There Is No Substitute For Experience

IN THESE hazardous times the Empire State surely needs qualified men of experience at the head of its government—men whose ability to conduct the affairs of our state has been tried and proven to be highly efficient.

The candidates on the Democratic ticket all have both the experience and proven ability to perform the duties of the various offices to which they have been nominated and their election will assure that the affairs of our state will be efficiently administered.

John J. Bennett, Jr., since his selection by Governor Roosevelt in 1930 as a candidate for Attorney General on the ticket which Mr. Roosevelt headed, has most efficiently filled that office, and has brought honor to the state as well as himself in the 12 years he has so faithfully served the people of New York State.—His record of accomplishments as Attorney General is unsurpassed in the entire history of our state.

As a veteran of World War 1, in which he enlisted as a private and was assigned to 77 Division, Jack Bennett qualified as a Pursuit Pilot and was discharged with the rank of First Lieutenant after 17 months of service. Following the war he became interested in the welfare of the disabled veterans of the war and has since spent countless hours in the organizing and maintenance of health havens for his comrades. He has served many years as president of the American Legion Mountain Camp at Tupper Lake.

Jack Bennett certainly possesses all the qualifications of a great war-time Governor—integrity, love of country, humanity, training, experience and ability.

Altho previous to the State Convention, Attorney-General Bennett did not have the blessing of President Roosevelt, the President, in a recent statement, said: "Of the three men in the race for the Governorship of New York, I shall cast my ballot for John Bennett, because I believe that he is the best qualified."

The other Democratic candidates, Charles Poletti for Lieutenant Governor, Henry Epstein for Attorney-General, Joseph V. O'Leary for Comptroller and Flora D. Johnson and Matthew J. Merritt for Representatives at Large, have all proven their ability thru years of service at Albany.

There is no substitute for experience.

Home Sweet Home

SOME wit has said that modern man has no need of a home. For he is born in a hospital, reared in a day nursery, married at the city hall, eats in a cafeteria, sleeps in an apartment, goes back to the hospital when he is sick, and is buried from an undertaker's parlors when he dies.

Beneath the exaggeration there is a truth which reveals a profound transition over the old days. Going and coming, but never staying long anywhere, modern man has accepted the "homeless" existence fashioned for him by social and economic pressures.

However, the backdrop of the ideal home still dominates our stage. And it is curious to observe how large a proportion of the modern appeal is to this ancestral memory of home.

That nest of "two rooms and a sink" called the apartment is always described as "home-like." The country club simply has to be "homey." The goal of the luncheon club is to make every member feel "at home." And poor indeed is the lunch wagon or roadside stand that does not boast "home cooking."

Our hours of love have wings, in absence, crutches.

The average work week is longer this Autumn than last and it will be longer next Autumn than at this time. You can blame it on the war.

Allegany county must not forget to buy its full share of War Bonds. While it is quite true that money will not win the war, it will make the war easier for our fighting men to win.

Ship-Shape

WHEN our sailors put a ship in fighting trim, the first thing they do is clear away everything that might get in the way. Rails, extra deck appurtenances, companionway obstructions if any, all are stowed or left ashore. And thereby hangs a tale.

More than 25,000 people are killed each year by falls, according to a report of the National Safety Council. Many more suffer injuries, mostly preventable. We may well take a leaf from the sailor's book and put our homes in fighting trim to help win the war.

Don't leave things on the stairs in your home, to be taken up the next time you go. Don't clutter up the cellar stairs with what ought to be hung on hooks or placed on shelves. Some other member of the family, even you yourself, may not see them and may suffer a fall. We've got to stay on our feet to win this war.

Barnum and Advertising

P. T. BARNUM may have had some of the weaknesses generally credited to showmen, but he was highly successful and he ran a good circus where you generally got your money's worth. A word of advice from the man who operated the "Greatest Show on Earth" is therefore apropos at the present time.

Here's a very pithy declaration from Barnum's own lips:

"Advertise, or the chances are that the sheriff will do it for you."

