

THE ANDOVER NEWS

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

HAMILTON C. NORRIS, EDITOR

ANDOVER, N. Y., Feb. 21, 1894.

A difficult task—to believe that every vote cast in Congress is meant to be for the welfare of the country.

It seems strange that office holders never discover how very enjoyable private life is until after they make the acquaintance of "ex".

The fate of the British House of Lords is interwoven with that of the crown. If one falls the other cannot stand, and neither rests upon a very secure foundation.

Hon. A. J. McLaurin, the new Senator from Mississippi, has seven single daughters. He will need all of the good Scotch traits he has been credited with if he takes his family to Washington with him.

The Kansas judge who naturalized a Chinaman must have overlooked the act of 1882, which prohibits their naturalization, by either Federal or State courts. Attorney General Olney is investigating the case.

Boston burglars leave their calling cards at houses they visit in connection with their business, according to a news item, but we presume that they neglect giving their address and "at home" days for fear of being intruded upon by unwelcome callers.

About the worst case of "counting chickens before they are hatched" on record is that of Col. Bill Brown of New York, who was defeated from Congress at the late special election. He was so certain of being elected that he rented a house in Washington and moved a part of his personal belongings before election. Mr. Quigg—that's the successful man's name—ought at least to take the house off Col. Bill's hands.

Dun's review of the year shows up the South in a favorable light. The Northeast and the Northwest suffered the most, even more than the mining States, and the South the least. There are twelve Southern States whose failures for the entire year numbered altogether only 1592, or less than twelve per cent. of the total for the whole country. The amounts involved were even lighter comparatively, aggregating five per cent. of the total for the country.

What our public schools lack most, maintains the Chicago Journal, is a course of instruction in the economic laws underlying both National and private business. If our voters had all had even an elementary knowledge of the principles on which our currency and methods of taxation rest, the present suffering and the last year's $1,000,000,000 shrinkage of values might have been averted. It would be a sensible and patriotic measure to lop off about a half dozen of the fancy frills and fad studies in the higher grades of the schools and substitute in their place the simple elementary principles of economics. It would mean the business success of many of the students in after life who now meet failure.

The Village Press.

The village press of Western New York is unexcelled for number, ability and usefulness to the locality, by the village press of any other portion of the world. Indeed the existence, vigor and prosperity of that press, in face of the circulation of the dailies of the cities, which reach every part of the state on the day of their issue and a few hours after leaving the press, attest the vitality of the village press. A village that has not a well conducted weekly journal to set forth its interests and advantages, and is not well supported by its local constituency, would, by the world outside and around, be considered of no consequence. Villagers owe it a first duty to themselves to liberally patronize and sustain their local press.—Rockwell Union and Advertiser.

WISPS FROM WELLSVILLE.

(Crowded out last week.)

As there has been no special letter from our town in your columns in some time, perhaps it may interest your readers to know how Wellsville stands the earthquakes that have come so suddenly upon us in the last few months. (Take notice that we don't say "bank failure" any where in this letter; they are words strictly forbidden inside the city limits.) Outside through the country, you may hear some "cuss words." Hall's port is especially profane, I hear. But she is not usually so—Oh, no. There is any amount of sympathy expressed, some one way and some the other. Some think it was too bad there wasn't more for the earthquake to swallow up, as each one of the three—cyclones, shall we say? Just as well, perhaps, as the other word is tabooed in this town—ought to have had a clean hundred thousand in this day and age of the world. Looking at it in one way I think I should have made sure of that amount myself, if I had made up my mind to do anything at all. Why not? For my part, I look upon these cyclones with considerable admiration, for I tell you it takes nerve to face a little pale mite of a woman in widow's weeds, very cheap ones too, with three little girls clinging to her skirts, when she asks you to give back that paltry five dollars, gathered from those handsome and artistic banks scattered about so lavishly, and when she tells you that tiny fingers of her dead babe dropped in one of those shining dollars, and with tears dropping up on her rusty black, begs you to give it back, I tell you it takes nerve to tell that poor little soul she must let the law take its course, and nerve is to be admired, isn't it? Then again when a "gude old mon" and wife have saved up a wee bit for 'baecy and tea and other necessary commodities, and wake up some morning to find the 'baecy out, the tea out, the flour out and everything else out, and they come to town and they find the cyclone just gone out, too—well, they wend their way home carrying nothing but the burden of years, it takes nerve to look those people in the face, I tell you.

Riley and Shirley drew a crowded house and the proceeds will be given to the poor. Some were rather disappointed in the gentlemen, but many went into raptures over them, and we are inclined to think them pretty fair. I suppose one has to be educated up to that sort of thing. The churches are still holding revival meetings, at least the Methodists are, and there is great interest manifested and if there is not great good done it will not be for the want of effort on the part of the pastors and members of the various churches. Wellsville is unusually fortunate in her pastors at this time; all are able, christian gentlemen. We saw one of the good D. D's. with a huge basket upon his arm, ring the door bell at the residence of a widow who with her hand alone furnished food and clothes for four children and herself, and we just said under our breath, God bless the D. D.

How the snow comes down! We warrant if you will drop into Wellsville to-morrow or next day and take a position on Main street and watch for a half hour the crowds of elegantly dressed people dashing by in their splendid turnout drawn by spans of blooded horses, you would say that cyclone business was a joke. In fact you would say there were forty banks in Wellsville full to repletion and money enough for forty more. Such is life.

Sneaks through the Boothbay (Me.) Register, of the beneficial results he has received from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are in need of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills. They will do good."
