

A MONSTER GATHERING

Trades' Union Demonstration in Hyde Park.

Tens of thousands of working people, and paupers in tatters, listen to a hundred speakers denounce the House of Lords—The speaking preceded by a great procession.

LONDON, March 19.—The trades unionists' demonstration in favor of the employers' liability bill and also against the house of lords, was in progress at the house of lords, was in progress at the house of lords, was in progress at the house of lords...

Thousands in Line. The main procession formed on the embankment. Thousands took their places in the line and thousands more marched beside the regular parade or walked in the rear.

Others May Flood Guilty. NEW YORK, March 18. Justice Sutherland, of Gravesend, convicted of oppression in complicity with the McKane matter, who disappeared last week, forfeiting his bail, is believed to be in Montreal.

Numerous Errors Corrected. WASHINGTON, March 19.—Assistant Secretary Hamlin, the official in charge of custom matters in the treasury department, and Commissioner Miller of the internal revenue bureau, have been devoting their entire time to a critical examination of the tariff bill as adopted by the democratic majority of the senate finance committee.

The Missing King Found. BRUSSELS, March 19.—King Leopold's remarkable disappearance from his country house in the province of Namur some ten days ago is still the subject of much comment and surmise.

No Change in McKane's Treatment. SING SING, N. Y., March 19.—Warden Kingston says that the papers served on McKane in the United States district court habeas corpus proceedings will not affect McKane's treatment in prison whatever. He will continue to work in the clothing department as though no papers had been served.

Pretty Girls Not Harred. NEW YORK, March 19.—The twenty pretty girls, the chorus in Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera, who came over on the ship which arrived yesterday, after being permitted to land. The girls' association claimed that the law was a violation of the law.

BRECKINRIDGE IS CONFIDENT

Expects to Win the Triumph of Promise Case and Be Re-Elected.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—While Col. Breckinridge has declined to be interviewed for publication, respecting the future course of his trial, the United Press can state authoritatively from sources which are thoroughly reliable, that the plans and views of the defendant have been practically determined upon as outlined below.

He is quite confident of re-election. He has about 65,000 voters in his district, of which he received about 20,000 the last election, a majority of some 6,000. His election three times has taken place during presidential years and twice in off-years.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA

Proof of the Complete Revival of the Entente.

Social-Democrats Possessed of Anti-Dynastic and anti-Monarchical Principles—Hypnotic Healers Sentenced—The Second Test of Tailor Dove's Bullet-Proof Cloth.

Berlin, March 19.—Count Schouvaloff celebrated the ratification of the reciprocal treaty with a dinner at the Russian embassy Saturday evening. The list of his guests proves that, as Chancellor von Caprivi said in the reichstag, "the ministers stood shoulder to shoulder behind him in the struggle against the agrarians."

A Social Democrat's "Audacity." While the closing debates on the treaty were comparatively tame, the grant for the monument to Emperor William I. was discussed with great bitterness by the deputies. The social democrats and radicals surpassed themselves.

Hypnotic Doctors Sentenced. A court trial which has excited much interest among medical men was concluded in Strassburg on Wednesday. The prisoner was a quack named Jost, better known as the Sleeper of Dorisheim.

Dove's Bullet-Proof Cloth. Tailor Dove of Mannheim recently induced several military experts to give his bullet proof cloth a new trial. The cloth stood the trial successfully and Dove has been engaged to exhibit it in London, Paris and Vienna.

The First Sun Portrait.

Over fifty years ago, early in 1840, a mysterious rite was performed upon the top of the University of the City of New York.

Over fifty years ago, early in 1840, a mysterious rite was performed upon the top of the University of the City of New York. For twenty full minutes a woman might have been seen sitting perfectly quiet under the bright rays of the sun in front of a small cigar box, hardly daring to breathe.

AN Ohio judge has just refused a divorce to a woman whose complaint against her husband was that he "obscured the morning fire, neglected building the morning fire, and did refuse, without love or just cause, to take her to the World's Fair."

FOURTEEN women known as the Poor Ladies of London have dedicated their lives to working among the poor of Blackheath. The population of this district amounts to over 70,000 and the Grey Ladies, so called from their habit they wear, visit the sick and try to educate the well. They are one day a week for rest, but with that exception devote themselves entirely to the people around them.

According to a recent issue of The London and China Telegraph, the cotton interest in Japan is going ahead in a most remarkable way. In 1888 the production of cotton yarns in Japan was less than 1,000,000 pounds weight. In 1892 it had risen to more than 64,000,000 pounds. This result is due, of course, to the cheapness of labor in Japan, which renders the cost of production much less than in India.

At a recent conference in Edinburgh, Miss Morley, of London, touched on the life and work of a woman. The number of women in business houses in London was estimated at 120,000, the hours being 15, 14, and 13 1/2 per day, 7 to 9 on Sunday, and only one Sunday off per month. The women suffered much from varicose veins, resulting from the constant standing, and were also largely subject to alcoholic poisoning.

AMONG the numerous talismans which the Shah of Persia carries with him on his travels is a circle of amber which fell from heaven in Mactan's time and renders the wearer invulnerable, a casket of gold which makes him invisible at will, and a star which is potent to make conspirators instantly confess their crimes. But that talisman of good health and morals, the bath tub, the Shah does not carry about. In place thereof he has vials of Araby odors with which he perfumes his royal carcass.

CHARLES W. SCUFFINS, of Breathsville, in western Maryland, was induced by a recruiting officer at Bonneville to enlist in the United States army. The new soldier reappeared two weeks later at Breathsville, and a despatch from Washington, whether he had gone after enlistment, asked for his arrest as a deserter. Three citizens arrested him and held him prisoner over night, when there came a second despatch from Washington to say that he was not a deserter. Scuffins then brought suit for damages against the chief of the post, and the court has just awarded him $850.

A GOVERNMENT publication pictures the Alaskan families of Eskimos, one civilized, the other uncivilized. The latter are clad in skins and have sultry, infectious faces, while the former appear in rather ill-fitting civilized garments and were evidently alive to the presence of the photographer. Perhaps the most striking contrast, however, lies in the eyes. Those of the civilized Eskimos are well opened, while those of the others are mere slits. Doubtless this difference tells the story of differing household conditions. The uncivilized Eskimo dwells in a dim, smoky hut; his civilized fellow has learned to live in the light.

The Atlantic coast below the mouth of Delaware Bay, and at least as far north as the Sea Islands that fringe the shore line of South Carolina and Georgia, has many shooting lodges and club houses belonging to wealthy gentlemen. The land in its usual pasture, save where it is suitable for cotton growing, fetches very low prices, and a great domain may be had at trifling outlay. The chief expense is for building and maintenance. It is said that Northern gentlemen have invested $1,000,000 in Currituck county, North Carolina, and there are many thousands of dollars in such investments from point northward to Cape Henlopen.

A LARGE pasture will be fenced in the reservation north of the Chesapeake River this summer by Frederick, an old Frenchman, who is known as the "Cattle King," for his skill in raising and caring for his herd. He secured permission from the Government to fence in the land and it has also offered him any assistance he may need in preparing the herd. This is the largest herd of buffalo in the world and the preservation and increase of the herd is the object.