The Great Showman's estimate of the value of advertising is surely worth the attention of certain individuals, even some in high places, who are inclined to view it with contempt. Those who argue that advertising is a waste of money forget that it sells goods widely, helps to make mass production possible, and thus in the end leads to far lower prices for the average consumer.

Barnum understood these matters. It was perhaps when he ran into folks with a contrary view that he made a second famous remark: "There's one born every minute!"

Shoeleather Mileage

MORE than ever before one thinks now of walking as a means of getting from place to place. Many persons who never stirred from home without the car now walk downtown or to visit friends. In most cases they find it is not a hardship but a joy. The only drawback is the cut in speed.

If someone told you that you would have to walk 1,500 miles in the next 12 months you might call it a sentence nearly as bad as one to hard labor. But you would be wrong. In normal times, in nine cases out of ten, you would walk at least 1,000 miles in the ordinary pursuit of daily life and without realizing that you have been walking at all. Allowing for some increase in foot transportation, you'll walk that 1,500 miles next year, maybe more.

It's hard to believe sometimes, but steps pile up into miles pretty fast, whether you're at work or keeping house or just living. Ask someone who has had a temporary leg or foot injury how much walking is necessary to carry on daily activity. Don't be worried about more walking because of that well-known tire and gas situation. You already walk more than a thousand miles per year.

The more readers, the better an advertisement and, naturally, the more sales.

The individual who postpones a good deed is not putting off a bad deed.

Our own idea is that when the Japs are hit hard enough they will crack.

Two things you can do to help win the war: Contribute scrap and Buy a Bond.

The difference between the minds of human beings is that some work slowly and some not at all.

By doing a little scratching around, our piles of junk indicate that the Japs didn't get all the scrap when they sent ships to take loads of it from this section to Japan a few years ago. Fact is there seems to be enough scrap to take the scrap out of the Japs, and, we hope, leave them in such a state that they will not even have junk value.

Herr Hitler may fool the German people, but he isn't fooling many people in this country any more.

The Japanese are now beginning to wonder whether a flying start will be enough to win a prolonged race.

A Week of the War

The Senate passed legislation to lower the draft age from 20 to 18. The Senate bill did not conform with the one passed earlier by the House, however, so the legislation was sent to conference to adjust the differences.

Educational deferments in the Senate bill would be limited to high school students in the last half of their academic year. The Senate bill would also defer farmers and farm labor from military service wherever their induction would curtail agricultural production, until replacements could be found. The bill would exempt men from Selective Service induction after they have passed their forty-fifth birthdays.

The War Front

Five strong Japanese attempts to wipe out the American foothold on Guadalcanal Island have been beaten off by Marines and soldiers at a cost to the enemy of five tanks and heavy casualties, the Navy announced late October 25. Four attacks were launched during the night of October 23 and 24, paced by tanks and covered by a field artillery barrage, and the fifth attack was thrown back early the next morning. U. S. artillery, firing from emplacements in the dense jungle, were credited with a large share of the American success in the first real test of strength with the Japanese on the Island. In fighting at sea and over land in the Solomons area between October 13-25, 21 Japanese aircraft were destroyed and three damagaed, three vessels damaged and two probably damaged, with the loss of one U. S. airplane. Earlier the Navy reported the destroyers O'Brien and Meredith were lost in the Solomons as a result of enemy action.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Australia announced October 26 that Allied planes operating from Australia in support of American forces in the Solomons have delivered another heavy blow to Japanese shipping in Rabaul harbor, increasing their total sunk or damaged there to 100,000 tons in three days. A cruiser, destroyer and two cargo ships were believed definitely to have been sunk. Lt. Gen. Stilwell's Chinese headquarters reported American planes raided Hong Kong October 26 for the second time in two days and also dropped bombs on Japanese-held Canton.

U. S. Flying Fortresses destroyed nine German fighters in attacks on the Lorient submarine base and a Nazi airdrome near Cherbourg, Army Air Force headquarters in London announced. Three U. S. bombers were missing. The Navy announced the sinking of five more U. S. merchant vessels in the north Atlantic, four in July and one in September. U. S. Naval forces again raided the Gilbert Islands, sinking two patrol boats and damaging two larger vessels.

