

REBELS GAIN ON LAND

All of the State of Parana in Their Hands.

A Big Force Invading Sao Paulo and Sweeping Back the Scattering Government Forces—The People Show No Inclination to Fight, But Openly Urge Compromise—Several Battles.

New York, Feb. 19.—A special from Sao Paulo, Brazil, via Galveston, says: President Peixoto's most ardent adherents now admit that all the state of Parana is in the hands of the rebels. Admiral Melho's expedition from Parana took Curitiba and has since been joined by 2,000 federalist troops from Rio Grande do Sul and Santa Catharina. This combined force is now invading the state of Sao Paulo and is sweeping back the scattering forces which the government had guarding the frontier. These weak detachments make scarcely any resistance to the invaders. Already two engagements have been fought. There have also been six skirmishes. In every instance the government troops were defeated.

At present Gen. Lapa's forces, with but 60 days' rations, defend the frontier. This force numbers but 1,200 men, and it is expected that Sao Paulo de Itarare will fall.

Alarmed at the news of insurgent successes, President Peixoto ordered 1,200 more men, including the 35th cavalry and 16th battalion of the national guard, together with the 20th regiment of the Sao Paulo infantry and two artillery companies from Rio to start immediately for the frontier and re-inforce Gen. Lapa's defending force. Two companies of local volunteers will follow.

Notwithstanding the insurgent victories the people of the state are not enthusiastic and show no inclination to fight. They openly urge President Peixoto to compromise with the enemy.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 19.—The government dynamite cruiser Nietheroy has arrived here alone and anchored outside the harbor.

U. P.'s Famous Wage Scale.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—A special to a morning paper from Massillon, Ohio, says: General solicitor Joan M. Taunton and the receivers of the Union Pacific will meet in New York this week and discuss the advisability of withdrawing the new wage schedule. It is a well-known fact that Judge Caldwell's decision was that he thought best to give the men a choice, and that if Judge Dundy and the receivers withdrew or revoked the wage position granted by Judge Dundy, that he should come to Omaha and meet both the representatives of the employees and the receivers. The petition will not be withdrawn, nor will there be any move made until after the New York conference. Judge Thurston said that he could not say anything further about the subject until his return from New York.

Forcing Miners to Terms.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—A special to a morning paper from Massillon, Ohio, says: Every mine in the Massillon district has shut down to remain closed, so the operators have formally declared, until the 3,000 miners dependent upon them for employment concede to the terms demanded. The trouble was precipitated one week ago, when, without warning, the operators issued an ultimatum naming Feb. 19 as the last date they would pay prevailing prices, and that thereafter the men must accept Jackson county wages or none at all.

Fight With Daring Safe Burglars.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 19.—An attempt to rob the safe of the Adams Express company at Thompsonville, Conn., was made early yesterday morning and James Nail, the night telegraph operator, who surprised the three burglars in the act of blowing open the safe, was roughly handled, receiving a shot in the groin and being struck over the head with a chisel. The burglars escaped without securing any booty of importance.

Two Big Factories Resume Operations.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—A special to a morning paper from Racine, Wis., says: Two of Racine's largest factories have just resumed work. The J. I. Case Threshing Machine works started with 500 men and will soon put on the full force of 1,000 men. The Mitchell & Lewis Wagon works has also started with 450 men and will gradually increase the force.

Big Wooden Bridge Burned.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 19.—The covered wooden landing bridge across the Rahitah river at the north end of this city was destroyed by fire yesterday. The fire was caused by the explosion of the naphtha lamps used for lighting the bridge. The structure was 80 feet long. The loss is $30,000; insurance $15,000.

Another Fire at the Fair Grounds.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Another of the too frequent World's fair fires occurred yesterday afternoon in the east wing of the Illinois state building. It was undoubtedly of incendiary origin; but was promptly put out. Joseph Hallik, a fireman, fell three feet from the building, but escaped with slight injuries.

Paul Jones Returns to Boston.

