"He Who Consumes All"

There is one in every room, all comparably strong in composition, all sufficiently large in size and all able to be seen, yet frequently this item of our schoolroom is not given a thought. What? Oh, the waste paper basket!

It holds many varied and secret written notations of both students and teachers. Fruitful notes are torn up by many and placed there for its digestion. Letters, often "love notes" (to whom, from whom) have been found undigested in its jowls.

Sometimes Sir Waste Basket's menu is different and he receives cores of apples, orange peelings, nut shells, broken dishes and more than is necessary, drops of ink from someone's pen.

Suppose that he had a mind that tallied all he knew and gave out "flashes," Winchell fashion! Did YOU ever stop to think about it? JR

Keep Off the Lawns!

Now that the hard winter is gradually giving way to spring, evidences of a lovely green lawn are slowly but surely replacing the melting snow.

Already, students, high school as well as grade pupils, have been using the lawn as a sidewalk. What's the matter? Is it because you "jay walkers" have been accustomed to violating the law of "keeping off the grass" by crossing the lawn when it was covered with snow?

Let's cast aside this poor habit. This continued tramping will certainly not create a lawn that you would be proud of. Don't spoil Nature's beauty!

Remember, the sidewalks were built and intended for you to walk on—not the lawns. PEL

Appreciation

Do we deserve more than we have when we don't appreciate what we already do have? The most common remark issued by foreigners visiting our country is that the American people are greedy individuals entirely unappreciative of their many assets.

Do we, as students appreciate our school, our teachers, and the sacrifices our village grandfathers have made to make our education possible?

Do we appreciate fully our home, our family and our friends? How many things they do for us pass by unnoticed or are just taken for granted.

Wouldn't we all be better off if we appreciated and were happy with what we do have, instead of bemoaning and being unhappy about our lack? JR

Art Wexel Engaged For Senior Ball

Art Wexel and his orchestra, one of the most promising bands in the state, will play at the Senior Ball to be held the evening of May 29 in the gymnasium from 9 to 1.

Art Wexel comes to Andover from Elmira after completing a successful season at the Mark Twain Hotel there. He has played for many college and sorority dances around Elmira.

He will bring with him a larger band than is usually seen at Andover dances. The 13-piece ensemble will feature many new and unique arrangements. Wexel plays anything from waltzes to rhumbas and is always glad to play requests.

As soon as the Senior play "Spring Fever" has been presented, further plans will be made for the dance.

The Seniors hope that this year they can offer one of the best dances ever held in A. C. S. SCR

Assembly Held Thursday

Mr. Delbert K. Harter, who is an experienced traveler and speaker, spoke to a Junior-Senior high school group this (Thursday) morning in the A. C. S. auditorium.

Mr. Harter has traveled over different parts of the world and he brought with him a display of his curios and collections from different countries.

This program came to A. C. S. as a part of the Antrim Assembly Service. FMM

Students To See Movies Next Week

Three movies, concerning different subjects, are to be shown in the science room next week for several of the classes.

These films have been obtained thru the courtesy of "The Co-operative Educational Film Library" at Syracuse, in which service Andover Central School has membership.

The first movie, to be shown Mar. 23, is "Expanse of Germany," requested by Miss Daly. The second to be shown, March 26, is "Digestion of Foods," requested by Mr. Maloy. The last film, also scheduled for that day is "How We Hear," requested by Miss Jordan, Miss Hanneman and Mr. Maloy.

Students of the various classes are urged to be present at these movies because those which have already been shown have proved to be educational as well as enjoyable.

Science Meeting Held

The regular meeting of the Senior Science Club was held last Thursday afternoon in the science room.

At the meeting it was decided to have dues of five cents a week, payable to the treasurer, Elaine Pope. After the business meeting, a short talk and demonstration on the mechanics of photography was given by Vic Oakes.

It was also agreed to give club members an opportunity to use the science room and dark room on the following Monday evening if they should desire to do so. VO

I Wish . . .

