SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRIST AND LIFE AFTER DEATH

International Sunday School Lesson For April 5, 1942.

Golden Text: "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory thru our Lord Jesus Christ."—I Cor. 15:57.

Lesson Text: Mark 12:24-27; I Cor. 15:50-58.

With this lesson for Easter Sunday, we begin another quarter's study of the life of Christ as recorded in the synoptic gospels, Matthew, Mark and Luke.

Instead of the usual lesson for Easter, the story of the crucifixion, burial and resurrection of our Lord—our lesson for this week concerns what Jesus himself had to say about life after death, a subject in which all peoples everywhere are intensely interested.

The first scripture given for our consideration is an account of an incident which occurred on the last Tuesday of Jesus' life. It was a day of controversy for him in which he was questioned by various sects, not in an effort to gain information, but rather to trap him or to give them cause for having him arrested and put away.

The Pharisees and Herodians wanted to know if it were right for a Jew to pay taxes to the Romans. Any effort to answer directly would involve Jesus in complications, for it would be unpopular to advocate paying the hated taxes and it would be treason to encourage non-payment—either the mob or the Roman authority would be incited against Jesus. The answer given by Jesus did not go into particulars but in general terms defined the proper limits for church and state.

His questioners marveled at the adroitness exhibited. The extent of the hostility to Jesus can be measured by the fact that the Pharisees, intensely patriotic, allied themselves with the Herodians, supporters of the Roman rule. These natural enemies joined in a common hostility to the Galilens.

The Sadducees, the priestly clan, next launched an attack. Unlike the Pharisees, the Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection nor in future rewards or punishments. Their question, therefore, was calculated to point out a complication arising from the doctrine of immortality. Raising a hypothetical question of a woman who had seven husbands on their earth, they wanted to know whose wife would she be in the life to come. Jesus answered by pointing out that the future life was upon a spiritual, not a physical plane, and proceeded to give scriptual reference as to the truth of the resurrection.

"That there is continuity of life is of course implied in the very idea of resurrection; but true life resides not in the flesh, but in the spirit, and therefore the continuity will be a spiritual continuity; and the power of God will effect such changes in the body itself that it will rise out of its fleshly condition into a state of being like that of the angels of God. The thought is the same as that which was afterwards expanded by the apostle Paul in such passages as Rom. 8:5-11, 1 Cor. 15:35-54. (John Monro Gibson.)

In 1 Cor. 15:50-58, Paul attempts to describe the transformation of the living and the dead that will take place on the great day of the Lord, when the trumpet will sound. Evidently he thought that the day might come even in his lifetime.

"There have been many discussions about the nature of the spiritual body, the general outcome of which is, as far as Christians are concerned, that its presence in the natural body is the sole rational explanation of human life's mysteries. Biologists and physicians assume its existence and attribute to it mental causation and the healing of certain diseases. Indeed, Gaskill's work on the Involuntary Nervous System argues that there is an intimate association between the two 'bodies'. In the transformation which death affects, God gives the soul a form which pleases him, and adjusts human personality to its new environment." declared S. Parks Cadman.

Dr. Lyman Abbott gives the following confession of his faith: "I believe that death and resurrection are synonymous, that death is the dropping of the body from the spirit that resurrection is the up-springing of the spirit from the body; and I think of my friends and companions, not as lying in the grave waiting for a future resurrection, nor as living in some distant land singing hymns in loveless forgetfulness of those they loved on earth. I think of them as a great cloud of witnesses looking on to see how we run the race that is set before us, grieved in our failures, glad in our triumphs."

Here's a thought that would be well for all Christians to ponder now—"The world is like a vestibule before the world to come; prepare thyself in the vestibule that thou mayest enter into the hall."—Rabbi Jacob.

Andover's First Practice Blackout Well Carried Out

Second Practice Daylight Blackout Next Monday Evening at the Same Hour, 7 O'clock.

