We often hear a man say who is solicited to subscribe for our village) paper, that he "has more papers now, than he can find time to read." If i. were not that we have on our exchange, list above fifty newspapers, and are expected to read each one of them weekly, we would give some credence to such remarks as the above; but as it is, we know that the man's statement oversteps the border land of credibility. It is only an excuse t local paper. If a family can afford paper, aside from the local newspaper, . If both cannot be re- N.
