Death of Mrs. W. J. Deming.

Jennett, wife of W. J. Deming, died at her home in this village on Monday, March 9, 1896, of consumption. Her age was 47 years. She had been in poor health for some years, her last illness dating back about 10 months. For nearly three months past her condition has been critical the greater portion of the time.

Mrs. Deming's maiden name was Walker. She was born in this town and has lived here all her life. She married Mr. Deming 28 years ago. She leaves, besides her husband, one daughter, Miss Cora Deming, and her mother, Mrs. Catherine Walker.

Mrs. Deming, together with her husband, united with the M. E. church in Andover September 18, 1879. She has been a faithful Christian. Of a retiring disposition, she nevertheless had a deep and abiding Christian experience. The residence of the family being some distance from the village necessarily deprived her of church privileges except to a limited extent. About one year ago they took up their residence in the village, in their new home expecting to greatly enjoy the church privilege. But soon the troublesome cough, the precursor of the fatal disease that was to follow, made its appearance. The naturally delicate condition of her system could not long resist the invasion of the disease, and the longed for opportunity of enjoying the new home and church privileges remained unrealized. Mrs. Deming was a patient sufferer. Her faith was stayed on God, and Him did she trust till the end. Her friends mourn not as those having no hope, but live in anticipation of a reunion in the better land. All was done for her comfort during the long months of her illness that a loving and devoted husband, an affectionate daughter and kind neighbors and friends could do. She leaves many friends to mourn their loss, which they believe to be her gain. A deep and sincere sympathy is also expressed for the surviving members of the family.

The funeral services were held at the house this (Wednesday) afternoon.

Cornell Wins the Lathe.

TO THE NEWS: Hurrah for Cornell! She has won the valuable lathe offered as a prize by the Lodge & Davis Tool Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, to the most popular technical school in this country. As is already known, the prize was awarded on the basis of a contest in which all above a certain age were entitled to vote. Although Cornell was late in entering the contest, students, professors, alumni and friends went to work with zeal and determination, and the result of their efforts is hailed with joy. To all who have labored so faithfully, we desire to express, in behalf of the whole University, the highest appreciation and gratitude. Their interest and enthusiasm well show that the Cornell spirit is a living reality, that our alumni have by no means forgotten their Alma Mater, and that Cornell has many supporters outside of those who have been connected with the University. All honor and thanks to all.
Yours truly,
V. N. McCARN.

Citizens' Hose Company.

Last week's Cuba Post contained an interesting article concerning the above named organization, from which we make the following extracts:

"Since their visit and exhibition drill in Cuba, our citizens have become much interested in the Citizens' Hose Company of Andover, and the following few words regarding this organization will be read by Cubans with interest.

"The Citizens' Hose Company was organized in December, 1893, with twenty-five charter members. By this it will be seen, that though the Company has a record back of it, it is but little more than a two-year-old, and has its history yet to make. As far as it has gone, it has made no history that needs unmaking, and if it keeps on as it has begun, its pages may be proudly thrown open to the gaze of all. One of the fundamental principles of this organization is that no member shall be permitted by any act to bring disgrace upon the Company and retain his uniform. This rule is thoroughly understood by every member of the Company, and it is safe to say no member will ever lay aside his uniform, except in an honorable manner. A singular circumstance in connection with this Company is the fact that of its twenty odd members, almost every one is a business man.

"The Company has a neat, well furnished suite of rooms in the Andover State Bank building, rented for them by the citizens of the town. Here everything is in the best of order, showing that the boys appreciate what is done for them. There is one thing, by the way, that should be done, and that at once. We refer to the providing of a suitable building for the accommodation and preservation of fire apparatus. At present the hose, etc., has to be housed in a barn, which is far from being a desirable place in which to keep such things. In providing a suitable fire hall, the people of Andover would not only further recognize the efficiency of their company, but would provide safer and surer means for the extinguishing of fires."

Corporation Caucus.

The citizens' village caucus was held at Prest's opera house Monday evening, when the following ticket was nominated:

For President—John Prest.
For Trustees—E. J. Atwood, P. C. Lynch.

For Treasurer—J. M. Brundage.
For Collector—Clinton E. Hann.
No other ticket has been nominated, and the above-named gentlemen will doubtless be elected without opposition.

Country Roads Viewed from Buffalo.

Go into almost any small country village in this state and you can find stretches of earth road which are always hard and never have enough mud to interfere with traffic. They did not cost $7,000 a mile, nor $700 a mile.—Buffalo Express.

The Express man who wrote the above must have made his inspection of country roads from too great a distance to enable him to "size them up" correctly. The only piece of road we have knowledge of in this section which "never has enough mud to interfere with traffic" is between Alfred and Alfred Station, and that cost about $4,000 a mile.

Card of Thanks.

The undersigned wishes to acknowledge indebtedness to all his neighbors and friends who have rendered kindly services, spoken sympathetic words and presented tokens of affection during the illness, death and burial of his late wife. I wish my friends to consider this as expressive of appreciation which I cannot convey in adequate words.

Shoes.

Strange as it may appear, yet it is true: We have a gentlemen's Button, Lace or Congress Shoe at $1.50 that pleases every purchaser. Why pay high prices for shoes when you can buy at these prices?

It is not to be wondered at that Ayer's Pills are in such universal demand. For the cure of constipation, biliousness, or any other complaint, they are the best. They are sold by all druggists, and every one who has used them will testify to their efficacy.

W. C. T. U. Anniversary.

Last Thursday afternoon the Andover W. C. T. U. celebrated the fourteenth anniversary of the organization of the local union. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. E. S. Bradley, president of the organization. The following programme was presented:

Singing.
Devotional exercises, led by Mrs. H. M. Brown.
Singing.
Roll call.
History of the Andover W. C. T. U., Mrs. E. S. Bradley.
Reading list of temperance laws enacted, Mrs. W. B. Clark.
Reading—poem, Mrs. Clarissa Livermore.
Singing.
Reading—story, Mrs. G. B. Herrick.
Reading names of those who have died since the organization of the Union.
Reading letters from absent members.

Besides members of the Union there were present, many Andover women who had been invited as guests. Mrs. W. W. Crandall of Wellsville, a charter member of the Andover W. C. T. U. was also present.

The afternoon's exercises were heartily enjoyed by all present, especially the history of the Union from its organization, which had been prepared with much care by Mrs. Bradley, and the reading of letters from absent members.

After the literary exercises were completed a tempting lunch was served and some time was spent in social enjoyment.

That the Andover W. C. T. U. has accomplished much good during its fourteen years' existence, is a matter that admits of no argument. The knowledge of just where and in what degree its influence has been felt might be a cause of considerable surprise and gratification. We hope the organization may increase in membership and influence as each succeeding year rolls around.
