SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THURSDAY: THE LAST DAY WITH THE DISCIPLES

International Sunday School Lesson for May 24, 1942.

Golden Text: "This do in remembrance of me." Luke 22:19.

(Lesson Text: Luke 22:7-23)

Our last lesson closed with a day of controversy. The enemies of Jesus sought to trap him several times by propounding perplexing questions, each of which he answered in such a way as to avoid the pitfalls intended for him. He spent his last active days teaching.

Jesus also took opportunity to warn his disciples against those who would falsely claim the allegiance which was due himself. He realized that it was a matter of a few hours before his departure and wanted to fortify his followers as far as possible for the trials and persecution which would beset them.

He warned them of many disastrous calamities, of families divided and hatred engendered, but reassured them that not one of their hairs would perish, therefore "in your patience possess ye your souls" He admonished them to watch and pray, not allowing their hearts to be overcharged with pleasure and other interests to the exclusion of his own kingdom.

The Passover was the largest of the Jewish festivals commemorating the great deliverance from the tenth plague, which had been successful in bringing the Jews out of Egypt. While the religious leaders were desirous of killing Jesus, they feared the wrath of the multitude which had gathered in Jerusalem for the event. These leaders may have been convinced that they were performing a religious service but their thinking was warped by a very selfish determination to preserve their own privileges. Judas offered to betray his Master, either for the money, as is generally accepted, or in the hope that a crisis would force Jesus to exert his own power.

"The Paschal Feast was a family feast, at which the head of the family presided," says G. Campbell Morgan. "Here, then, was something strange, something different; a group of men all away from their own homes. They were guests in the house of another man, and that man was not presiding; he had lent the room. Yet this was a family gathering, but it was a new family! Jesus was the Head. He took charge. He presided, as the father of the household always presided at the Paschal Feast. Here was a new kinship. Away back in his ministry he had said one day, "Who is my mother, who are my brethren and my sisters? They that do the will of my God," Here they were, that little group with him, the new family.

Jesus arranged to make his last evening with his disciples an occasion which they would always remember and instituted a model commemorative service. Upon these few men would rest the weight of his kingdom and the ultimate success of the mission of Jesus would be determined by the faith and power of these intimate followers in the days which were to come.

With the responsibility to be assumed, Jesus made his last supper with them a source of unending spiritual inspiration, not only to those who have thru the succeeding centuries adopted his teachings and professed to follow him. They gathered in the upper room of a Jerusalem room, which was to become the scene of many historic events in the early church.

The memorial ceremony was very simple and effective. As he passed the bread to them he made it the symbol for his own body which would soon be broken on the cross. As they drank from the cup then and always afterwards the drink became symbolical of his blood which was shed for their own shortcomings.

While a large body of believers accept the theory that these symbols became real, the fact that Jesus used them in a representative way is apart from the fact that he was alive when the first supper was observed. So, today, in many lands and to countless thousands, the communion is a memorial of the love and suffering of Jesus.

"We eat bread and we drink wine but the great thing is what we are doing in our minds at the same time," says Richard Roberts. "There is no magic at this table. It means that our minds may do with Jesus, with the life that was in him, what our bodies do with bread and wine. That is assimilation. There is nothing out of the common in this. Two people who love one another assimilate one another. They share each other's life. Friends—as it were, penetrate and indwell each other. In fellowship, we absorb each other. So communion with Christ grows into union with Christ. Communion in the mind with Jesus of Nazareth; communion in the soul with the ever living Christ. In the mind dwelling with Jesus in Galilee, in the spirit aspiring to the Christ at the right hand of God. Keeping company with him and living among men accordingly."

Rogers' Yankees Swamps Gath's Dodgers 15-5

Interest and Merriment In Local Softball League Games Steadily Increases. Next Game Monday Night

The expected power of the Yankees finally broke loose Tuesday night to blast "Mike" Gath and his Dodgers out of first place as the Yankees was 15 to 5. The victory-hungry Yankees wasted little time in nailing down the verdict as they combined timely hitting with loose play of the Dodgers to score eleven runs in the first two innings. Albert Rogers twirled a steady game for the winners, notching eight strike-outs. Howard McAndrew got four straight hits, including two homeruns.

