THE PROOF OF IT.

We demand, usually, things that the eye can see or the mind receive as orrobative evidence of statements that we question. There is abundant proof to satisfy any reasonable thinker that the needs of Andover are progressiveness and open-handed policy to secure for her the same benefits that have been secured for other villages. One cannot help but regret that, with all her natural and acquired advantages, she has made no more material advances in the last few years. No one cares to believe that Andover has reached its limit or that the real estate holder h property every day deteriorating in value. Yet the same is true. House 249,889 for wages, $55,897,529 for mis is best to do, and I know of no one who vacant, the owners looking for tenants; paying taxes, property running down (as all property does that remains idle), money to be expended in repairs its inhabitants or the conditions.

Let us look at it squarely. The spirit of fear in the expenditure of anextra amount of money has resulted in a short-sighted policy that has worked to the pulling down of her progress. Walk thru the streets: narrow sidewalks, some up, some down, some built one way, Squarely. some another, each one allowed to follow his own idea. Result: A general appearance of carelessness that makes the spirit of "I don't

But should we not care? What helps one helps all, and if we are working for the betterment of the conditious, and putting value upon our own We Should property, making it an investment that will pay, we do well. But to take value from our neighbor's property, we are doing an incalculable injury both to ourselves and the general is one of the good things you cern in WESTERN

And after all, in the spirit of fairness, let us be frank. Men can differ Of Different in opinions, and yet be friends. All will not see things in the same light. Yet we need not quarrel. The writer is sure each one means the best. But we can differ and yet be friends. Two lawyers, after an argument against each other, as they walk arm in arm down the streets, is the proof of this.

There never lived a nobler band of men and women than are in our borders. Fine, intelligent, wide-awake business men. True, their ideas may The ahead of some of the older men. But give them a chance. If you question it, stand in front of the train. That's the proof of it.

And as the preachers say, Lastly. Our village has started on its living policy. Don't let short-sightedness take money out of your pocket now. We need the school building. We need a manufacturing en terprise. We need a greater value on every inch of ground or you can't increase the value of village property but every farm adjoining or adjacent too will increase in like proportion. The writer believes it to be so, and the conditions in other places is the proof of it. A new day is dawning for Andover. Let your word and work be to advance your own interest, QUIEN SARE?
