon in the corrective exercise room.

Plans were made to entertain the visiting basketball teams and cheerleaders by serving refreshments in ACS cafeteria after each remaining basketball game.

The Student Council regrets the absence of its vice president, Stan Ruger, and hopes that he will be back in school soon. CH

Air Raid Drills Planned

Following the suggestions outlined in a bulletin from the office of Civilian Defense at Washington, and in co-operation with Air Raid Warden Charles Holt, Sr., plans have been completed for the protection of all school children in event of a possible air raid.

According to the Civilian Defense bulletin the safest place in a school building is in first floor corridors that are protected on both sides by rooms. Pupils in each room have been assigned corridor space and instructions have been issued for moving pupils to the corridors in event of an alarm. These instructions were explained to the grade pupils by their teachers and to the junior-senior high school group Tuesday morning at assembly.

All teachers have been appointed as air raid wardens as well as the two janitors. Air raid drills will be practiced later this week and regular drills will continue until perfected.

In event of a general air raid alarm, parents are advised not to try to contact the school, since telephone lines must be kept open. Children will be safest remaining in the school building and no pupils will be allowed to leave during the time of the alarm.

It is hoped that these precautions will never be needed, but the Office of Civilian Defense warns us never again to say "It can't happen here."

Student Council Purchases New Records

A new group of records has recently been purchased by the Student Council for use in the school.

Among the new records are:

"White Cliffs of Dover," "Hawaiian War Chant," "Flag Raising," "This Is No Laughing Matter," "Rose O'Day," "I've Got It Bad and That Ain't Good," "Sun Valley Jump" and "A String of Pearls."

These records are played in the corrective exercise room at noon as well as at Social Hour. JB

For a Super-Colossal Senior Play

To the Senior Class, I emit this plea: Let's work together and produce a play that the town will talk about. Let's have fun, but at the right times. Let's work as hard as we can at rehearsals and co-operate with each, each and Miss Colberg! Need I say more?

Let's select a really good play and have no one grumble over the choice. Let's realize that those who are chosen for parts are those best able to fill those parts and not question the choice.

Above all, let's co-operate! JR

Sawdust and Nails

The boys in the seventh and eighth grades recently helped the janitors by mending a broken chair.

These same boys have also been making various kinds of bird-feeders.

Could it be that the Ag. boys are getting tired of the regular yellow-colored yolks of eggs? At present the boys are experimenting with red colored egg yolks. Already they have made tables more colorful with green eggs. The yolks are colored by feeding the chickens alfalfa and meal.

The six boys who are going to attend Farm and Home Week are making further plans for the trip to Ithaca. DJM

Arthur Temple Elected Vice Pres. Of Junior Class

At a Junior Class meeting held Friday afternoon, Arthur Temple was elected to the vice presidency of the Junior Class. The original vice president, Louis Sherwood, became a Senior in January, thus leaving the chair of the vice president vacant.

Plans were discussed for a pre-Lenten card party which is going to be given by the class.

A committee consisting of Elaine Pope, Barbara Brownell and Leo Lewis was appointed to select a date for the card party. After more discussion the meeting was adjourned.

Adult Game Night Monday

Following requests of many towns people, the Senior Class is sponsoring an Adult Game Night which is to be held next Monday evening at 7:30 p. m., in the school auditorium.

Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria following the activities which will include volley ball, badminton, shuffle board, table tennis, and basketball.

No admission charge will be made but a collection will be taken during the evening. JD

CHIT-CHAT

What kind of perfume does Mr. Clair put in his originally concocted liniament to leave such an "uplifting" odor in the History C classroom?

What does Marilyn mean by their anniversary?

Seems like we don't have to run our affairs for ourselves any more. They just "happen."

We hope the rumors about the massed band and chorus are true.

Who finally persuaded Mr. Maloy to go to the skating party?

Jean R. must have had a heavy date the night of the skating party.

