All that a general ad ever does is to "keep your name and business before the people." Now, isn't your name and business kept before people just the same or a little better when you advertise some special thing or things? It surely is, and, besides that you have the benefit of a direct demand for the thing advertised. That, is, of course, provided that the thing is a good thing, and at a low enough price to make it strongly desirable.

The way to stir up trade is to take some item that there is naturally a demand for and put a deep cut price on it. That will bring people to the store, and they'll buy other things—at least you won't lose anything, for many of them would not have
