

The Dress of Jerusalem Jews.
The bulk of the Jews of Jerusalem come from Poland. They are of the same character as those who are now preparing to leave Russia, and they are far different in appearance and dress from their race in the United States. Their dress is prescribed by the church, and the boys and men wear long coat like gowns which reach without belts from the neck to the ankles, and fit the body like an old-fashioned dressing gown. They usually wear colored shirts with limp, turn over collars, and you see other gowns showing out under the outer one. Some of their coats are of the finest of ladies' cloth, and at the time of the feast of the Passover, which occurred during my stay in the holy city, I saw many in gowns of red and blue velvet.

Each of these men wore a cap consisting of a skull cap trimmed with a band of fur about two inches wide, and this fur was of such a nature that it stood out like porcupine quills, forming a sort of crown for the head. The cloth of the caps was in some cases velvet, and these men with their picturesque gowns and the striking faces shining out above them formed some of the most curious types of this curious city. These Polish Jews have broad foreheads, straight noses and full lips. Their eyebrows are well marked and they often meet together; their chins are narrow, and their complexion is of a rich olive color.

Many of them have blue eyes and their hair is white, red and sometimes brown and black. They let their hair grow long in front of the ears, and they do this in order that they may not break the Scriptural injunction stating, "Thou must not mar the corners of thy beard." I have seen boys with the rest of the head shaved and these two locks in front of their ears left, forming a very curious effect.

—Frank G. Carpenter in National Tribune.

A Much Needed Invention.
In machine shops it is a frequent occurrence that particles of metal penetrate in the skin and eyes. Messrs. Frister & Rosman have, according to Revue Industrielle, constructed a magnet for the special purpose of extracting such particles. It is horseshoe shaped, polished and nickel plated; the two branches are rounded off and end in a point only a few millimeters thick. Its attraction for iron extends for several millimeters.
