Garden Council Advises Early Planting

THIS week, April 20th to 25th is Garden Week and the Allegany County Victory Garden Council advises the early planting of the vegetable garden if it is to be entirely successful. Many gardens will be planted during the latter part of April and the forepart of May. Success with such early crops as spinach, head lettuce, early carrots, beets, cabbage and endive is dependent upon planting these crops early as they require a cool growing season.

It is important that all gardens be plowed as early as possible this spring if they were not plowed last fall, and prepared for planting thru the use of stable manure or commercial fertilizers. Seed beds should be well prepared by good fitting with harrows to insure a successful garden.

The Allegany County Victory Garden Council wishes to advise its co-operators, who have enrolled in the county, that they are not distributing free vegetable and flower seeds, or recommending any special sources of seeds. Many requests have come to the office in Belmont concerning the possibility of receiving free seeds. Definite recommendations as to adapted varieties have been made and will be made to those requesting this information.

A survey of the local situation in the county indicates there is an adequate supply of seeds, insecticides, fertilizers and green house grown tomatoes, peppers, cabbage, cauliflower and other vegetable plants. It is well for all co-operators to contact their local green house to insure a sufficient quantity of these plants of the recommended varieties. At the present time there are 526 boys and girls and 1,438 adults co-operating in the Victory Garden program.

Uncollected Scrap

AN ESTIMATED three million tons of scrap metal, available for war uses, is now laying around American homes and farmyards, altho some open hearths and electric furnaces are idle for lack of scrap.

Despite much publicity, there has been no organized effort to collect scrap metal in many sections of the United States, particularly in the smaller towns and cities of the Middle West and South. In many of these places, there are no commercial dealers in scrap metal and, consequently, many citizens are uncertain as to the procedure to be followed in making scrap metal available for the war effort.

The same situation exists, to a large extent, in regard to efforts to salvage scrap paper, fats and other materials. The program developed by those in authority may be ideally devised for metropolitan areas, but apparently overlooks conditions that exist in thousands of small cities and towns in the country.

Did you hear any news this week that you did not see in this paper? If you did, why not be a reporter and send in any interesting item that you think others would enjoy reading?

Just to see who was fooling us, we might ask the reader who "reads all" of our editorials to report on this item.

SPRING FLIGHT

That One Per Cent Slip

YOU may be right 99 per cent of the time, but if you make a one per cent slip, you hear about it. None knows better that this true than the newspaper editor and workers. Not long ago a colleague of ours wrote a long and detailed account about the public services of a man in his town. It was a good article, one full of facts well told. But he made one incorrect statement. That was a point he evidently didn't stop to verify and he got caught. He had probably pored over quantities of public proceedings and files, newspaper back-numbers and used the telephone no end of times to get names and dates and other information but he made one slip. And, of course, he had to come out next time with a "stickful" of apology on the front page. We all have had the same experience and sometimes we silently, but volubly, bless the one who criticizes the deficiency, tho often with perfect justice, and takes the other 99 per cent for granted.

This is true in every phase of life. A doctor or a nurse or pharmacist cannot make even that slight percentage of error without danger of serious consequences. Railroad engineers may make the same run countless times without error, only, humanly, to make one mistake, sometimes fatal. History records instances of men who have undergone extreme hardship and risk of life to gain their patriotic ends, only to be disgraced by a comparatively tiny mistake, that fatal 1%.

One could cite examples without end. The closer a man is to the public, the more his work comes to the public eye, the more subject he is to inspection and criticism. We humans are an exacting lot and none too considerate.

Watch Out For Propaganda

WE DO not know how many people in Allegany county listen to short-wave stations that send out Axis propaganda but it is important that they understand the tactics employed by the enemies of this country.

For example, a German broadcast to the United States on January 29th declared that "the British determine Washington's policy. Churchill requests, Roosevelt obeys." On February 6, a German broadcast to Britain asserted that "the strategic directions are dictated solely by Washington. Washington orders, — Churchill obeys."

Another example, a German broadcast to the U. S. said that "so long as the mothers of the United States are so willing, England will fight to the last drop of Iowa blood;" and a few days later, a broadcast to Britain stated, "The British do the fighting while the Americans carry on in the home garrison."

We hardly imagine that loyal Americans will be influenced by such propaganda when it comes from German radio stations. However, there are Axis agents and foolish Americans spreading the same kind of poison on their own.

The greatest break that the Axis could have, at this time, would be the development of bad feeling between the people of the United States and Great Britain. If suspicion can be engendered so that each will suspect the other of holding back, the prospect of Axis success will be greatly improved.

Let us remember that Axis radio propaganda should be disregarded and that we should also repudiate the efforts of sap-headed and disloyal Americans to create suspicion of our allies.

Most people would be better off if they spent their money on a budget plan.

Personally, we think that the lady who had two sets of twins in 1941 ought to let somebody else set the 1942 record.

Our Own Idea: Strict enforcement of traffic regulations will do more to prevent automobile accidents than any other activity.

You can read a book a week and still be ignorant; it all depends upon what and how you read.
