The only banner which has thus far been flung to the breeze in this town in this "campaign of education" is the American flag which floats over the Union School. "Old Glory" looks well there, too.

Allegheny county has a new paper. It is known as the Belmont Courier, and is edited by V. A. Willard. We have seen a copy, and like its neat appearance. Its advertising patronage shows up well for the first number.

According to a contemporary, every woman hates a newspaper reporter; he either mentioned a party she wanted kept out, or said that she had pink cheese cloth decorations instead of blue, in describing a party she wanted written up.—Exchange.

The Rushford Spectator says: "There is strong talk of prosecuting certain pathmasters if they do not have the loose stone removed from certain roads. It is a shame that the public are compelled to drive over these stones day after day, when ample provision is made by law to have them removed."

The 13th, at the morning and evening services, the histories of the churches will be given, and on the 15th the exercises will include music, recitations, histories of the early settlement of various portions of the town, addresses by A. Last Friday night a young man was discovered lying near the track, in the village of Wellsville, suffering greatly with a crushed arm. He had been drinking, and was unable to tell how the accident happened. He gave his name as Leonard Dixon, and was from East Randolph. His arm was amputated by Drs. Witter and Koyte, and at last accounts was doing well. He is about 25 years old, and is well known in this section, having worked about Andover, off and on, for two years, and is a good ball player. Eugene Clarke, of this town, is caring for him. His father conducts a grocery at East Randolph.

The fourth quarterly meeting will be held in the M. E. church next Sunday morning. Love-feast at 10 o'clock a. m., sharp, followed by reception of members and the Lord's Supper.

Two young ladies narrowly escaped a fearful accident at the Erie station at Belmont a few days ago. Miss Mary Hartigan and a friend had driven in from the country about three miles, the friend intending to take the train due at 9:30. They hitched the horse to a post near the platform and started to go into the waiting room. Just then a terrific explosion, caused by blasting rock in the river bed near by, frightened the horse, and with a plunge he dashed wildly across the platform the carriage crashing behind him. He ran a short distance down the track.

the carriage became entangled in some switch wire and the frightened animal broke away tearing across a neighboring cornfield until finally caught on the street. He was badly injured, and in such a state of uncontrollable fear it was some time before he could be guided. The carriage was badly demolished, one wheel being torn off and the dash board broken to pieces.
