Friendship

What is friendship? Fellowship? all men in the town? A spirit of right living in your heart toward all? Have you a friend? How do you know that he is your friend? Are you a friend to any one? Can you measure your friendship toward your fellow man by the friendship of your fellow man toward you? In order to have a friend, to be worthy of a friend, you must be one yourself. Friends and foeman are distinguished not by title but by mind. Foe is friend and friend is foe as our actions make them so. Good men's friendship may be broken, yet abide they friend at heart. Evil hearts are earthen vessels, at a touch they break in J. That friend only is the true friend who is near when trouble comes. Words are wind: Deeds prove the promise. He who helps at need is friend. True friendship stayeth ever, through both loss and gain.

"It thirsts and burns for distinction; and, it possible, it will have it. Is it unreasonable, then, to expect that some men, possessed of the loftlest genius, coupled with ambition sufficient to push it to the utmost stretch, will at sometime spring up among us? And when such a one does, it will require the people to be united with each other, attached to the government and laws, and generally intelligent, to successibily trustrate his design. Distinction will be his paramount object, and although he would as willingly acquire it by doing good
