Silver Disquisition at Chautauqua.

More than 3,000 people listened to a joint debate on free silver at Chautauqua Saturday afternoon. The speakers were I. E. Dean, known as "Farmer" Dean of Honeoye Falls, N. Y., a politician of the Farmers' Alliance, and Representative Michael D. Harter of Mansfield, Ohio. Senator Stewart of Nevada had been engaged to appear in support of the resolution, but he telegraphed that it was impossible to come, and agreed to have "Farmer" Dean represent him.

"Farmer" Dean opened the discussion with a spirited defense of free coinage. He quoted the Act of 1837 establishing coinage of both metals in the ratio of 1 to 15. "As a result of this," he said, "from 1837 to 1873, when the act was repealed, there was never a time when silver was not at a premium of at least two cents over gold. In 1873 they demonetized silver. Why for the dollar of our daddies did they give us a stranger known as the trade dollar? I want to ask friend Harter that."

"Probably, to oblige Senator Stewart," replied Mr. Harter, which raised a laugh at Dean's expense.

Mr. Dean then referred to the fact that there was not enough gold to do the business of the country, and said: "Why, God Almighty was a bimetalist. He put gold and silver together so that we can hardly mine the one without the other."

Mr. Harter then spoke upon the negative. He referred to the fact that silver was first universally used, but today only China, Mexico and Dahomey accorded with the views of Mr. Dean. He pointed out that the volume of currency did not determine prosperity. "In continental days, when money was plentiful, to buy a barrel of flour took a basketful of money, and everybody was bankrupt." He said that in England today money could be borrowed to get it at 40 per cent. Here Mr. Dean interrupted him to ask why English capitalists did not loan their money here.

"Because," said Mr. Harter, "they are afraid, from what you silver men say, that you would pay them a Yankee trick and pay them in dollars worth fifty cents." (Applause.)

"Before 1873," he continued, "the chief use of a silver dollar was to bore a hole in the middle, put a string in it, and give it to the baby to cut his teeth on; and silver has never been so useful since."

"Senator Stewart himself voted for the Sherman act, and now cries 'Stop thief' to cover up his own tracks."

Then "Farmer" Dean took the platform and gave a heated argument in defense of his position.

Some keen personal thrusts passed between the debaters, and good points were loudly applauded on both sides. No judges were chosen and no attempt made to decide upon the merits of the debate.

Glycerine Kills a Bolivar Man.

Last Saturday's Bolivar Beebe says: Merton F. Van Curen, a Bolivar shooter, was blown up by a glycerine explosion at Lanceiot, nine miles from Pittsburg, yesterday morning. He was but 20 years old. He was in the employ of his brother, C. M. Van Curen, general agent for the Columbian Powder Co., and an experienced shooter. The unfortunate young man was a brother of Warren Van Curen, another shooter who resides in Bolivar. The message bringing the sad news was received in Bolivar at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. A later message stated that the remains would be brought to Bolivar, arriving here this afternoon. Neither message gave any particulars.

Merton Van Curen was a bright young man and well known in Bolivar. He was an experienced shooter, and more careful than either of his brothers in handling explosives. In company with his brother, C. M. Van Curen, he attended the races in Bolivar on July 4th and 5th, and expected to return here next month.
