The Woman's Improvement league i the outgrowth of the Bay Ridge Reading club, which has met weekly on Thursday mornings for fifteen years, says the New York Tribune. Until last June the club had confined itself to lit. erary matters and occasional luncheons and lectures, but the unkempt cond. tion of certain neighboring streets led its members to consider means for bet tering conditions. The day the public i schools closed the society was officially organized, and the members left the first meeting in carriages for flying trips to the schools in order to get hearings with the children before they should be scattered for the summer. Eight awards were offered-first, sec . ment in the back yards and the same I for front yards to the middle-of the !. street; $3 for the best window box in a home where there was no ground to cultivate and $5 for the largest number of contributing members added to the club.