In the second game of the evening Max Richardson's single drove in the winning run to give the Giants undisputed possession of first place as the Giants came from behind to trip the Cardinals 6 to 4. The Cardinals took an early lead but failed to hold it as the Giants rallied for three runs in the sixth inning.

This Monday night the Yankees will attempt to continue their winning streak at the expense of the Giants while the Cardinals meet the Dodgers.

The management expects, in a week or so, to carry dairy products such as butter, eggs, cottage cheese, milk and maple syrup.

Sgt. Don Joyce Writes of Trip to California

Camp Cooke, Calif., May 17, 1942

Dear Folks:

I received your letter today and no doubt you will be anxious to know about my trip from Fort Knox to California. We left Elizabethtown about 12 noon Monday morning where we traveled to Memphis, Tenn. We were delayed in Memphis for an hour and a half and finally left there in a sleeper or Pullman car at 10:30 that night. We used this same car for the entire trip.

The next morning we woke up to find ourselves in Oklahoma, and all morning we rode thru the huge oil fields. This was the first time I ever saw the wells pumped with a walking beam and the derricks in many cases were still standing. From what I noticed I guess they have to pull these wells frequently because several of them still had tubing standing up inside of the derricks.

During the trip thru Texas we began to run across big ranches. We couldn't see very many ranches but we did see a few that had a lot of pens and corrals situated around the big ranch houses. After leaving Texas and pulling into New Mexico we began to see the much heard-of Western barren land. Arizona on the other hand became a little more mountainous and we could see that many of them were very high because most of the peaks were snow-capped. I got a picture of one of them and it looks like it is only about half a mile away, but upon asking I found out it was about 10 or 12 miles from us. Distance is sure deceptive out here in this sand barren land.

Leaving Arizona behind we passed into Southern California and it is really beautiful country. It would be safe to say that some of the orange orchards would cover a thousand acres. Many of the trees were heavily loaded. After what seemed a long trip we finally pulled into Los Angeles. We arrived a little after 9 o'clock in the morning and we would not leave until some time that night for the camp, so it gave us a short time to look over the city. We left Los Angeles about 8 that night (Thursday) for Camp Cooke and arrived at the camp around 2 a. m. We had a hard time finding the right company as the entire camp was in a solid blackout, which occurs every night. Finally at 4 we found our barracks and went to bed. It can well be imagined that I was glad to hit the hay. Camp Cooke is located about five miles from the Pacific and is surrounded with nothing but sand. When the wind gets blowing it makes it pretty tough going. The barracks are painted olive green and at times seem rather dismal but all in all it's not too bad out here.

No doubt you will be glad to know that I have been advanced to a Sergeant which isn't hard to take. It will be an advance in pay as well as rank which most of the soldiers take without kicking. I will write later in regard to my new duties and camp life.

Love, DON.

Baptist Association to Meet In Almond

The annual meeting of the Allegany Baptist Association will be held with the Union of Churches in Almond next Thursday, June 4th with the opening session at 10 a. m., followed by afternoon and evening meetings.

Rev. R. E. Williamson, D.D., of Syracuse will be the guest speaker at the afternoon and evening meetings.

Memorial Day 1942

As we pay tribute to our honored heroes this Memorial Day, Saturday, May 30th, let us keep in mind the words "If ye break faith with us who die" sang by John McCrae, the Canadian soldier-poet of World War No. 1. Nothing could surpass in tender devotion the unbroken remembrance given to those who had given "the last full measure of devotion" to the cause of right and truth—for Democracy could not at that time be safe and today no democratic country can be safe unless these forces unleashed upon peace-abiding people can be defeated.

