Business Disaster.

The advertising man for N. Adam & Co. has omething of great im portance to say to every man living in the Eric County, Niagara County, Genesee County, Chautauqua County, Cattatau gus County and other more than fitty miles away And he has something of equal interest to say to the fathers and mothers of boys in this same trade district liere's the story in plant simple words:

TEN months ago Mr Henry Altman, the i -1 best known member of the famou clothing firm of Altman & Co., discouraged by the tapid decline of Seneca-street business: decided to open a new-store on Main Street and cater to a much higher class of trade than the historic Seneca-street house was able to attract. Accordingly, he secured the entire four-story building next to Glenny's a building 30 feet wide and 200 feet deep.-

fitted it up in splend'd shape, and made the first business bow to the public last May under the firm name of Henry Altman & Co. He started in with a $100,000 stock of high grade garments for men and boys. 17th. a splendid line of stylish hats, and a matchless array of Men's Furnishings. For a month everything looked auspicious and Mr. Altman's hosts of friends all declared the new project a "winner."

But fate was perverse and a whole brood of disasters lay in wait to wreck the new ciothing house. First of all a part of the Brown Building collapsed, and sensational rumors concerning the tall Main-street section of the structure frightened timid people away from that side of the street.

Then the Bank of Commerce suspended. Next all the am bitious projects for the rebuilding of the burned Academy of Music fell through. Then a restaurant gave up business A few weeks later and Flint & Kent (next door neighbors) decided to move up-town. And many other signs pointed to the decline of the down-town business center. All these were depressing.

Then the campaign began and rabid political orators or both parties cried "calamity" and shouted "ruin" unon even the level-headed began to wonder whether there wasi, i some ground for uneasiness. The outcome of all this agitation and turbulence was a money scare, an industrial depression, the closing of many factories, (2011) the curtailment of credits, a general lack of confidence, and a sort of precautionary economy everywhere which caused everybody to wear out their old clothes before buying new ones. No wonder business was bad.

But Mr. Altman's sanguine spirit and tera cious purpose rose superior to every advers condition, his perennial cheerininess became It lesson to others) in distress, as archycbability he woold um one es wenterprise asbing as still iden- 🕟 al way, got lihed in into deep water in its money matters, and a condition arose which made necessary for Henry Al man & Co to protect the banks that had furnished the Main-stree store with working deputal by giving the banks chattel mortgage's covering the entistock and fixtures. Banks take no charges. They are custo dians of trust funds and must, protect the depositors. So, whenever a loan becomes all hazardeus it becomes their unpleasant bu imperative duty to seize and sell the collateral. That's just what happened in this case Henry Altman & Co.'s prosessions were sold at auction to the highest bidder fer spot cash, and I. N. Adam & Co. were the highest bidders. They got the splend all stock for remarkably little money because they had the ready money Several clothiers present at the chat l mortgage sale stood ready and anxious to ecure these goods, and would gladly have aid many thousand dollars more for them if bey could have been bought on credit.

It took a whole week of the liveliest kind of ang to move to J. N. Adam & Co.'s own he great pies of Men's Overcrats and Garments of all kinds, Apr more Hats, and the 25
