Gas Heaters.

The most successful one is the one that wastes least fuel. Some throw hot air out the chimney some throw out unburned gas. The Classic Quadruple has two burners, burns with an absolutely blue flame, producing the most heat possible from gas burned. This stove has the best hot air circulation and twice as many square feet of radiating surface as any other on the market.

A thermometer placed in the stove pipe TO-day. showed very little heat going up the chimney. We can refer you to persons for whom these stoves are doing the work of a furnace with about half the gas.

We have half a dozen smaller heaters in closed and open front. The best to be had in low priced heaters.