Before each of us visit the graves or take some special part in this 1942 Memorial Service, it would be well to read "The Four Freedoms" as stated by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his message to the 77th Congress January 6, 1941; the four freedoms which we seek to make secure in the future days as we look forward.

We are citizens of a great nation which has grown up under the highest form of government devised by man. We know that the evils which exist are on the surface, not in the heart of America and we know, too, that we can get rid of them if we throw overboard selfishness and ignorance.—We want action! Action is the only thing that counts and there's need for it today as never before.

These men "will not have died in vain" and the men at the front facing the enemy will breathe easier if they know that back home we are in action to protect the Four Freedoms for keeps, giving everything in us and finding opportunities where they are.

America can be proud of its growing Army and Navy—its Airmen and its Marines, carrying on the fight—the fighting people of the greatest republic on earth—fighting for the greatest cause—Human Freedom!

Octagon Baseball League to Function This Year

Regardless of tire shortages, gas rationing and the crippling of most of the teams by the draft, officers and directors of the Octagon Baseball League voted at their annual meeting held in firemen's hall at Scio last Thursday night to carry on again this season.

Five of the six teams which participated in the league last year, namely Andover, Belmont, Friendship, Genesee and Scio, were represented at the meeting and are planning to put teams into the league this year. Angelica, the other league member, will not compete in the league this year.

With the exception of the Friendship team, which so far is practically intact, the other teams are badly draft-riddled and will have to rely on high school athletes for the nucleus of their teams.

Officers of the league were all reelected as follows:

J. N. Wentlorth, Andover, president; Harry Hurd, Genesee, vice president; and C. C. Backus, Andover, secretary-treasurer. A committee was also appointed to formulate this year's playing schedule.

Another meeting of the league is called for this Thursday night at Scio, to adopt the schedule and consider the entry of another team into the league, The league expects to start playing next Sunday, May 31.

Sister Dies at Friendship

Anna Alderson Wells, sister of William J. Alderson of Andover passed away at her home on the White Creek road, Friendship, Tuesday, May 19th.

Mrs. Wells was born in Angelica March 12, 1871, daughter of William and Elizabeth Gilbride Alderson. She was married in 1902 to Justin Wells of White Creek and had resided there since.

Surviving her are her husband; a daughter, Mrs. George Fisk of White Creek; a sister, Mrs. John Kane of Belmont and a brother, William J. Alderson of Andover.

Funeral services were held Friday morning at Sacred Heart church in Friendship, the Rev. Thomas E. Fernan officiating and burial made in Mount Hope cemetery.

Andover to Have Free Express Delivery

William J. Alderson, local express agent announces this week that beginning June 1st, the Railway Express Company will inaugurate a free express delivery and pickup system in Andover.

J. N. Wentworth, local drayman and trucker will have charge of this service and all express received at Andover will be delivered by him with no expense to the receiver. Also, anyone having express they wish sent out from Andover can notify either Mr. Wentworth or Mr. Alderson and it will be picked up free of charge.

This service, which covers the entire corporate village of Andover is a courtesy never before extended to Andover residents and will be very much appreciated by local people doing business with the express company.

First Bond Campaign Closes This Week

Time for completing Andover's quota in War Bonds and Stamps to be purchased in May is drawing short, in fact there is only one day left in which to do your part.

Wednesday's figures still show Andover a little under its quota for the month, and an earnest appeal is being made to local people to bend every effort in putting Andover "over the top" in this drive.

Quotas for June haven't been announced as yet for Allegany county but the quota for New York State has been set at $161,795,200.

Horse Traders' Convention To "Carry On"

President George Kane of Almond has announced that "war or no war" the Horse Traders' Convention will be held this year as usual on August 17-22.

President Kane says "If traders can't get their nags here in trucks this year, they'll drive them overland. A rubber shortage can't stop this nationally known swappers' carnival of opportunities."

