John Ruskin has never been ranked among the so-called "temperance fanatics," but few have ever used stronger language than he in the following: "Drunkenness is not only the cause of crime, but it is crime; and if any encourage drunkenness for the sake of the profit derived from the sale of drink, they are guilty of a form of moral assassination as criminal as any that has been practiced by the bravest of any country or any age."

Major Hudson, of the Topeka, Kan., Capital, gave an address before the State Convention of the Grand Army of the Republic, last week, during which he read a dispatch from Mother Bickerdyke, the well known army nurse, asking the old soldiers to vote for the equal suffrage amendment. "Is there a soldier here who will not vote to make his helpmate his equal before the law?" he asked, and there was a great chorus of "noes."
