THE BODY AND ITS HEALTH.

Hives.—Do not ferget that hives are caused conceines by a sudden check of perspiration, sometimes by an attack of indigestion. The intense itching may beallayed by rubbing the hives with a little catter off or by bathing. little castor oil, or by bathing them with rinegar and water.

little castor oll, or by bathing them with vinegar and water.

About Wrinkils.—Of course, as the face reflects the emotions of the mind, these muscles which are most frequently used leave, in becoming relaxed, inefaceable lines. It is well, therefore, if one must have wrinkles, to take care that they shall be pleasant ones. The habit of wrinkling the forehead is a very common fault. Some people cannot falk without distorting the face in a most horrible manner, thinking that this gives greater emphasis to what they are saying. This is a mistake, and it would be well if those people could have a mirror suspended before them for one day, so that they are detact from their appearance by so doing. We find that people of a phlegmatic temperament-retain their youth longer them those of a nervous, excitable disposition. Do not hurry or worry and thereby allow that ugly little scowl to become fixed between your eyebrows. Things taken quietly will soon arrange themselves. Cultivate, therefore, repose of mind and manner.

CHILDHOOD IN CITY AND COUNTRY.—
Dr. H. L. Taylor thinks that city children get too little light and air, do not take enough of the right kind of exercise, are often overfed or underfed, or pushed or hampered too much in their studies and especially in their emotions. There is a precocity in knowledge of people and social relations, darkest ignorance with regard to most natural objects and processes. In diet the city fed child often fares better than the country one, but in regard to fresh air he is not nearly so fortunate, and as he gets older the difficulty is increased. The city child is hampered in his movements, and at hampered in his movements, and at e same time subject to streams of audithe same time subject to streams of auditory, visual and other in pressions in uncading succession. His co-ordination is less perfect, although his wits are brighter than those of the country child. The city child loses much in not obtaining an early knowledge of nature. A child to grow up naturally should have a fair share of wholesome neglect and judicious exposure. A child delights to make himself useful, and it is cruelty to deprive him of this pleasure and stimulus. A boy is better for having a carpenter's bench and a girl for doing a portion of the housework.

DIET FOR DYSPETTICS.—Eat slowly;

penter's bench and a girl for doing a portion of the housework.

DIET FOR DYSPETPICS.—Eat slowly; masticate the food thoroughly, even more so if possible than is required in health. Avoid drinking at meals. At most take a few sips of warm, unstimulated drink at the close of the meal if the food is very dry in character. In general dyspeptic stomachs manage dry food better than that containing much fluid, so avoid light soups. Eat neither very hot nor very cold food. The best temperature is about that of the body. Avoid exposure to cold after eating. Be careful to avoid excess in eating. Eat no more than the wants of the system require. Strength depends not on what is eaten, but on what is digested. Never take violent exercise of any sort, either mental or physical, either just before a meal or after a meal. It is not good to sleep immediately after esting. If it is thought necessary to eat three times a day, make the last meal very light. For most dyspeptics two meals are better than more, according to the courageous formulator of this set of rules for the management of that most eccentric and uncertain organ—a dyspeptic stomach.

Petroleum for Diphtherian.—In the Normandie Medicule of Rouen there is an Perroleum for Diphtheria.—In the Normandie Medicide of Rouen there is an interesting account of a new, and so far wonderfully successful treatment of diphtheria. It appears that in the village of Neuville-Champ-d'Oisel, about 9 miles from Rouen; a malignant type of the disease broke out last year. The country doctor, M. Frederic Flahant, treated the cases in the usual way, but the deaths were numerous. Remembering, as he says, that the English use petroleum as an anti-spasmodic and an antiseptic, he determined to try it as an experiment. His first trial was in the case of a little girl, 7 years old. He had already given her up, and proposed to the parents to make the experiment, which consisted in swabbing the throat with common petroleum. He had little hope of the success of his new method, but to his astonishment, he noticed an improvement after the very first application. He continued the treatment and the child recovered. Then he tried it successfully with his other patients. This year he had forty cases of diphtheria to treat, and he was successful in every one. In order to be perfectly sure that the cases in question were genuine ones of malignant diphtheria, he had the expectorated matter submitted to the analysis of Prof. Francois Hue, of the Rouen College of Medicine, and the Professor reported that he had clearly discovered the presence in it of numerous bacillit of diphtheria. Moreover, his diagnosis was confirmed by Drs. Deshayes, Lerefait and Ballay, of Rouen, she last named being the suce in it of numerous bacilli of diphtheria. Moreover, his diagnosis was confirmed by Drs. Deshayes, Lerefait and Ballay, of Rouen, the last named being the physician in chief of the bospital of that city. The treatment presents little difficulty or danger. The swabbing is done every hour or every two hours, according to the thickness of the membranes, which become, as it were, diluted under the ection of the petroleum. The brush, after being dipped in the petroleum, should be-shaken to prevent any drops failing into the respiratory channels. The petients experience relief from the very first application. The disagreeable taste of the petroleum remains for a few moments only. Dr. Flahaut has been interest of the petroleum remains for a few moments only. ### BURMAH'S SIMPLE DIVORCE.