Andover's first practice daylight "blackout" held at 7 o'clock Monday evening, under the direction of Coordinator Mayor George Carpenter, Chief Air Raid Warden Charles Holt and Fire Chief George Wereley was carried out in a very creditable manner by those participating.

At the sound of the air raid warning whistle the machinery went into action, with each one at his appointed post, and 29 calls, including fire, ambulance, bomb squads, road repair, demolition, doctors, etc., were handled and completed in 12 minutes. Of course, this being Andover's first try, a number of speed records were broken by the drivers who will find the going different when they are driving in the dark, with heavy red reflectors over their lights.

The auxiliary police, fire watchers and the Boy Scout messengers also drew compliments for the efficient manner in which they handled the tasks assigned them.

Those in charge wish to express their appreciation for the co-operation of Andover people in this practice blackout and especially for the telephone co-operation, both for the efficiency of the operators and of the general public in refraining from using their phones during the blackout period.

Another practice daylight blackout will be held next Monday evening at 7 o'clock, after which Andover will be eligible for a regular night blackout, which will be carried out upon orders from the State department in Albany, and will be under the supervision of an Army officer sent here by the State.

Pvt. Ernest Clark Writes From Ft. McClellan, Ala.

Fort McClellan, Ala.
April 5, 1942.

Dear Andover Friends:

It's about time I got around and wrote a letter to you all. The best way of writing one letter and making it do for all is to write and have it put in the paper. So I will write a few lines and let you all know that I am well and getting alone fine.

I have been working in the hospital the last three weeks. The hospital is closing up now, so it looks like we will go back to drilling and hiking now.

Well the weather is fine down here. It is too nice weather to be working in a hospital anyway. The grass is green, the leaves are coming out on the trees and there are flowers in blossom already. It makes you wish you were home.

I guess this war will end in another year or two. I don't think it can last forever. I believe the Japs have asked for a little more than they can handle.

While I am writing I wish to send my thanks to the Andover friends who so kindly sent me an Easter package. It does one good to know that the friends back home are thinking of you.

The post office here on the post sure has been busy the last three or four days. There has been about 50,000 packages for the boys here in camp. Besides that, they had all the letters and cards to take care of.

Well I guess that is all there is to say, so I'll say "so long."

Pump House Burns

A small pump house and gasoline engine on the Schoonover farm on South Hill owned by the McEbenwood Oil Co., was destroyed by fire Monday when a gasket blew out of the pump, allowing oil from a two-inch pipe to ignite.

Fourth Registration Set For Monday April 27th

Includes Men Born Between April 28, 1877 and Feb. 16, 1897, Both Dates Inclusive.

The Fourth Registration of Selective Service, and the second since the declaration of war, will take place on Monday, April 27, 1942, Brigadier General Ames T. Brown, New York State Director of Selective Service, has announced, with registration places open from 7:00 a. m. to 9:00 p. m.

Men required to register are those who have attained their 45th birthday on or before February 16, 1942, and have not attained their 65th birthday on April 27, 1942. It is expected that the registration will be approximately one and one-half times the number of men who were registered in the Third Registration.

As the men who will register on April 27 are not liable for military service, their registration cards will be given serial numbers, but there will be no National Lottery, and order numbers will not be assigned. The cards will be buff in color. Altho definite instructions have not as yet been received from National Headquarters, we believe that all registrants of the Fourth Registration will receive shortly after registration the occupational questionnaire in order that the purpose of the registration may be accomplished as soon as possible.

This registration will complete the enrollment of all Americans between the ages of 20 and 65, and is expected to include about 1,500,000 men.

Lt. John Herrick Receives Promotion

Andover relatives received word this week of the promotion of 2nd Lieutenant John S. Herrick to First Lieutenant. Lt. Herrick is stationed at Fort Sherman, Canal Zone.

A Week of the War

War Production Director Nelson, speaking in New York City, said "America's industrial plant is really beginning to roll." He said airplane production schedules for the first three months of this year have been met or exceeded, and production of tanks is ahead of schedule.