We hope all the Juniors will cooperate in their next money-making project. EP

Future Opera Singers Have Vocal Training

If one happened to have been passing by the cafeteria last Friday he would have been seized with great wonderment at the strange noises or chants that were coming from "within those doors."

For those who are still in doubt, the chorus was having its first vocal training class under the supervision of Miss Hanneman.

If there are any "aspiring" Lily Pons or Nelson Eddy's who would like to know how to control their wind and their vocal cords and tones just ask any chorus member and he or she will gladly assist you in every way. MJH

With Needle and Spoon

The Homemaking A class is studying various flour mixtures. Last Friday the class made baking powder biscuits and cinnamon, fruit and wholewheat buns. The girls are experimenting with three grades of baking powder, to discover which is the best, by putting baking powder into water.

The kind that gives off part of the carbon dioxide when in water and the rest, when heated, is considered best.

The Homemaking A class made the cookies for refreshments after the Alfred-Almond game Tuesday. The girls are going to learn how to make eggless, butterless, and milkless cakes as were used during the last war, in view of the inevitable shortage of these substances.

The bulletin board sports a very appetizing pictorial display of various types of cakes.

The Homemaking 9 girls are studying breakfasts, luncheons, and dinners and why meal time is important to everyone. PEP

PURPLE PANTHERS SWAMP ALLENTOWN BY 39 TO 18 SCORE

A powerful Purple and White team outscored Allentown 39-18 on the local court last Thursday evening to mark up its seventh straight win. The locals were greatly handicapped in this game by the loss of two of their first string players, Stan Ruger and "Slip" Karcanes. "Slip" also was included among those on the sick list, after suffering a sprained knee early in this game. Stan was injured in the Whitesville game the week before and it is believed he will not see action again this year. "Slip" may be back in uniform for the Scio game tomorrow night but probably will not see much action.

The locals got off to a slow start against Allentown and held only a one-point lead over them at the end of the first quarter. During the second quarter, however, the Panthers widened the margin on baskets by Holt, Dolan and Gorsuch and went on to hold a 15-7 lead at half-time. In the third quarter, Andover outscored Allentown 17-5 to take a 32-12 third quarter margin over them. During this quarter "Naze" Dolan dropped in nine points to help account for this vast lead. Ryan and Holt also found the distance and both of them dropped in four points. The locals dropped in seven points the last quarter and went on to win 39-18.

"Chuck" Holt did an outstanding "fill-in" job for Stan and was also high scorer with 14 points. "Naze" Dolan also played a great game and found the net for five baskets and two free throws, for a 12 total. "Pepper" Ryan also found his eye and was dropping them in from the center of the court. Paul totalled four points for the evening. Keith Gowdy was high for the invaders with six points.

ANDOVER INVADES SCIO FRIDAY NIGHT

The locals will journey to Scio tomorrow night (Friday) to continue league play and attempt to remain in first place in the league. Richburg goes to Whitesville tonight to try to knock Whitesville out of first place tie with Andover. If they succeed the locals will hold the sole possession of first place and will have to defeat Richburg in two weeks to take the championship. Next week the Purple Panthers have only one game. This is with Jasper Friday and will give them a good week of rest before the Richburg game. MG

WILDCATS TROUNCE ALLENTOWN 20-7

The Allentown Jayvees ran into a first-half barrage of buckets by Dick Ludden and "Zeke" Shellman that left them holding the short end of a 12-2 halftime score which the locals went on win 20-7.

Ludden and Shellman accounted for ten first quarter points before Allentown could get under way. The locals held Allentown to two points the first quarter and held them scoreless the second.

In the third quarter Jim Driscoll dropped in several lovely shots. It was Jim's passes that also set up a great number of first quarter scores. Dick Ludden did some wonderful dead-eye shooting from the side, while Shellman was putting them in from around the basket. "Zeke" Shellman held the evening's scoring honors with ten points. Dick Ludden and Jim Driscoll accounted for the remainder with six and four points respectively.

Referee: Schecten, Wellsville.