1—I wish: Some Freshman boys would be more courteous and other Freshman boys would be less shy.

2—I wish: the high school students would have their assignments done on time more often.

3—I wish: the few girls who still wear their boots in school would please stop it!

4—I wish: the students in ACS would stop using the halls for a race track.

5—I wish: the students of ACS would stop loitering around the school after school hours.

6—I wish: the students would clean out their lockers.

7—I wish: the Hi Herald articles would come in on time. SM

Attractive Bulletin Board In Library

A new library bulletin board — "You are important, see yourself as others see you," has been created by Miss Anderson. Several attractive book jackets, illustrating such books as "A Girl Grows Up," "Conversation Please," "Cues for You," and "This Way, Please," are on display. The library has these books and it is felt that many might profit by reading them. JB

Defense School Program

The Defense School, having been in progress for four weeks, is now fairly well under way.

The class of 40, 20 of whom are present each night, is made up mostly of young men engaged in farming in this vicinity. It is meeting Monday thru Thursday in the agricultural and shop rooms. Many different projects are being carried on by these men under the direction of Brinton Baker and Mr. Fribolin.

The men have already finished many projects, some of which were grinding in valves on trucks and tractors, installing piston rings and doing acetylene welding and sheet metal work.

They expect to do many other projects in the remaining 16 weeks of the course. JR

Students Enjoy Quiz Program

A quiz program similar to those given over the radio was presented by the Student Council at a Junior-Senior Assembly last Friday morning.

Janitor Jim Nobles had the honor of drawing from a hat the names of the contestants who were taken right from the audience. The last name drawn was that of Mr. McGee who was master of ceremonies for the occasion.

The winning team, consisting of Jean Rogers, Don Emery, Mary Cannon and Doris Mead was presented with 15-cent sundaes at the Clair's Pharmacy, at the expense of the Student Council.

The questions used for the program were taken and edited, from those handed in by the students, by the Student Council.

Music for entering and leaving the autitorium and for the singing of the school song was furnished by the ACS band. VO

CHIT-CHAT

Didn't it seem rather odd that so many from A. C. S. attended the Auxiliary square dance, stag?

The whole high school seems upset lately due to so many "break-ups" between all those once-going-steadies. Why?

Sure, an' the wearin' of the green was at its peak Tuesday and Paul R. was no exception with his big, gay bow of verdant brilliance.

What is the story behind the long blue wooden beads Marilyn has begun wearing?

A long list of science-minded scholars is posted in the laboratory. Maybe there's more interest to be found at the Ceramic Open House at Alfred than meets the eye. They say interesting things can be found there.

Can it be that the popular "chariot" will roll off toward Alfred this Thursday evening? What a merry bunch that transports, eh?

The fad of autograph seeking is in the swing. What, with four gals running down teachers and school pals for their signatures, the result may be a case of writer's cramp, or something.

It seems that whenever "the car" is available "the girls" can't go out, and when there's no car, everyone is in want of one. "Why can't there be more co-operation?" say Don and Stan.

There was certainly quite a commotion—or should we say feuding on the lower Main street bridge last Sunday night.

That was a flashy tie and shamrock Mr. McGee and Mr. Maloy were wearing, respectively, Tuesday.

What's this we hear of a soon-to-be girls' bowling team? Those four or five gals are certainly enthusiastic about such a prospect, Mr. McGee.

It seems an interesting little gathering, shall we call it a party, was held at Regina's after the square dance Tuesday. A good time was reported, as usual.

Did a Junior girl really think that Glenn Miller "broke up all the records" because of "Chatanoogo Choo Choo?" O or were you kidding, Elaine?

Marian S. and Jack D. were honored by the singing of "Happy Birthday" by a lusty chorus at the dance. Birthday parties are next in order.

Did you notice the gay bow ties worn by Vic, Stan, Dick and Chick Tuesday night? Some fad.

