We can foresee changes of tremendous social significance in the days ahead, but we don't expect anything to happen that hasn't happened before.

Little jars with screw tops that mayonnaise and pickles come in make ideal containers for canned fruit, salad or pudding in school lunches.

Potato Shopping

Potato shopping is an art, not a routine job. There's not much point in buying just any old potato. If you're going to get your money's worth of potatoes, they should be really good ones. Potatoes of poor quality won't keep so well nor taste so good.

A good potato should be fairly large and definitely clean. Watch for cracks and for any evidence of dry rot or blight or spoilage. The best potatoes will be firm and well-shaped and won't have any green spots or sprouts.

So, look your potatoes over before you buy. Tell your grocer you want only the good grades.

Wanted—Waste Fat

During the holiday time when you may do extra roasting and frying—save that excess fat. The supply is still far below domestic and world needs. Homemakers did a wonderful job from 1942 to 1947 and turned in 625,872,767 pounds of waste fat.

You are now asked to keep up the good work. In addition, depending on the locality, your butcher will pay from 11 to 16 cents a pound for the waste fat.

Dodge Dirt—Don't Just Wash

Don't wash blankets any oftener than necessary, warn home economics specialists.

But you should take care to keep them from getting dirty. For instance, turn back the sheets far enough to protect the top where blankets are most apt to soil. Or baste a strip of cloth across the top.

When you make the beds, don't just drag the blankets off onto the floor. Fold them loosely and throw them over a chair.

Better Health For Children

A Community Service Issued by Children's Hospital of Buffalo, N. Y.

Sections of Western New York are now in the midst of an epidemic of ringworm of the scalp. The purpose of this column this week is to call attention to the basic facts regarding the disease and outline methods of control which, if promptly and adequately followed, can bring this epidemic under control and protect your children.

Prior to 1940, most of the cases of ringworm of the scalp seen were the type which, produces an inflammatory reaction, with the development of small sores containing pus. Fortunately, most of these cases can be cured by clipping the hair, washing daily with soap and water, and the adequate application daily of any one of several antiseptic ointments.

However, in the present epidemic of ringworm of the scalp, this type of infection is responsible for only about 3% of the total number. The other 97% of the cases are caused by a different organism which produces a chronic, long-lasting infection.

This type of ringworm of the scalp infection begins in small patches which spread slowly over the scalp. These patches are dry, flaky, and silvery in appearance. Very shortly after the infection is present, the hair begins to fall off the infected area, and many short stubby dead hairs can be seen in the area involved. The school doctor, or you own physician, is able to diagnose the condition rapidly by means of a special lamp.

Unfortunately, this type of ringworm of the scalp cannot be effectively or adequatelyy treated at home without special treatments ordered by your physician. The most effective treatment is to get rid of all the infected hair roots which means removal of the hair. X-ray does this the most effectively, and without pain. Since ringworm of the scalp spreads quickly from child to child, a child should not be allowed in school after a diagnosis of ringworm of the scalp has been made until your doctor gives permission, and until the condition has been made non-infectious to others.

Your suggestions for subjects to be discussed in this column will be welcomed by Children's Hospital.

Teacher: "How far is it, do you think, from Dan to Beersheba?"

Member of Adult Class: "Do you mean to say that Dan and Beersheba are towns?"

"Certainly."

"That's one on me, all right. I thought they were husband and wife, like Sodom and Gomorrah."

Alfred Station 4-H Boy Wins Trip to New York City Poultry Show

Ralph Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold N. Allen of Alfred Station, has been named county poultry champion and will receive a free trip to the Madison Square Garden Poultry Show, financed by the Allegany County Fair Association.

Ralph has 188 Red Rock Cross pullets and showed three blue ribbon winners at the county fair.

Second placing went to George Lewis of Almond who will receive a locally sponsored trip to New York City. Besides visiting the famed Madison Square Garden Show and taking part in the judging contest, the group will have an opportunity to visit the Empire State Building, Hayden Planetarium, several radio shows, Radio City, Borden County Fair radio show and a flight over New York City for those who are interested in the trip. A guided tour of the city is also one of the most educational features of the trip. A banquet, as guests of Dairy Mills, Inc., Olean, is being arranged.

Champion R. I. Red cockerel of Allegany county is being shown by individual club member Joan Lilly of Belfast, and champion pullet by Eugene Gregorious of Canaseraga, a member of Lucius Fenton's club.