AROUND OUR HOUSE

OLD CLOTHES TO MEND

Mending can be a restful job after a hard day's work. If it isn't, perhaps the mending equipment is not conveniently arranged.

One way to keep sewing materials together even without a separate sewing room is to make a set of shelves for the room you like to sew in. Clothing specialists at the New York State College of Home Economics suggest old boards or fruit crates or heavy cardboard boxes be used to make the shelves; paint them to harmonize with the woodwork or walls. Small shelves made with carrying handles attached may be stored in a closet and brought into the living room when needed. Thus, they may be placed near the radio in the evening, and the mending done to the tune of a favorite program.

Another way to keep the sewing equipment together is in a chest. Old-fashioned blanket chests will do if you do not want to make a new one, altho new ones may be easily built.

The chest may be large enough to store a portable sewing machine, or a small pressing board or iron. Small trays in the top may be fitted to hold darning materials and sewing equipment. These too, can be removed and carried to an easy chair by a window for the work.

The designing and storing of mending equipment is a job for each homemaker to figure out for herself, but the time used in planning is well spent because when the unit is complete, all articles are at hand and no time is lost in collecting them for each mending.

"How tall was that famous old Indian hunter?"

"Oh, I imagine he was about six feet in his stalking feet."

Candidate: "Shall I have the leading role?"

Manager: "Not quite; but almost. You are shot just before the first act begins. We have arranged a funeral song for three voices, as the opening, and as we have only two singers you will have to help them out."

Louisa's Letter

Dear Louisa:

I am a woman of 30 and I am going with a widower of 45. He has three children and I like them very much, but I wonder how it will be when I marry their father. I am afraid they will not obey me and they would cause contention. Would you advise me to marry him under the circumstances?

"Unmarried"—Del.

Answer:

If you are in love with the man and he is a sensible fellow, I see no reason why you shouldn't marry him just because he has three children. I'll admit that you'll have a much harder job to get along with a ready-made family than if you had just one person to live with, but probably the man is worth it.

The best idea, if the children are of teen age, is to leave most of the management of them to the father—such as when they go out at night and how late they stay, and the amount of money they spend. This will eliminate discord.

Very often children of that age welcome a woman into the house if they have been having to manage things themselves. They are glad for someone to take charge and put things to rights. Your attitude towards them from the first will decide in great part whether or not they are glad you have come into the family.

But a stepmother, to be a success, must have lots of patience and love in her heart for her husband's children. LOUISA.

Dear Louisa:

I have a baby and I have most of the housework to do by myself. I can get thru very well unless I take on too many outside activities, such as clubs and parties. Then I get so tired that I can hardly go. I am afraid that if I refuse invitations now that I won't get any after the baby gets old enough for me to want to go again. What do you think about this problem?

"Young Mother"—Iowa

Answer:

I certainly don't think that it will pay you to ruin your health just to keep up with society. Why don't you simply tell your friends that while the baby is small, you are giving up parties that come on certain days of the week, but that when he gets larger you will start back again. A small child needs lots of attention and it pays big dividends in satisfaction later on to give it to him then rather than to suffer regret in after years.

However, I think even a busy young mother needs a change from the same routine day after day, and if I were you, I would try to arrange my work so that I could get off to a party or club about once a week. In that way you will come in contact with other people and ideas and not get in such a rut. You will have something else to talk about besides the baby and the price of meat.

But don't keep on going every day just to keep up with the Jones's. That's a big mistake. LOUISA.

He thinks she's swell, she thinks him wise
His ultimate aim? To be a star (in infancy)

The Amorous One

"Bobby, do you ever peep thru the keyhole when I am sitting in there with your sister?"

Bobby: "Sometimes—when mother ain't there."

Winny: "You can't believe everything you hear."

Wendy: 'N'o; but you can repeat it."

Excited Customer to Druggist: "Look here! You gave me morphine instead of quinine this morning!"

Druggist: "Is that so? Then you owe me another half dollar."