St. Pat's Dance Held

Last Tuesday evening the American Legion Auxiliary held a St. Pat's dance in the Central School auditorium. It was held from 9 until 1 o'clock with refreshments served in the cafeteria. EP

An Office Oddity

The following bit of original verse, as written by Secretary "Betty" Snyder, shows what is typical of a day in the office:

All is calm, serenity and bliss
Comes a bluster, a hustle and this—
In pops Jean Button and side-kick Florence Mingus
They halt and fire "How's business?"
Now I say "What with working, that's trouble enough
Do I have to contend with that other stuff?"
"Our matters are urgent, it's Hi Herald you see."
—"I understand girls, but why bother me?"
"Our assignment concerns you—it's called 'Office Oddities.'"
"Oh, I see, in that case, I hope this may please." JB

Farwell, Pleasant Dreams

By JEAN ROGERS

With gasps of sheer exhaustion, Ann Castle and Jeanette Reid dropped into chairs at the end of the day's work. Beads of sweat stood out on the handsome features of Mr. Malone as he stood under the bright lights, covering his equipment for the night. Miss Lacy, the critic, came slowly up the aisle. "My dears," she said, "That was marvelous, only you didn't talk quite loud enough. Ann, see the cosmetic department about your make-up. Jeanette dear, it's dissertation not desertation." Miss Lacy was really a critic, yet she loved these two young actresses like a mother would.

"All ready, girls?" Mr. Malone was ready to take them home in the large sedan that belonged to the company.

For miles, the black sedan had jumped snowbanks at an alarming rate of speed. Miss Lacy, who recognized the road, had been telling thrilling tales of past remembrances when, all of a sudden, they were bumping along off the road. The car came to a standstill after jumping a five-foot ditch. Mr. Malone spoke first, "How did I do it? Goodness! Goodness! Look at the scrape I've got you girls in!"

After getting out to see how deep the snow was, Mr. Malone sat down in the road, and began to laugh. "Well, at least we have a lovely moon and some gorgeous stars," he laughed. Miss Lacy replied solemnly. "If my public could only see me now!"

Fortunately, there was a shovel in the back of the car. While Mr. Malone attempted to dig away a little of the depressing snow, Jeanette and Ann walked toward a faint shimmer of light in the distance. It was bitterly cold and the snow crunched under their feet. Ann knocked at the door and while they waited for some one to come, the two girls looked around the back porch. There was nothing fascinating in the wash boiler, an axe covered with blood, a box of chicken feathers, an old chain, and the old wooden bench that fell under their gaze. With the creaking of a window, the girls jumped and turned around. An old man in a long nightshirt with the strings of a lacy bonnet tied under his chin, stood with his bespeckled face gazing at the girls. "It's midnight—now what are you two young whipper-snappers doing here and what do ye want?" Ann explained the situation and asked the sleepy gentleman if he would harness his horses and try to pull the heavy sedan out of the snow. Going down to the barn with Uncle Joshua, for that was what he insisted his name to be, Ann and Jeanette sank into the snow up to their knees. After a long struggle the three stepped with aching feet into a tiny barn. The old man who was blind in one eye and suffered intently from rheumatism, was trying desperately to life the heavy old fashioned harness on a large bay horse. Altho Jeanette was desperately afraid of horses she managed to help the old man.

Going back up the lonely road, Ann looked up at the stars and shudered. "They're laughing at us. Can't you see that smirk on their faces?" By the time they had reached the moored car, the girls' hands and feet ached with the cold. The night grew colder and not one of the four was dressed for a winter night in the country.

Uncle Joshua was very sleepy. His yawning and lagging steps told one that. After a very feeble try with a complete failure to pull the sedan out of the snow, Uncle Joshua headed his horses toward home calling over his shoulder, "You can use my telephone if ye care to."

Knocking on the door after walking to another house, Miss Lacy was startled. "Goodness, she's getting a gun down from the shelf." The mistress of the house was tall and had apparently passed the realms of 60. Her name is of no consequence.

