RETROSPECT

Hurrying, scurrying, huge sheets of cardboard and construction paper came sliding up the hall, from under which legs protruded. Various voices demanded cardboard, stencils, crayons, paint, rulers, the punch Scotch tape, india ink, pens and colored pencils from Miss Snyder.

Every class room was the scene of bustling activity. Organized classes were abandoned entirely as preparations went forward.

What for? One hardly needs to be told. The annual exhibit was under way. It took a lot of time, trouble and foresight, but we think it was worthwhile. If the crowds attending were any example of the appreciation felt by the public, the exhibit really was worth the effort, in spite of the fact that the time spent in the various classrooms by interested spectators did not begin to equal the time spent by faculty members and students in preparing the rooms for the display of the year's work.

This year the finer points of each course were stressed by means of projects and this writer hopes that parents really observed and appreciated the displayed projects of each class. JB

At Last!

At last Doris Mead's candy has arrived! She received her 2½ lb. box of candy last week after waiting since last fall for it. After having sold subscriptions in the Junior class' magazine contest and having received the most points she has been waiting dutifully for it. Altho she has had it to herself she admits that it is almost gone, so it couldn't be stale after its long journey from Georgia.

Incidentally, Miss Ann Daly, Junior class adviser, also received a box of candy from the company, as did the Junior Class itself, as a body. PEP

CHIT-CHAT

What is this we hear about Friday night, Paul?

We see that the shaggy dogs of the school finally got their manes clipped, Jack, Chuck, Chick?

The Senior Ball is tomorrow nite (Friday)—What are you doing then—Why not come?

The Junior-Senior picnic is just about ready, the last big Senior event of this year.

Is "Jake" Shellman still going out of town for dates?

The exhibit was quite a success, so we hear from latest reports?

What's this we hear about "gold medals" Leo Lewis?

Friday (tomorrow) is Senior Day when the Seniors take over the school. Quite a relief for the teachers—perhaps.

The exhibit has caused many people to go around with sleepy looks on their faces.

"Congrats" on winning the horseshoe tournament "Zeke." How come "Jake" got the ribbon?

What's this about being in a doghouse, George?

The trips to Houghton were very enjoyable.

Three of the track team are going to Rochester June 6th. We hope they have good luck.

Has Stan Ruger got a date for the ball yet? At last reports, he hadnt. CG

Capacity Crowd Attends Annual School Exhibit

Annual Program Viewed by Over 800. Grades and Classes Display Projects and Work of Year.

Over eight hundred parents and friends flocked to the Andover Central School Monday evening to view the various exhibits in the rooms and listen to the musical program presented later in the evening in the auditorium.

All rooms in the building were open for inspection from 7:15 till 8:45. In these rooms teachers and pupils had on display projects and other work descriptive of the year's school program. The large group of visitors and the favorable comments heard from those who attended were ample reward for the time and effort spent by both teachers and pupils in making the exhibit such a success.

The various music organizations of the school under the direction of Miss Marion Hanneman presented a varied program in the auditorium at 8:45 following the close of the various room exhibits. Among the organizations featured were the band, the girls' chorus, the "junior" orchestra and a girls' vocal octet. A cornet solo, "My Regard" was played by Patricia Ludden. The band presented a novelty number "Rural Wedding," and the last number featured the A. C. S baton twirlers, Geraldine Lynch, Beverly Stevens and Marion Stevens.

High School Rooms Have Interesting Display

As for the exhibition in the science room general science students were performing experiments dealing with the distillation of alcohol and the preparation of chlorine gas. One of the biology students was dissecting a frog. Chemistry students were performing tests for the identification of elements.

In Miss Jane Colberg's room, the projects of the French and Latin classes were displayed and a "Hi Herald" exhibit, arranged by Jean Rogers, was shown. Authentic Roman costumes copied from those actually worn by the Roman women, slaves and senators were seen as well as peasant French costumes resembling those worn by the natives of Provence in Southern France.

The commercial room, under the direction of Miss Helen Linehan, featured a bulletin board of "art typing," Christmas cards, whose designs were made on a typewriter, and a large typewriter, from whose keys extended red, white and blue ribbons which were "scotch-taped" to the black-board, on which was a diagram of a typewriter keyboard.

In Miss Ann Daly's history room were timely maps and clever posters concerning the world's history and illustrating to-day's news. On the bulletin board was exhibited a "Big Miss Liberty" whose torch illuminated "Progress, Justice, Tolerance and Freedom."

In room 214 geometric designs and "model mathematics problems" hung on the bulletin boards were evidence of the ability of the mathematics students.

In the library, the work accomplished in English under Miss Pauline Anderson's direction was displayed upon the library tables by units, including "Letter Writing," "Silas Marner," and "Ivanhoe." An interesting game "Try This" was on hand, the object of which was to match up books and authors by bringing wires in contact with metal. When the right connection was made a blue light flashed on.

Two bulletin boards in Miss Marie Mahl's homemaking room displayed interesting booklets as color schemes and color balances, made by the Home Economics six class. The Homemaking A girls displayed their creations including dresses, aprons, blouses, skirts and dickey collars which they made by hand. Cleverly crafted necklaces, paper mache bowls and puppets were shown as the outstanding work of the seventh and eighth grade classes.

Sugarless cookies made by the Homemaking A Class were given to the visitors. Sugarless recipe sheets were also passed out to those who desired them.

