If gin-mills decorated their windows like other establishments with sam-ples of their finished work, how difthey would look from what they do now.

The late Sir Andrew Clark, the eminent English physician, said:
"Now let me say that I am speaking solemnly and carefully when I tel you that I am considerably within the mark in saying that within the rounds of my hospital wards today,

"I do not say that 70 in every 100 are drunkards. I do not know that one of them is, but they use alcohol. So soon as a man begins to take one drop then the desire begotten in him becomes a part of his nature, and that nature, formed by his acts, inflicts curses inexpressible when handed down to the generations that are to town to the generations that are to follow him as part an l parcel of their being. When I think of this, I am disposed to give up my profession, to give up everything, and to go forth upon a holy crusade to preach to all men, 'Beware of this enemy of the race.'"

Through the efforts of Miss Belle Kearney, Mrs. Erwin and others, the legislature of Mississipp adjourned to attend Miss Willard's meeting at the capital, and nearly a hundred white ribbons were given out.

Dr. Henry M. Field, while attend; ing the meetings of the National Editorial Association at St. Augustine Fig., at which there were present 356 editors, looked them over as they were seated at tables in the dining room, and he was struck by their ab stinence. He says: "Sitting near the entrance of the hall and thus seeing from end to end. I did not see a sing le man touch a glass of wine or mug of lager beer! I confess that I was surprised at what I could have hardly believed except for the testimony of my own sense, but which was most gratifying, not only for the editorial profession, but for the country which they represent."

The Catholic bishop of the diocese The Catholic bishop of the clocese of Mobile, on being welcomed by the faithful in that city, found the tables at the banquet fitted out with an abundant provision of wine and wine glasses right side up (which is upside down) and opening the window threw all the bottles of wine into the street, rewing to bis people that they must saying to his people that they must never have alcoholic liquors on the table where he was entertained. We wish that this method of procedure might become contagious among pre-lates both Catholic and Protestant.