"Since it's cold out, you may come in and explain. It's my custom to hear explanations outside but remember, any monkey business and 'pop goes the weasel.'" Their explanation was satisfactory and while the three women sat down to warm their feet, Mr. Malone put in a telephone call. The old woman was very nice after the guild members and she had become acquainted.

Everyone sat before a fire talking and playing with the dog, when suddenly their friends drove up after a short delay. The large car was able, with more shoveling and continued effort, to be pulled out of the snowbank into the road again. Since the sedan seemed none the worse for wear, everybody started for home. After dropping Ann at her home, which was only a little ways from where the car had been moored, Mr. Malone turned around and headed for the metropolis and better roads. The trip back was much less complicated since they had broken a track coming out.

Miss Lacy lived in an apartment in the city and before getting out she replied with a smile, "Well, we're all still alive. It was fun. I believe that our sedan has given me more excitement than I've had for a long time. See you at nine in the morning. I'm taking the subway so you needn't bother to come after me, Mr. Malone. Good night, pleasant dreams."

After a short ride, Mr. Malone and Jeanette came to Jeanett's home. As she got out of the sedan, he smiled and said. "It was fun. Good-night, pleasant dreams." Drawing herself up to her full height, with her head in the air, she said. "If my public could only see me now!" Then she turned and ran up the steps to the porch. Turning around she laughed in the glare of the headlights, waved her hand and ran into the house with Mr. Malone's "Night, Jeanette," ringing in after her.

As Mr. Malone was locking the garage after putting up the car, he was murmuring to himself. "These women talking about having fun—Well, I'll have to admit myself it was fun. Pleasant dreams. Well for a few hours at least."

League to Pay Interest Before Due Date

Interest on Dairymen's League Co-operative Association certificates of indebtedness will be paid beginning March 15, six weeks before the due date, May 1, it is announced by J. A. Coulter, treasurer.

Interest payment will amount to $417,000 and will be paid on interest coupons of the 1946, '47, '48, '49, '50 and '51 certificates.

"Payment is being made six weeks before it becomes due," said Mr. Coulter, "so that farmers can have the money for early spring seeds. Making the payment in advance is in accord with a custom adopted by the Dairymen's League several years ago to provide extra money to farmers when they need it to purchase seeds and get equipment and machinery in readiness for the spring work."

School Directors Meet At Wellsville

A meeting of the school directors of the Fifth Supervisory District of Allegany county was held at Pop up's Restaurant Tuesday forenoon at 11 o'clock March 17 for the purpose of organization.

Mrs. Marian Rigby, clerk, called the meeting to order and George Robinson of Alfred was named temporary chairman. Mrs. Florence Earley and Mrs. Helen Merriam were appointed tellers.

The names of George Robinson for chairman and Marian Rigby for clerk were presented for nomination and there being no other candidates the secretary was instructed to cast one ballot for the election of Mr. Robinson and Mrs. Rigby.

Motion was made and carried that the minutes of this meeting be sent to the county papers.

Directors present were: George Robinson and Mrs. Eva Champlin, Alfred; Mrs. Ila Snyder and Mrs. Florence Earley, Andover; Mrs. Marian Rigby, Whitesville; Mrs. Helen Merriam and Mrs. Marguerite Black, Scio; Mrs. Clara Quick and Mrs. Arlene Harder, Wellsville, town of Willing.

There being no other business to come before the meeting, the motion was made and carried to adjourn.

The teacher was giving a written examination in European geography. One question was:

"Why does the sun never set on the British flag?"

Robert wrote the answer:

"Because they take it in at night."

Strong soaps and alkalies weaken the paint of woodwork so use only mild soaps in cleaning. If scouring is necessary, use whiting.

The Answers

1—About three times as many Hindus.

2—Approximately $5,000,000.

3—No, there are no railroads out of Darwin.

4—More than forty.

5—No difference; two names for the same type merchant ship.