Grade Rooms Feature Pupils' Work of Year

Miss Rectenwald's kindergarten made a large Indian tepee from heavy brown paper and painted designs on it. A miniature circus was also exhibited with the cages and animals made by the children.

Mrs. Allen's first grade made a defense stamp bulletin board, in conjunction with which a miniature army camp with toy trucks and soldiers was displayed. Victory garden posters, a terrarium and animal exhibits were displayed.

Miss Sequin's first grade had a very interesting toyland and pet shop. They exhibited kites made by themselves and signs of spring which they saw such as birds and pollywogs.

Miss Clarke's room had exhibiting an indian village with a scrapbook. They had health safety booklets.

Miss Elliot's room displayed a unit on the Dutch and also maps of transportation.

Miss Butler's room had an Indian exhibit with window dolls, dress and bells. They also showed the individuals work at their desks. They displayed a science corner with snakes and turtles.

Miss Perkins' room had an electrical unit. They also made a salt map of Australia.

Miss Jordan displayed a very striking bulletin board "On Land, In the Air, and On the Sea, To Victory." Maps showing products of the U. S. A. were seen on the walls. Victory Posters were made by the class. Robin Hood booklets were also shown.

In Miss Kuthn's room Victory and tolerance compositions were written. A chalk wall hanging of "The Rock of Gibraltor" was displayed. A medieval castle made from cardboard and oatmeal boxes was made by the class.

Mrs. Schwarzenbach displayed geographic scenes, maps, a poster of the ear and heart, a date line, a star map and spatter paintings. A very attractive "America For Me" bulletin board was found in this room also.

Victory posters were seen in Miss Baker's room. Wall murals on "God Bless America" and "The Star-Spangled Banner" were made by the eighth grade girls. "Geometric Designs" were also displayed.

Mrs. McKibben featured large advertisements very neatly finished. Her bulletin board "Put the Axe to the Axis" was found to be very interesting. Cartoons in black and white were also shown.

In Miss Jaekle's room one saw booklets on "Stories and Poems" which they have read during the year.

Unique Senior Day Coming Friday

Senior Day of the Class of '42 will be in effect tomorrow. In addition to teaching classes, attending moving up exercises and listening to the speaker, T. A. Parrish, the Senior Class will present its class will, class prophecy and class history tomorrow (Friday) morning since it will not be possible to have the accustomed class night this year.

Complete details are being kept a secret until tomorrow, but corridor reports indicate a choice bit of entertainment will be offered.

In the evening the auditorium will be the scene of the Victory Ball which begins at 9 o'clock with music by Art Wexel.

Parents and townspeople are cordially invited to this replica of class night. The performance will start at 9 o'clock in the morning in the auditorium and is, of course, free to all. JR

PURPLE AND WHITE LOSE CHAMPIONSHIP TO ANGELICA 9-6

The usual second place spot was again claimed by Andover in the Section I baseball league as it lost to Angelica last Saturday by a score of 9 to 6.

Both teams were tied for first place and this game was played to decide the winner.

The locals scored two runs in the first inning on hits by Driscoll, Ryan and Holt.

However, Angelica came back and scored five runs from one hit. Several errors were made in this inning, thus giving Angelica several chances to score.

Andover tried to overcome this lead and tied the score in the fourth.

Angelica then made three runs in the fifth, to put the game on ice.

"Jim" Driscoll pitched for the locals and did a pretty fair job as most of the runs obtained from him were unearned.

PURPLE PANTHERS LOSE FIRST GAME TO WHITESVILLE

The baseball nine of Andover Central School lost their first league game out of five starts to a powerful Whitesville club last Thursday.

The locals were leading 2-0 going into the final inning, when Whitesville staged a rally and scored three runs.

"Jake" Shellman pitched good ball all the way, limiting the opposition to eight hits.

This loss forced the locals to play the tie off in the league against Angelica.

Those card tricks were pretty good, Art, even if you did slip up now and then.

If Miss Hanneman is heard lisping now and then, it will only mean that she's been relating her famous story of "circles and spirals."

Cleaning Paint Brush

T. S. wants to know how to remove fresh paint from paint brushes

C. W. Mulligan of the agricultural engineering department replies: "Wash the brushes in kerosene, mineral spirits, turpentine, gasoline or other solvents; then wash them with warm water and soap, and rinse them thoroly in clean water.

"To keep the bristles straight, wrap them in paper, tie a cord around it, and hang the brush up by its handle.

"Another recommended method for cleaning fresh paint from the brushes is as follows: Rinse it with turpentine or other paint solvent, squeeze it out, soak it in gasoline, squeeze it out, soak it in fresh gasoline, squeeze it out, wash it with strong soap or sal soda, squeeze it out, rinse it in soft water, and dry the brush."

Termite Injury

E. J. F. writes: "Please send me information on how to destroy termites. They are around the casing of a door and of a floor opening. They have also eaten a few holes in a hardwood floor."

Prof. R. W. Leiby, extension entomologist, answers: "Termites that are found in New York State require moisture to survive. If the source of moisture is removed, they die. Often, in feeding in timbers, they build clay tubes or passageways from the timbers to a nest in the soil, for moisture.

"Once located, the job is to destroy the worker termites and colony in the nest. To prevent reinfestation, metal shields may be inserted between masonry supports and the woodwork, the soil may be poisoned, and timbers treated with creosote used.

"More detailed information has been sent to you."
