Less Turkeys Raised This Year

Albany, Sept. 7. The 492,000 turkeys raised in New York this season are 16 per cent less than the 1945 total, though well in excess of numbers before that year and 26 per cent above the 1938-42 average. The 1946 slump is attributed to the shortage of feed during the spring hatching season and the early uncertainty of feed supplies and prices during the growing period, according to a Federal-State report issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. With the expectation that adequate feed grains will be available from the 1946 harvest and a larger proportion of the birds will be marketed before Thanksgiving than heretofore, an abundant supply of turkeys for this festive occasion seems assured.

Cranberry Crop Good

Cranberries, traditionally associated with turkeys from early colonial days, promise a 1946 crop of 788,100 barrels in the five commercial states, 20 per cent in excess of the 1945 production and 26 per cent more than the 1935-44 average.