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—Paul Jones, the globe trotter, came here from Providence by special train yesterday, the run of 44 miles being made in 42 minutes. He appeared at a benefit given Joan J. Bramham at the Park theater last night and took the midnight Sagre line for Providence.

THE POPE IN ST. PETERS.

He Celebrates the Final Mass of His Jubilee Year—Vast Attendance.

Rome, Feb. 19.—More than 100,000 persons gathered at St. Peter's between 9:40 and 11 o'clock yesterday to see the pope celebrate the last mass of his jubilee year. During the mass the pope wore the mitre given him by the German emperor, and afterward the tiara presented to him by Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria-Hungary. He looked exceptionally well and his voice was clear and strong. The mass was attended by pilgrims from all parts of Italy, many tourists.

POPE LEO XIII.
majority of the diplomats in Rome and a host of Italian noblemen and Knights of Malta. The pope was borne to the altar on the sedia gestatoria, preceded by cardinals and bishops. At the conclusion of the mass His Holiness intoned the Te Deum, the vast congregation responding. Deafening was the cheers when the pope entered and left the church.

JERSEY'S SENATORIAL MUDDLE.

No End of Confusion Certain Unless the Matter is Settled Soon.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 19.—The seventh week of the legislative deadlock opens without any better prospect of a termination of the difficulty than that existing at the commencement of the trouble. He foresees tremendous confusion in state affairs if the middle is not straightened out. The trying up of the court of chancery is well-nigh a certainty, bringing untold hardship to hundreds and probably thousands of litigants. Chancellor Mitchell's term expires May 1 and no interim successor to him can be appointed so long as the legislature is not in recess. The term of George B. Swain, the republican state treasurer-elect begins on March 7 next, but how he is going to get the office is a conundrum, and this applies as well to the case of William S. Hanes, whose term as state comptroller begins March 15. Neither will get a commission from the governor, and unless they produce these the present incumbents of those offices will not retire from them.

New Railroad Line.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—Ex-Senator Henry G. Davis, president of the West Virginia Central & Pittsburg road, was in this city Saturday in conference with contractors relative to the construction of a new line of road to extend from Cumberland, Md., to Hagerstown, Md., a distance of 78 miles. The new road will connect with the Pennsylvania line at Cumberland Valley branch and will be of great importance to both the West Virginia Central and the Pennsylvania. The financial arrangements have all been completed and there only remains now the awarding of the contracts and the construction of the road.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Mark Twain, the veteran humorist, has signed a contract by which he is to appear in public as a reader of his own works in conjunction with James Whitcomb Riley in Madison Square garden concert hall, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Feb. 26 and 27. A programme consisting of sketches from their own works will be given. Mark Twain long ago retired from the platform, and his many admirers will be delighted to hear of his coming appearance with Riley. The two are great friends and have long contemplated a joint appearance.

No Occasion for the Suits.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—General Secretary-Treasurer Hayes, of the Knights of Labor, states that there is no reason for Messrs. Poppo, A. W. Wright and Devin bringing suits against the order. Bills are presented by the three men and the bills are held merely for examination and approval by the executive board. "The day before the suits were brought one of the men was here and got some money," said Mr. Hayes, "and I can see nothing in the movement except a desire to injure the order."

Fishing Boats in Danger.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—A fleet of small crab-fishing boats, manned by fishermen, are icebound at Parkertown N. J., and it is feared they will be carried out to sea when the ice breaks up by the tide, as the anchors are not heavy enough to hold the boats. The men put in at Parkertown to take refuge from the storm a few days ago.

VERY PERILOUS WORK

Rescuers at Plymouth Risking Their Own Lives.

