Soil Conservation Measures In Great Demand

Hugh Chamberlain, chairman of the Allegany County Soil Conservation District Board, reports that ever increasing numbers of farmers are requesting assistance of the District.

During August complete erosion control plans were developed on five farms in Allegany county thru the technical assistance of Robert Reed, soil conservation expert, reports Mr. Chamberlain. The previous month saw the development of seven farm plans. Of the 12 farms planned, the Town of Independence leads with four, including Robert Ainsworth, a Soil Conservation District Director, Miles Kenyon, Frank Rigby and W. R. Ainsworth. The Town of Wirt also has four farms developed in this period including Clayton Burroughs, Paul Baker, E. B. Clark and Milton Scutt; the Town of Andover, Edward L. Kent, and Miss Dorothea Snyder. The Towns of Belfast and Caneadea have one each, Arthur Shaller and Andrew Hale.

On these farms over 300 acres of contour strip cropping was laid out with six miles of diversion terrace construction planned. Woodland management plans will be developed on each of these farms during the winter while 65 acres of reforestation are planned for next spring.

The Allegany County Soil Conservation district directors are pleased to report such enthusiasm on the part of Allegany County farmers in requesting this work. Mr. Chamberlain reports any Allegany county farmers interested may secure assistance in planning and establishing erosion control measures by calling any of the Soil Conservation District Directors, or leaving word with C. R. Harrington, County Agricultural Agent and Robert Reed, Soil Conservationist, at the Court House in Belmont.

RANDOM SHOTS

Again you hunters can get the old shotgun cleaned and oiled for action. On October 15, Thursday, at sunrise, ducks, geese, coots, rails, sera, woodcock and partridge or grouse will become legal game in this area. The hunting is from sunrise to sunset. Look it up on the calendar.

The season on ducks and geese, the only ones we have in this area, is from Oct. 15 to Dec. 23, sunrise to sunset. The daily bag limit on ducks of all kinds is 15 to consist of not more than one wood duck, or more than three in the aggregate of red-heads or bufflecheads. No more than 20 on hand at any one time after the first day. Ducks may be possessed for 30 days after the close of season.

Woodcock opens at sunrise Thursday, Oct. 15 and closes at sunset Oct. 29th, giving us two full weeks to hunt these timber doodles. The daily bag limit is four, no duck stamp is necessary to hunt woodcock. Duck stamps must be affixed to your license and signed by you to legally hunt ducks or geese.

The partridge season opens on October 15 along with the duck, geese and woodcock, and may be hunted from sunrise to sunset from October 15 to Nov. 26, the bag limit is three birds in a day, 15 in a season.

On October 19th, that is the third Monday at 12 o'clock noon, pheasants, rabbits and squirrels may be hunted; pheasants 12 noon Oct. 19th to October 31st. No pheasant hunting on the Sunday in between.

Black and grey squirrels Oct. 19 at noon until Nov. 16.

Cottontail rabbits Oct. 19 at noon to Jan. 31.

Legal take of pheasants two in one day, six in a season.

Legal take of squirrels five in the aggregate, that is grey and black—no law on red squirrels.

Legal take of rabbits six in a day.

Possession of these game birds and animals five days after season closes.

Sunrise and sunset is figured on sun time or Standard Time, so remember we are on War Time and set yourself back one hour on both ends of the day.

As you go about the fields this season you will perhaps come in contact with a bird that is fairly new to these parts. Several years ago this area was stocked with a good many pair of Hungarian partridge or chucker partridge as they are called. These birds are about half way between a pheasant and our native grouse. You will not find these birds in the woods or brush. They are an upland bird and stay close to the open grain fields and may be raised in hunting pheasants. They go in coveys similar to quail. These birds are taking hold and are quite plentiful in this area. There is no open season on these birds and you might better let the game warden catch you with a hen pheasant than a Hun. So don't take them.

The department will now issue a junior license to hunt. Here is the new law:

The Junior Hunting License establishes a new opportunity for persons between the ages of 14-16 years of age to hunt game in the fields and woods of this State when in the company of a parent or legal guardian, or a person over 21 years of age designated by such parent or guardian.

However, a junior hunter and an adult hunter under this act may take only one legal bag limit between them.

The purpose of this bill was to enable parents or other qualified adults to train youngsters in the use of firearms in the field so that at 16 the age when they may obtain a regular hunting license, they will be better qualified to use firearms. This is also considered an important measure of national defense in that it trains the youth in the safe use of firearms.

The one thing to look out in taking out the junior with a license is to be sure the one that takes junior out is over 21 years of age and has the consent of the parents or guardian.

The safe use of firearms both in the field and in going to and from the hunting grounds, to climb fences safely and how to protect their hunting companions—also, no loaded guns in the car this year, not even in the magazine. And if you want to hunt ducks or geese have your magazine plugged to three-shell capacity if it is that kind of a gun. No plugs inserted from the rear of the magazine either. They must be plugged inside the spring and that leaves room for two in the magazine and one in the chamber.

Owing to the fact that a lot of our best hunters have signed with Uncle Sam to hunt rats in foreign countries and game being reported plentiful this year, hunters should have a real time if they can get to the fields and have the time, so take junior with you if you can or get some one else's junior to go along, as Uncle Sam says that the reason we can produce the best foreign rat hunters in the shortest time is due to the fact that most U. S. homes are equipped with a gun or two and a large percentage of our youth in the army already know a few things about the use of firearms.

Yours, R. E. SHAFF

Hunting Hours Clarified By Conservation Dept.

All Time Given in Laws Standard Time, Which Will Be Observed This Season.

Albany, Oct. 1.—It would appear from the numerous inquiries being received by the Conservation Department that some sportsmen are experiencing difficulty in determining what are the hours during which wildlife may be taken when such hours are fixed in the law.

To clarify the situation, Acting Conservation Commissioner John T. Gibbs has issued the following statement:

"The nation is operating on War Time and will continue so to operate until there is a change by Federal proclamation.

"In all cases where the shooting hour starts on the opening day of a given open season in the middle of the day, the hunting hours will be from 1 p. m. to 6 p. m., War Time.

"In all cases where the remaining days of the open season start in the morning and stop in the evening, the hours will be from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., War Time.

"In all cases where wildlife may be taken from sunrise to sunset on each day of the open season, sportsmen should be governed by the time of sunrise and sunset fixed by any standard almanac or government timetable for the area or county hunted. On each day of the open season on grouse or partridge and migratory birds hunting will start at sunrise and end at sunset. To illustrate how the sportsmen should figure out the starting and closing hours, take the case of grouse or partridge in the Albany area. The season opens October 1. On that date, according to the World Almanac for 1942, sunrise occurs at 5:51 a. m., Eastern Standard Time. Therefore, the sportsmen may start to take the species listed above at 6:51 a. m., War Time. Sunset on that date in the Albany area will occur at 5:38 p. m. Eastern Standard Time. Therefore, the sportsmen must stop hunting at 6:38 p. m. War Time. In other words, thruout the State sportsmen may start to take the above species of wildlife by their watches, one hour later than the time of sunrise stated in any reliable almanac.

"Fur bearing animals may be taken during any hour of the day or night on any day of the open season fixed therefor.

"Quadrupeds and birds not protected by law may be taken at any hour of the day or night at any time.

"Deer and bear may be taken on any day of the open season from 8 a. m., War Time to 6 p. m., War Time."