Prisoners of War

Secretary of War Stimson told his press conference that names of four captured U. S. fliers claimed in Tokyo propaganda broadcasts correspond closely to the names of four missing men, but stated the War Department had no information that the Japanese were failing to abide by international law and the Geneva Convention for the treatment of prisoners. Mr. Stimson said "some of the planes" in the raid on Tokyo encountered bad weather after they left Japan and were forced off their course. One landed in Siberia. Several others made forced landing at night in China," but no American plane was shot down. He said "a very few of the crews of these planes are carried on the list of missing. Some may have been forced down by the lack of gasoline in Japanese-controlled territory." Later the War Department announced the names of three other participants in the Tokyo raid "understood to be missing."

The Office of War Information said "secrecy was highly desirable in the hope of saving the lives and securing the freedom of certain crew members who crash in areas controlled by the enemy." Complete examination of the reasons for maintaining secrecy about the results of the raid cannot be made even yet, the OWI stated. Lives "of great value to the American cause" would be endangered by "the very explanation," the announcement said.

Rationing

Price Administrator Henderson ordered nationwide rationing of coffee, effective at midnight on November 28, on the basis of one pound each five weeks — about a cup a day — for all persons who were 15 years of age or older when they registered for sugar supplies on May 4-5. All retail sales of coffee will be frozen at midnight, November 21, for the week before rationing begins in order to permit merchants to stock their shelves. Consumers will not have to register to obtain coffee. They will use their sugar rationing book. To get the first coffee ration, the consumer will be required to surrender the last stamp — No. 28 — in the sugar book. Subsequent rations of coffee will be on coupons taken in sequence toward the center of the book.

Rubber Director Jeffers reported chemists would develop "within five or six months" a 100 per cent synthetic tire good for all but military and heavy truck duty, but such tires will be allotted for essential civilian driving only. The first large synthetic rubber plant will be opened at Institute, W. Va., sometime in December. "Sometime after mid-1943, we ought to have enough synthetic tires to make an appreciable difference in the situation regarding essential driving. Some time in 1944 we ought to have enough to begin to furnish tires to civilians for family use," he said. Special gasoline rations will be available for motorists who are away from home when nationwide mileage rationing begins, and special allowances will be made for motorists who must move their cars "in the event of a bona fide change of residence," but not for moves from summer to winter homes. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard said meat consumption of 2½ pounds a week per person would mean considerably less meat for persons "who have always had comfortable incomes" and more meat "for people whose purchasing power has increased only recently."

Manpower and Production

Federal Works Administrator Fleming directed State Administrators to reinterview and reclassify the 375,000 workers in WPA rolls with a view to expediting the program of putting qualified workers into war industry and farm jobs. The order will apply to all those waiting assignment to WPA. Under Secretary of War Patterson reported 4,000 experienced miners of copper and other vitally needed metals are receiving Army furloughs to relieve a labor shortage in that category. The men, who are being furloughed to the mines as civilians and who leave the Army on a volunteer basis, will be called back to active duty if they leave their jobs at the mines or if the need for them is eliminated, he said. War Secretary Stimson said the Army is studying a plan to return older soldiers to civilian life.

President Roosevelt told his press conference that the experiences of U. S. planes and tanks in actual combat have prompted a reduction in volume schedules in order to concentrate on heavier, more effective types of these war machines. While the number of tanks produced will be smaller than scheduled a year ago, the total production will have virtually the same weight, using the same steel tonnage as called for in the original, larger program. The President said the present program calls for fewer actual planes than planned a year ago, but that the decrease is being translated into more gun power, longer range and generally greater combat effectiveness.

The Current scrap drive has achieved "amazing results" and has raised steel production to 100 per cent, WPB Chairman Nelson reported. An order was issued by the WPB requiring more than municipalities to use their regular trash collection equipment to collect and segregate scrap cans as part of a campaign to recover 1,0000,000 tons of steel and 10,000 tons of pure tin from tin cans. The Board announced "hosiery that can be repaired or mended for further use is not being asked for by the Government. Only after hosiery is discarded as being completely unusable should it be placed aside for salvage purposes."