6—An island located a few miles to the east of Java.

7—Yes, a man with dependents may enlist as a private for the sole purpose of getting a commission; if he fails to get a commission he is put in the inactive reserve and is not subject to call until those in his classification are being called by the Selective Service.

8—A gross ton is 100 cubic feet of cargo space; deadweight tons include the weight of the cargo the ship could carry, and is thus usually much larger.

9—First land on the east coast to be shelled by a submarine.

10—Series E Bond.

The shortage of farm help has greatly increased the use of milking machines in many dairy herds of New York State, according to reports from Farm Bureaus of the State.

News Notes From Greenwood

Community Minstrel Show

Plans and rehearsals are rapidly going forward for a community minstrel show sponsored by the Masonic brotherhood to be given at the Greenwood Central School Auditorium, March 27 at 8:15 p. m., War Time. Directed by Richard Montague, the cast includes a large number of local people as black-face characters and a good sized chorus as well. The Greenwood Central School band will play several numbers during the evening.

Black-faced end men of the show include Albert Karlan as Persimmon; Donald Peck as Sideswipe; William Kellogg, Jr., as Lockjaw; Stanley Hale as Fossil; Leonard Dennis as Creosote and Matt Brundage as Eggplant. Interlocutor will be Virgil H. Hussey.

Chorus, band and solo numbers will give the entertainment sparkle. Two humorous dialect skits will be given during the course of the show, one by Stanley Hale and Donald Peck, and the second by Mrs. Chas. Bassett and Stanley Murray. Various other novelties are being planned. Tickets will soon be on sale.

Sugar Rationing Machinery Set Up for Supervisory District 4

Supt. Virgil Hussey reports that the sugar rationing machinery for Supervisory District No. 4 is well set up and ready to go. Two meetings have already been held in this area, and a third meeting, which will include all rural school teachers will be held in Greenwood, Thursday at 2 p. m. All schools which are now operating in this district will be open for the registration of residents. Teachers will have charge of registration and issuing War Ration Books. Some other citizens will assist them.

All people are expected to register in the school district in which they live if a place of registration is designated there. Otherwise, they should register in a nearby school. Every man, woman and child must be registered, tho the head of the family may register for the entire household. Those who have sugar on hand at the time of registration must declare the amount to the registrars and deductions will be made accordingly. The days of registration have not yet been officially set.

War Ration Books will contain 28 stamps, each good for a specified amount of sugar. Each individual will receive a book according to present plans, and when such books are presented to store keepers at the time of sugar purchases, the storekeeper will tear out the corresponding stamp.

Those in charge of registration and issuance of War Ration Books in the various districts are as follows:

Greenwood Central School, Prin. Alvin Densmore; Jasper Central School, Prin. Alton Corbit; Troupsburg Central School, Prin. Joseph Horton; Jasper No. 8, Dorothy Havens; Jasper No. 14, Permelia White Jasper No. 15, Muriel Bond; West Union No. 1, Christena McAllister; West Union No. 2, Mrs. Anna Hurlburt; West Union No. 4, Mrs. Gladys Updyke; West Union No. 6, Gertrude Johnson; West Union No. 7, Mrs. Madeline McKinley; West Union No. 9, Mrs. Katherine Nye.

In West Union No. 9, registration will take place at the home of Mrs. Nye. Residents of West Union No. 3 will register either at the Rosa School or at Whitesville High School. Residents of Troupsburg No. 10 will register at the Woodhull High School. It is expected that three or four days will be set apart for registration. The hours of registration will probably be late afternoon and evening.

Teachers' Dinner Meeting Held

A dinner meeting of all teachers in Supervisory District No. 4 was enjoyed March 11 at the Troupsburg Central School. Many topics of educational value were discussed. The speaker of the evening was Miss Josie Willis of the Hornell Junior High School who spoke on the subject "Toward a Better Human Understanding."

Almost any young lady can improve her looks.