No Lawyer There Profits by Matrimopial

No Lawyer These Profits by Mastrimonial Quarrels.

In Burmah, as in civilized Europe, snapioion often disturbs the family circle, but instead of filling lawyers' pookets and giving society papers high-priced paragraphs, the following effectual mode of procedures is adopted. The family relations on both sides are called in—even distant cousins living a long way off.—and many are the long journeys made in joiting bullook carts, and many the animated discussions by the cigarpuffing circle of relatives squatted ceremonicusly on the bamboo-matted ficors. If no amicable settlement can be obtained thus—and very difficult its to smooth down the cuarrels as a rule, for the Burmese are a spirited race—the older partiarches of the village or district are called in, and, after circum stances are explained, arbitrators are appointed from among them, who proceed as follows:

Two candies—wax if possible, but generally rushlights—are selected of equal length and talckness, and being simultaneously lighted, are placed on the table, if the establishment boasts of one; if not, on the loor. This is done with the greatest gravity, care being taken that neither party has any advantage over the other in the shape of draughts throughdoors and crannies, and that all present are seated at sufficient distance to prevent their breathing from affactive the standard of the granter of the standard or the granter of the control of the standard or the other in the shape of draughts throughdoors and crannies, and that all present are seated at sufficient distance to prevent their breathing the same affacts of the same and that all present are seated at sufficient distance to prevent their breathing the same affacts of the same afa advantage over the other in the shape of draughts throughdoors and crannies, and that all present are seated at sufficient distance to prevent their breathing from affecting the flame.

The gradial burning down of the flames is then watched with breathless and solemn silence, which culminates as one or the other of these slowly burns down, and sputters out its life in the waters of the basin in which it is fixed. A deep "Ah!" a gutural sigh of relief, greets this termination, and if it be the husband's candle which burns out first, he and his relatives walk slowly out of doors, solemnly and silently, leaving his better half in possession of the goods and chattels contained therein; if the wife's candle expires first, she and hers do likewise, and, with a small present to the judges, and umpires, the divorce is completed.

We Come Second.

A statistician who has been looking into the matter of divorce has found that the proportion of divorces to population is least in Ireland—only one divorce to every 400,000 inhabitants. In the United States the proportion of divorces is ominously large, 88.71 to every 100,000 population, the largest known, in fact, save in Japan, the figures for that happy empire being 606.45 divorces to every 100,000 population.

It Is a Large Building,

It Is a Large Building.

The largest single structure in the world for audience and spectacular purposes is the Collseum at Rome. It is in the form of an ellipse; its long diameter is 615 feet, its short 510; the height of the outer wall is 64. The arena is 231 feet long by 170 broai. The tiers of seats accommodate 100,000 specialized.

They Must Like to Work.

Philadelphia has some singular people, nen who are wealthy and who yet continue filling various toilsome positions which they have held for many years. On the eity's police force is a man worth $15,000 yearly, outside of his $30 a week pay. A car driver receives $2,000 from real estate investments. A letter carrier is worth $20,000, and a man who serves newspapers from door to door has money at interest to the amount of $50,000. The head water in applicable the street eating house is worth $20,000 in real estate. The sexton of one of the poorest churches in the town has a yearly income of $7,600 derived from government bonds.

"Oat of Sight" Is Old.

The average man of to-day, familiar with modern stang, no doubt regards the phrase "out of sight" as of comparathe phrase "out of sight" as of comparatively recent origin. It seems that Dickens, however, used these words in the interview between Squeers and Mrs. Sliderskrew in "Nicholas Nickleby." Where the former is solacing the old hag on what she had suffered at the hands of Arthur Gride, he is made to say: "More than even. Slider; you'd have been even with him if he'd got married; but, with the disappoint ment besides, you're a long way ahead—out of sight, Slider, quite out of sight."

THE KIND

It is conceded that the Royal Baking Powder is the purest and strongest of all the baking powders.

The purest baking powder makes the finest, sweetest, most delicious food. The strongest baking powder makes the lightest food.

That baking powder which is both purest and strongest makes the most digestible and wholesome food.

Why should not every housekeeper avail herself of the baking powder which will give her the best food with the least trouble?

Avoid all baking powders sold with a gift or prize, or at a lower price than the Royal, as they invariably contain alum, lime or sulphuric acid, and render the food unwholesome.

Certain protection from alum baking powders can be had by declining to accept any substitute for the Royal, which is absolutely pure.