Considerable Headway Made in the Past Twelve Hours—Believed That the Entombed Men's Bodies are Under Debris On Top of Which One of the Rescuers Gained By Crawling.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 19.—Superintendent Edwards, who has charge of the night shift of rescuers, has completed a heroic act, at the same time taking his life in his own hands. He crawled through an open place situated near the roof on the plane in the Gaylord mine on his hands and knees with only a safety lamp hanging by his side to give what little light there could be had. He managed to get over 300 feet further in the mine than any other person that has so far dared to venture. On returning he said that he was of the opinion he had been near the spot where the entombed men were supposed to be, but others think that he was on top of the debris and the men under.

It is reported that the rescuers have reached a place in the shaft 350 feet from the foot of the plane and they find the cross-headings almost clear. Five brave miners went into this portion and made a thorough search for the men. Superintendent Ross, who has charge of the day shift, is of the opinion that the men should be found very soon if they are in the place where they are supposed to be. Supt. McFarlan says, from the knowledge of the disaster, the men are beyond doubt dead, and he can see no chance where they had any avenue of escape from under the fall, which was 600 yards in length.

The work of rescue is attended with the greatest danger, is the fall of coal and rock continues, and it will be surprising if some of the rescuers are not buried under tons of falling rock before the work is finished.

NO LACK OF HOSPITALITY.

Atlanta Anxious for the Opportunity of Welcoming the G. A. R.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—"I have received a number of letters," said Representative Livingston, of Georgia, "asking me if there would be any lack of hospitality in Atlanta to the veterans of the grand army of the republic should decide to hold their encampment there. I have answered them all, that if the encampment is held at Atlanta the grand army men will get the warmest and most hospitable reception they have had since the organization was formed. The idea that the old soldiers who wore the grey and the boys who have grown up since the war have any prejudice against the veterans of the grand army is a great mistake. Why should these grand army men hesitate about going to Atlanta, when they will remember the royal welcome given to William T. Sherman, the man who laid the city in ashes?"

Chicago's Snow Riots.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Quite a large force of police are still patrolling the scene of the snow riots on West 18th street, but their presence yesterday afternoon did not prevent a mob gathering on the street and making another attack on the street car company's employees who were protecting the tracks and drifts on the snow piles and the work which had been carried on all night. The rioters increased in numbers during the afternoon and received every passing car with jeers and a fusillade of snow balls. They were finally dispersed by the police. Several persons were injured.

He Thawed Out the Dynamite.

EDGEMONT, Kas., Feb. 19.—A man engaged in sinking a well through rock on a farm owned by Jacob Smith near here, placed a stick of dynamite in the cook stove oven to thaw out and went away, apparently forgetting where the dangerous explosive had been placed. Mrs. Smith and her daughter-in-law soon afterward went to work in the kitchen, unaware of the danger they were in. The dynamite soon thawed and exploded, blowing the stove into atoms, wrecking a portion of the house and seriously wounding both women.

To Eight the Match Trust.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—A special from Spring City, Pa., says: A match factory, the largest in the world, is to be constructed in Chicago by a Pennsylvania firm, of which Samuel Wagner, of South Coventry, will be a member. They will fight the match trust, and claim to have patents on a machine that will box matches cheaper by thirty cents a gross than the trust can do.

Tariff Schemes in France.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—The chamber of deputies has passed the grain tariff bill through its first reading. This is the measure which proposes to place an import duty of seven francs per quintal on foreign wheat. In the debate Jean Jaurès, socialist deputy, developed a plan by which the government alone would import grain and sell it at prices fixed annually by a commission of experts.

Efforts at Arbitration.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 19.—The state board of arbitration is to come here today to endeavor to settle the Washington mills strike, and the strikers in the several departments have submitted wage schedules which they will accept.

Bath Iron Works.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Feb. 19.—A representative of the Bath iron works is expected here next week to look over the field and consult New London capitalists regarding the removal of that establishment to this city.

A Big Business in Broken Glass.

