

THE ANDOVER NEWS

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

HAMILTON C. NORRIS, EDITOR

ANDOVER, N. Y., Jan. 17, 1894.

A certain Judge Norton, who made a vow in 1844 never to have his hair cut until Henry Clay became President, died the other day. Although the judge did not get his hair cut for fifty years, he never became a woman suffragist.

Death seems to have been on a special hunt for the song makers of late. A composer of a number of minstrel songs was taken from a comfortable and comparatively luxurious home, while the composer of a popular hymn died in a Kansas jail where he had been given lodging. He was a tramp.

The Democratic County Committee met last week and organized by electing Elba Reynolds of Belmont chairman and A. E. Cowles of Wellsville secretary. The following is the Executive Committee: Elba Reynolds, A. E. Cowles, F. C. Mulkin, P. H. Kelley, A. C. Middaugh, James McMillan, Michael Holland.

Though but little has been printed concerning the work of the war records office of the War Department, yet, says the Baltimore Herald, this has been a tremendous task. Forty-nine volumes, of nearly a thousand pages each, are completed, and furnish the most accurate history ever published of a nation's internecine war. The work has been impartially done. Besides the five Union officers employed, two Confederate general officers have always been engaged in editing the war archives pertaining to the dead confederacy.

A notable relic of Revolutionary times discovered at Lancaster, Pa., a few days ago, is the field and camp order book in which Gen. Sullivan made record of his march in the summer of 1779 from New York to Wyoming, and up the Susquehanna Valley. He was in pursuit of the Tories and Indians under Brant and Capt. Butler, to avenge the massacres at Forty Fort and Wyoming. This expedition resulted in a breaking up of the Six Nations. The book was found among some papers that had belonged to Capt. Meyer, who was Gen. Sullivan's orderly in that campaign.

A French merchant, a millionaire at the time of his death, left his property to a friend on condition that when he was buried a sum of $100,000 should be placed in his coffin. The executor was in no mind to comply with the precise terms of the whimsical request, but was at his wits' end to discover some means of defeating it. A happy thought, however, came at last. He placed a check for $100,000, payable to the dead man, in the coffin, and in telling of his ruse to his friends, for the story was too good to keep, announced that he is quite prepared to honor the check when the payee presents it. Which gives rise to the reflection by the New York Sun that dodging dead men is easier far than waiting for their shoes.

HOW TO ADVERTISE.

The man who wrote the following struck the nail exactly on the right spot:

"Advertising a business certainly pays. Otherwise why do the largest and best concerns in this and all other countries set aside a certain sum each year for advertising their business, the same as they do for insurance, for rent, for taxes, etc? But spasmodic advertising, a little here and a little there, produces but small results and has led more than one merchant to question the virtue of advertising. The man who keeps 'everlastingly at it' is the one who makes advertising pay, and this alone is the key to the secret. Do not throw all of your money, into one immense display, but buy a certain space, change the matter often, make it bright and interesting, and good results will be sure to follow."

Bob Ingersoll has laid his pagan lectures aside and made the life and character of Abraham Lincoln his star lecture. The change is a good one.

Senator Higgins' name is found on the following committees: Finance, chairman of Taxation and Retrenchment, Grievances, chairman of Joint Library. Assemblyman Robbins is a member of the following committees: General Laws, Excise, Claims, and Indian Affairs.

The Book of the Fair.

Those who attended the World's Fair at Chicago will of course want a printed work descriptive of the great Exposition. It will refresh their memory, and give them ideas concerning what they witnessed which could not be obtained in a brief visit to the Exposition. In fact a visit to the Fair can be at best but partially satisfying unless a work of reference is in the possession of the visitor. Those who did not go, will surely want a work descriptive of this most gigantic of American enterprises. By far the best thing we have seen in the shape of a history and description of the Fair is the "Book of the Fair," published by the Bancroft Company, Auditorium Building, Chicago, Ill. It is as complete as the Exposition itself. It is the most perfect reproduction of the Grand Display that has been made, or that can be made. The 1,000 imperial folio pages which the work is to contain will be packed with all that is most interesting to read and best worth preserving, while the illustration are in the highest art. "The Book of the Fair" presents the entire Exposition within reasonable limits, in a clear and condensed manner, and in permanent form. He who has this book has the Fair always with him, and may draw from it as from a living spring of learning.

The work is to be completed in 25 numbers of 40 imperial pages each, paper, pictures and printing all of the very finest that can be made.

We advise our readers to secure this work in preference to any other that has been published. Full information as to its price, terms, etc. may be obtained of the publishers whose address is given above.

For February has all the delicacy and superiority of design that characterize its illustrations. The magazine is a mentor of fashion which ladies have learned to trust. The dress-maker relies upon it for models of dainty sleeves, tasteful garnitures and other important details of the costume which she can find no where else. The mother regards it with favor because of the attention it bestows upon the children as well as upon everything pertaining to dress that a household requires. Fancy dresses and evening gowns compose part of the contents of this number which can be obtained from all newsdealers, or direct from Toilettes Publishing Co., 126 West 23d St., New York. Single copies 15 cents. Yearly subscriptions $1.50.

Vick's Floral Guide, 1894.

It contains descriptions that describe, not mislead; illustrations that instruct, not exaggerate. 112 pages filled with many new novelties of value as well as all the old leading varieties of flowers and vegetables. We advise our friends who intend doing anything in the garden this year to consult Vick before starting operations. Send 10 cents to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., for Vick's Guide, it costs nothing, as you can deduct the 10 cents from the first order. It certainly will pay you.

The Golden Secret of Long Life.