Navy Relief Committee

Mrs. Frank Holmes, local chairman of the Navy Relief Drive in Andover, has announced the following committee in charge of the Navy Day program to be held in Andover Friday, June 5:

News Briefs About Local Boys In U. S. Service

Maxwell Field, Ala., May 21.—Cadet Leo E. Fulkerson, Andover, is enrolled as a member of the latest class of aviation cadets to enter the huge Army Air Forces Pre-Flight School (Pilot) at Maxwell Field, Alabama.

Cadet Fulkerson was inducted into the Regular Army on March 5, 1941 and served until he was accepted as a cadet in the Air Corps on April 13, 1942. After completing his course here this cadet will be sent to one of the many primary flying schools in the Southeast for the first phase of his pilot training.

Correction—In the address given in last week's News we mistakingly ranked Francis Cable as Sargeant. We find that "Fran" still retains his title of Corporal. The address itself is correct.

We congratulate "Don" Joyce on his promotion to Sergeant. He has been transferred to California and his new address is:

SGT. DONALD JOYCE,
Company E,
22nd Engineer Battalion,
Camp Cooke, Calif.,
U. S. Army.

The first mistake in the handling of mail was brought to notice this week when Mrs. J. W. Cannon received a letter from John L. Cannon of Chatanooga, Tenn., who is in the Army Air Corps at Decatur, Ala., telling her that he had been receiving mail sent to John L. Cannon of Andover, also in the Air Corps.

We think the Tennessee John L. Cannon is every bit a real "gent" for the fine letter sent to Andover and we are sure that letters sent to the Andover John L. Cannon will be received in the future. The address of our "Johnnie" is:

A. C. JOHN L. CANNON,
Squadron K, Group 6,
Maxwell Field, Ala.

Memorial Day Plans Are Completed

Commander R. E. Temple Announces Plans for Memorial Day. Rev. Lloyd Tebo Speaker.

Commander R. E. Temple of the Thomas M. Lynch Post, American Legion has announced plans for Memorial Day in Andover this year to be carried out in about the same manner as in former years.

The procession will be assembled at Legion hall at 9:30 Memorial morning, and be ready to move at 10 o'clock in the following formation:

Colors and color guard; Legion band; Legion firing squad; Legion members; Legion Auxiliary; Relief Corps; speaker of the day; village and town officials; Boy Scouts; school children and citizens.

The line of march will follow that of last year, proceeding up Main street; up Elm to East Avenue, the school children falling in at the Central school, out East Avenue to Greenwood street, down Greenwood to Main, up Main to the new entrance of Hillside cemetery.

At the cemetery the following program will be held:

Introduction, Commander Temple.

Prayer, Chaplain R. E. Shaff.

"Gettysburg Address," Gilbert Barrett.

Reading honor rolls, R. E. Shaff.

"In Flander's Field," Patricia Temple.

Address, Rev. Lloyd L. Tebo.

Decorating graves of deceased comrades by flower committee of the W. R. C.

Salute to the dead, Legion firing squad.

Singing of "Star-Spangled Banner," by the audience.

The procession will reform and return to Legion Park, where the colors will be raised from half mast.

Scrap Metal Drive Continues In Allegany County

Reporting a collection of over 300 tons of scrap metal in two days in Allegany county, the County U. S. D. A. War Board and the Farm Bureau have announced that the drive would continue until May 30. An effort is being made to round up all the scrap metal on farms in the county.

Clifford R. Harrington, county agricultural agent, urges the cooperation of every farmer in the county to make this drive a complete success. He commented upon the fine co-operation being received from all farm machinery and farm supply dealers in the county.

Appreciating that all farmers do not have trucks available to carry their scrap metal to town, the Farm Bureau is making plans to have every farmer who has some scrap and cannot deliver it, call the collection center in his community. Some method of using trucks to collect this material from farms will be arranged. A goal of 750 tons of scrap from Allegany county has been set, according to Mr. Harrington, and it is expected that this goal will be reached.
