SUMMER GRUMBLINGS.

Very few of us realize how near the summer is gone. The summer crank not been able to ask fifteen or more times an hour, " Is it hot enough for They are Al. you?" The extremely hot days have been few and far beforthcoming that the snakes were bezi should be crossed in the vicinity of ways With us. This year it has been the wet weather grumbler, tween. But hot or cold, wet or dry, the grumbler is always finding fault with everything—leaden skies, and the down pour of rains that have been the almost daily visitor. The ones who know say that if the rain department has wisely put its foot adoption of a route farther to the had not been as it has been grasshoppers would have destroyed everything. So the grumbler is grumbling at a blessing. Then again, when can the oldest inhabitant remember of so much beautiful freshness and the bright green color to the foliage and herbage in August as now. So the grumbling one fails to look at that.

Then this year there is the summer hotel grumbler. So many hotel keepers have been running empty houses, and spend their time grumbling at The Hotel the cold and wet, while thousands of babies in the larger towns and cities have praised their Maker with cooing cries because of the favorable conditions which kept the breath o life in many a weakened, struggling body. Better a few suffer than the many. Another grumbler that attracted the attention of the writer was a young creature that hides in the jungle and it appears likely that the entire route man who was being pursued by an heiress from Berlin.
