"Easy Street"

You often hear of different people being on "easy street." Do you know how they got there? Simple enough—they commenced putting their spare coin in a bank, and by constantly adding to it, they are now comfortably situated on the street we are all striving to reach.

Of course you like it. It looks all right, it tastes all right, in fact the best butter experts of this country are unable to distinguish it by the taste, and the main objection is that we do not like to pay butter prices for a substitute whose cost of manufacture is less than one-half that of the real article.

Same Way With Paint.

Nearly every manufacturer's brand, contains from 15 to 30 per cent of materials that do not cost him over one cent per. pound; they are put in only to give bulk and weight, and add no value whatever to the product. When you buy a can of this paint you pay for full measure and not over three fourths of the contents are available.

Not So With Colonial Paint.

It is 100% pure Every grain of material in the can is paint and the analysis of from three to six states on every package.
