SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A PIONEER OF FAITH: ABRAM.

International Sunday School Lesson for August 2, 1942.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward." —Genesis 15:1.

(Lesson Text: Genesis 11: 31-12: 9: Hebrews 11: 8-12.)

In considering our lessons from Genesis, we should bear in mind the benefit sought in Bible study, not a record of men or of science, but a progressive revelation of God the Creator, and his ideals for man.

The record of creatoin opens our Bible to present a compelling reason for obedience to high purposes subsequently to be unfolded. From then onward, the scriptural books show us by specific lives how God reached men and how men sought to understand God.

The short sketches of Adam and Eve and the start of sin (disobedience to God) the harmony between God and Noah, which caused his family alone to be saved to the world. Today, we take another character, Abraham, and we are shown how obedience to God developed life to its fullest for him.

Abraham is revealed first as following Terah, his father, from Ur to Haran, and it is noteworthy that no definite cause is stated for this departure although subsequent writers interpret it religiously, perhaps rightly, maybe not so.

From Haran, Abram (as he was first called) was directed by God to leave his kindred, although the divine voice only promised to show him his destination later, and for such obedience great blessings were vowed. Abram obeyed the call that came into his heart, and journeyed forth into a strange country on faith. So, his name became synonymous in after years with absolute confidence in God's providence.

All of Abram's record is not inviting. During a sojourn in Egypt, driven by famine as was Jacob later, he passed his wife off as his sister, very profitably to himself. The ruling Pharaoh was attracted by the beauty of Sarai, and courted her, by means of presents and gifts to her "brother."

However, the deceptions discovered in time to prevent serious sin, and Abram leaves Egypt "rich" in cattle, in silver, and in gold." Later in life the same episode is repeated, this time with Abimelech, a Philistine king, ending exactly as before —no harm done and Abram enriched again!

The record of this early chieftain wasn't written to picture him as perfect, yet a modern writer dilates on the refusal of Abram to take the spoils of warfare and distinguishes the cases by calling the Egyptian Pharaoh noble and the Sodam ruler wicked! The reason for the last refusal by Adam himself —then powerful and rich in his own right.

The story of the battle between the kings is interesting. Some scholars question it, while others identify the names in the 14th chapter with the other ruling monarchs of that early day. The most striking feature of the story is the meeing of victorious Abram and Melchizedek, King of Salem and "Priest of God Most High." This religious feature is one of the many mysteries encountered in the Bible. How came he, in Canaan, to know God and be recognized as his priest? Had God revealed himself to other peoples of whom we have no record? Centuries later we find Paul comparing the preisthood of Christ as like unto Melchizedek's.

However, in Abram's life we have the story of a man who allowed God to control his life. He broke from well-known surroundings at the divine command, and he made his home in the land where the same spirit spoke to him. There he erected his altars.

We are not supplied with all the why's and wherefore's, but the extolled virtue of Abraham was his confidence in God. He was content for his life to be moulded by the higher power.

No one thing would contribute more to contentment and peace for an individual than to listen to the spiritual calls in life and follow them. Man sacrifices quiet enjoyment and satisfactoin in a mad grapple for the things he wants—lacking the faith to be patient and trust in God for the future.

No Relief In Barbed Wire For Flood Sufferers

In answer to requests made by agricultural agencies and dealers in farm supplies for barbed wire to replace that washed away by the flood, the War Production Board replies that at present there is no relief in sight.

Immediately after the flood of July 18, which washed away considerable fence in this section, Arling Baker, local hardware dealer, wrote the War Production Board and also State agricultural agencies setting forth the emergency fencing situation caused by the flood and calling to their attention the fact that barbed wire was more essential to the dairymen in their war effort of production than a number of other articles which were now available to them.

Replies received were far from encouraging. The War Production Board in its reply stated that 98 per cent of all barbed wire produced at present was being shipped to the Army and Navy for requirements in war theatres. They stated that it was hoped that some of it might be diverted for farm use in the near future, but at present there was no relief in sight.

The agricultural agency at Ithaca, in reply, stated that they had already asked for a special allotment of barbed wire for the flood area in New York and Pennsylvania and that the Defense Commission had agreed to send an inspector into the flood area and to make a survey, but up to this week Monday no report had been received of any inspection.

They further stated that they had asked for four carloads of wire to be divided between dealers in the flood area, but action thru the WPB was slow and there was no wire in the hands of the manufacturers, so the wire would have to be manufactured which will mean further delay. "We are sorry, but we cannot give you too much encouragement at present" is also the final statement from this agency.

Mayor Carpenter Called to Duty By War Department

Tenders Resignation to Village Board Monday. Mrs. Hazel Atwood Is Appointed Mayor.

Andover has a new mayor this week in the appointment of Mrs. Hazel Atwood, village trustee, to serve the unexpired term of Mayor George A. Carpenter, who tendered his resignation to the village board Monday evening, following a call from the War Department received Saturday for him to report next Monday for duty at Buffalo.

Some months ago Mr. Carpenter enlisted for officers' training in the Military Police Branch of the Army and was waiting for his call to active duty with that branch, when he received a call to report to the Engineering Division of the Army Civilian Corps in Buffalo, where his duties will pertain to the expediting of war supplies.

The calling of Mayor Carpenter by the War Department also made necessary several changes in the local Civilian Defense setup, of which he was commander. The new appointments in the local Civilian Defence Corps are Charles Holt, commander, C. W. Connor, assistant commander and A. D. Fuller, chief air raid warden.

This July Second In Amount of Rainfall On Record

In summarizing the weather for last month we find that July, 1942, holds second place in the amount of rainfall in any month since the Weather Bureau was established here nearly 20 years ago.

July, 1935, the time of the other big flood in this area, had a total rainfall for the month of 11.29 inches, with July 1942 totalling 9.82 inches. The rainfall in July, 1935, however, was distributed more evenly over the month with the exception of the one big storm which occurred on the 7th and 8th. It rained 19 days out of the 31 in July 1935 and 10 days of the 31 in July 1942.

The record rainfall for any one 24-hour period is held by the storm of this year with 4.10 inches on July 18. In the other bad storm which visited this section on July 28th, 2.04 inches of rain fell.
