Pupils to Receive Original Poem Collection

Who says young children cannot compose poems about various subjects such as animals, birds, the seasons and books?

The fourth grade pupils, inspired by their teacher, Miss Ruth Baker, contributed so many delightful lines of poetry that an attractive little booklet called "Original Poems by Fourth Grade Students" will be presented to each child at the close of school.

The poem collection contains the best poems of all pupils in the grade and is being presented with the compliments of Miss Baker, who has succeeded in making poem writing an enjoyable project for her fourth grade pupils.

Junior-Seniors Enjoy Banquet

Monday evening, June 9th at 6:30 p. m., the Juniors and Seniors and their teachers gathered in the ACS cafeteria to enjoy the annual Junior-Senior banquet.

The menu included a tomato juice appetizer, roast beef, potatoes and gravy, Harvard beets, celery, carrot sticks, rolls and coffee or milk.

Mr. Kessler gave an inspiring talk about the value of education in our country and compared it with the countries in Europe. Following Mr. Kessler, Doris Wintemberg, president of the Senior Class and Pat Dolan, vice president of the Junior class, delivered short speeches.

The dinner was followed by dancing in the gymnasium to the music of Audrey Baker and Rose Marie Baker at the piano.

A very enjoyable time was had by all and I know that the present Juniors will look forward to the next year's banquet when they will be present as Seniors. PAL

Baby Sitting

Mary Ellen Driscoll

Now that the war is over and gas rationing is off, many people want to go out and have a good time again. This leads to the problem of who will stay with baby. This is where baby sitting comes in. If you really put your heart into the job, it is an easy way to earn money.

Most older people hire baby sitters because they can be trusted with the baby.

Some girls had the attitude that the minute the folks leave the house they should call up the gang and have a regular "old hoedown." What about the baby? The baby? Oh, yes, well he'll just be popped into bed, the lights turned off and the door closed. He'll be all right. The people did not hire you for this sort of work. If you shirk your job they will not hire you again.

I'm sure most people don't mind if you have one or two people come in, but they do object to a whole house full. You really can't blame them, can you? It is their home and they don't appreciate having the girl they hired and her friends go thru it and look everything over. If the baby sitter would make it clear to her guests that this wasn't her house and that they shouldn't be having a "free for all" in it, most intelligent people would understand. Of course, there are some exceptions. There is the person who insists on making noise and having a good time looking the house over. When one of these friends come to call, I'd suggest not to let them in.

Often when the people want to go out they happen to employ shirkers who are afraid of work. The employer asks them to put Junior to bed and please do the few dishes. Yes, they would be glad to, but first they have to call someone to see if anything new has come up. Since it takes approximately two and a half hours to find this out they cannot do justice to Junior. So he goes to bed with a dirty face and no bottle. He cries and cries and the "baby sitter" found out that in her haste to get him to bed she didn't pin one diaper. The pin was sticking into him. He keeps on crying because he is hungry. Finally she takes him up. "Junior" goes to sleep, but when mother looks at him! "Good heavens! He looks as if he's been drawn thru a rat hole." She goes down to fix him some milk, after waking and getting him properly ready for bed, to find that the dishes weren't done. Yes it could have been a good steady job for that "shirker", but it's too late now to do anything about it.

So, girls, remember, if you ever need some cash, you could have it if you didn't shirk your work and faced your responsibility as you should.

Uniform Price For May Milk Set at $3.54

Dairy farmers will be paid a uniform price of $3.54 per hundredweight for May deliveries to the New York milkshed's 432 pool-approved plants, it is announced by the office of the market administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area. The uniform price in May, 1946, was $3.33 per hundredweight but a minimum subsidy of 55 cents per hundredweight increased the return to producers to $3.88, or 34 cents higher than for this year.

A producer butterfat differential of six cents for each tenth of a pound of fat above or below the 3.5 percent standard was also announced.

Despite the loss to the pool this May of 1,392 producers, total production was up 7,839,828 pounds, or 1.3 per cent, over a year ago. Last month 46,176 producers delivered 633,524,959 pounds of milk, compared with a total of 625,685,131 pounds delivered by 47,568 producers in May, 1946.

Altho production was up in May the consumption of fluid milk declined 5.6 percent from the same month a year ago. Sales of fluid milk last month were 293,290,595 pounds, while in May 1946, they were 310,688,147 pounds, or 17,397,552 pounds greater. Utilization of milk as fluid cream in the marketing area rose 5,000,180 pounds from 55,576,362 pounds in May, 1946, to 60,576,532 pounds last month, an increase of nine percent.

The total farm value of last month's production is $23,031,155.587, made up of $22,426,783.55 at the uniform price of $3.54 per hundredweight, and $604,372.32 in location and butterfat premiums.

Cut Hay Early to Get More Milk

The surest way to get the maximum amount of milk from hay is to cut it early, according to agronomists at Cornell University. They report that early cut hay has more leaves, a higher protein content, greener color, less woodiness, more vitamins, better taste, better odor. Because this hay is high quality, cows eat more of it, Prof. S. R. Aldrich points out.

Early cutting may be as important a factor in quality as the kind of hay, he says. Much of New York's hay crop is grass. If it is cut early and well cured to get highest quality, it may be more valuable than legume hay cut late or badly weathered.

The time to cut hay is when the legumes are ready and the grasses will take care of themselves. Alfalfa stands may be reduced if cut before the 1-10 blossom stage. Prof. Aldrich advises starting to cut this year by June 20 in the late sections. If the weather is not favorable for making dry hay at this time, or if rain begins during haying, make grass silage, he says.