"The business of buying broken plate glass," said J. L. Lightfoot, "is assuming vast proportions. It has arisen as an outgrowth of the plate-glass insurance plans, and is being rapidly developed. Plate-glass insurance is of comparatively recent origin, and was a little slow in building up, but it is now a very important feature of the insurance business, and several large companies with ample capital are competing for this class of risks. At first a broken plate was a total loss, as it had also always been in the glass factories, but it soon began to be utilized, and now the insurance companies and the glassworks have no trouble in disposing of the fragments. These are recut into a large number of ways, the principal one, of course, being into smaller panes and ornamental shapes. In addition to these paperweights and other articles are made. Small diamond-shaped panes of plate glass for front doors and for tunnel windows are very popular, and afford a good profit to the concerns that make them, and these are almost invariably pieces of some large plate that was broken. An accident to a plate-glass window no longer results in a total loss."—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Why Chinese Feared a Railroad.

Railroad making is beset with unforeseen obstacles in China. A line is being made from the interior of Manchuria to the coast, and it was lately proposed to make a junction with Moukden, the chief town. The engineers consulted the Tartar general, and the general, before giving his sanction, consulted the geomancers, who declared that if the line were laid along the proposed track the verbera of the dragon that encircles the city would be broken by the nails of the sleepers. Such a contingency was too awful to contemplate and the general promptly informed the engineers that the thing was impossible. The latter, in despair, lodged a protest with Li Hung Chang, who while commending the caution of his subordinates, expressed it as his opinion that the hidden dragon would suffer no harm, rather otherwise by the innovation. However, he would refer the matter to the emperor. This struck terror into the heart of the general, and he again consulted the geomancers. Eventually a line was traced some hundreds of yards away from the site at first proposed.—Indian Engineering.

A Stone in the Trunk of a Tree.

Mr. Hale, while sawing up a large beech tree for wood, which had been felled, struck something that caused his saw to assume a rather bashful attitude, and upon examination he found a small rock bedded near the heart. The tree was perfectly sound from bottom to top, and the rock was near twenty feet from the ground.—[Dade (Ga.) News.]

ROMANCE OF A HELMET.

"But uncle, I love my cousin!" "Get out!" "Give her to me." "Don't bother me!" "It will be my death!" "Nonsense! you'll console yourself with some other girl." "Pray—" My uncle, whose back had been to me, whirled round, his face red and bursting and brought his closed fist down upon the counter with a heavy thump. "Never!" he cried; "never! Do you hear what I say?" And as I looked at him beseeching and with joined hands he went on: "A pretty husband you look like! without a son, and dreaming of going to housekeeping! A nice mess I would make of it by giving you my daughter! It's no use your insisting, you know that when I have said 'No,' nothing under the sun can make me say 'Yes!'" I ceased to make any further appeal. I knew my uncle—about as headstrong an old fellow as could be found in a day's search. I contented myself with giving vent to a deep sigh, and then went on with furbishing of my big double-headed sword, rusty from point to hilt. This memorable conversation took place, in fact, in the shop of my maternal uncle, a well-known dealer in antiquities and objects d'art, 53 Rue des Capucines, at the sign of the Maltese Cross—a perfect museum of curiosities. The walls were hung with Marbles and old Rouen china, facing ancient cuirasses, sabres and muskets and picture frames; below these were ranged old cabinets, coffers of all sorts and statues of saints, one or two on one-legged for the most part, and dilapidated as to their gilding; and here and there, in glass cases, were emeraldly sealed and locked, there were knickknacks in infinite variety—ebony trinkets, tiny urns, rings, precious stones, fragments of marble, bracelets, crosses, necklaces, models and miniature ivory statues, the yellow tints of which, in the sun took momentarily a flesh-like transparency. Time out of mind the shop had belonged to the Cornuberts. It passed regularly from father to son, and my uncle—his neighbors said—could not be the possessor of a nice little fortune. Held in esteem by all—a municipal councillor, impressed by the importance and gravity of his office, short, fat, highly choleric and as strong, but at bottom not in the least degree an unkind sort of man—such was my uncle Cornubert, my only living male relative, who as soon as I left school elevated me to the dignity of chief and only clerk of the shop man of the "Maltese Cross."