Mr. Nelson said production of merchant ships is "rising rapidly" and this year's schedule should be met. A Garand rifle is now available for "every one of our combat soldiers who is supposed to have one," he said. Production schedules for anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns also are being met. However "this is no time for easy optimism," he stated, because the production of war goods is so huge a job "we can break every record we ever made and still fall short of the need."

The Senate passed and sent to the House legislation to set up a $100 million Smaller War Plants Corporation under the War Production Board. The Corporation would obtain contracts from Government procurement agencies and re-award them to small enterprises, breaking the orders into sub-contracts where necessary.

Civilian Supply

The WPB ruled persons buying toothpaste or shaving cream in tubes must turn in to the retailers some kind of tin or tin-coated tube for each new one purchased. The board froze sales and deliveries of all new bicycles for adults, including those already ordered and paid for. Red Cross local chapters began collection of the extra cloth made available by the elimination of cuffs from approximately 50 million pairs of trousers now on hand in stores. The salvage clip will make about 300,000 new suits.

The Board ordered production of cover caps of tinplate or terneplate, used as closures for catsup, jelly, etc., stopped immediately, and of crown caps for bottled beer and soft drinks stopped April 30. Production of fluorescent lighting fixtures was also ordered ended immediately; of vaccuum cleaners, April 30; and of toys and games made of metal, plastic and other essential materials June 30. The Board curtailed use of crude rubber and latex in 50 articles, including fire and mill hose, storage batteries, etc.

Prices

The Office of Price Administration froze manufacturers', wholesale and retail prices of plumbing fixtures and of 44 common household electrical appliances, all at March 30 levels. Ceilings were also set on wholesale prices of bond, ledger, book and plain and fancy cover paper and bristols, and on producers quotations for Pennsylvania anthracite coal. The Agriculture Department said the retail cost of food is now 15 per cent above the 1935-39 average, but is still below the 1929 level.

Civilian Defense

Civilian Defense Director Landis said Axis air raids on American war industries this spring are "entirely possible." He said "It's worth a dozen bombers to the Germans to wreck vital industries, even in the heart of the country." Mr. Landis said $20 million of OCD funds have been transferred to build facilities for manufacture of civilian gas masks. First shipments of helmets, arm bands and other equipment for air raid wardens and auxiliary firemen and police were sent to more than 40 Atlantic and Pacific coast cities.

The Armed Forces

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill granting pay increases from $30 a month to $42 for privates and apprentice seamen and providing proportional increases for other classes of enlisted men in the armed forces. The Post Office Department issued regulations for granting of free first-class mailing privileges for all ranks of the armed forces. The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill eliminating restrictions on marriage of Army and Navy officers during the war. The President signed legislation to permit the war department to recruit American technicians serving in foreign armed forces and to pay them more than $21 a month during the first four months.

The Navy Department said meetings have been arranged in 35 states between April 9 and 17 to acquaint educators with the Navy officer procurement program under which 80,000 college freshmen and sopho-

Board Payments For Foster Children Increased

At the request of the Allegany County Board of Supervisors and Dr. I. G. Howe, Commissioner of Public Welfare, a report of its study of boarding rates for children in foster homes was submitted by the Children's Committee of the Allegany County Public Welfare Committee at the March meeting of the Board of Supervisors.

According to figures obtained from the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics it was found that food prices in Western New York have increased 17.3 per cent since January 1941. It was, therefore recommended that the board rate be increased from $4 a week or $17.33 a month to $21 a month to compensate for the rise in living costs.

The report also pointed out that the Children's agency is in need of additional boarding homes, and that the recommended board rate is sufficient to insure that boarding a child will not involve financial burden upon the foster parent. The Agency is in need of applications to board children from people who want a child in their home for the pleasure a child would give them, rather than for the money they would receive.

The Board of Supervisors voted to accept the committee's recommendation and increase the board payment to $21 a month.
