ted Chautauqua Lecturer ays it is no Use for Wome o Temperize With Move- ment for Votes for Women

Chautauqua, July 13.—"Men may ble as they like about being dy and anxious to grant the suf- ge as soon as enough women want said Mrs. Ida Husted Harper in concluding address of her series "Woman Suffrage," yesterday. "If one woman asked for it, they ld make haste to give it, be- e they are withholding it unjust- had have done so for more than a tury and a quarter. Not only they refuse this act of justice, but ignore the fact that all men of country combined who have de- ded and fought for the suffrage colonial days do not equal the ber of women who have worked it and petitioned for it within past 50 years. What men actual- mean is that when women come them in such an avalanche that can no longer resist, they will , and not before.

Very well; if men will have it so, e is no alternative for women but accept. Here is the situation which are compelled to face; a major- must demand the suffrage and must go directly into politics to in it. Women could vote for a time, and not be subjected to the idity which they must endure in to get the right to vote. All the es in history have been won by great leaders representing the es; in this one alone it is neces- for the majority of those who be benefited to fight their own . Do you know what this ? It means that thousands of en must leave their homes and into public life; that they must lise by election precincts, inter candidates, buttonhole voters, mass meetings, make speeches, money, circulate petitions, take t in parades, besiege legislatures, Congress. Is this the use the on wishes to make of women's ndid abilities? Do men ever con- r what a terrible waste it is, t a loss to the highest interests the community, to compel this t force for good to run in one row groove?

Over a Million.

It is said that in Great Britain a million women are working the franchise. Do our men wish see this number duplicated here? ir wish will be gratified, and what hods ultimately may be adopted one can foretell. Women will er abandon this effort for politi- rights, but will carry it on an- r half century if necessary. Let person and no party think to d the force of this great move- t by temporizing with it; no er on earth can stop it.

All we ask of men is to deal just- with women; to admit that the order of things has passed away; recognize the new womanhood and the hand of fellowship. If they be fair to women; if they will re- nish the authority which their fathers usurped and share equally women the citizens' rights, they find such friendship, co-operation comradeship as they never amed of. The home will experience new era of dignity and happiness, the State for the first time will r into the splendid regime of versal suffrage.

It is a long, long road from the dle of the last century, when wo- n in the eyes of the law were mere ttels—property—to the 12th year the new century when nearly a ion and a half may cast their bal. for the President of the nation fill any office in the gift of r respective States. SUP'T HOWLAND COMPLIMENTED

State Commissioner Inspects Andover Highways and Pronounces Them Very Satisfactory.

After making a through inspection of the highways in the town of Andover, Assistant Deputy Commissioner Fred Buck, sends the following complimentory letter to Town Superintendent of Highways, Rudolph Howland:

Dear Sir:—

"The inspection report of District Superintendent Chamberlain recently made for your town shows that the general conditions at the time of inspection was very satisfactory. I note with pleasure that he states that your primary work has been very well attended to and wish to add my word of commendation to that of his and also to impress upon you the fact that there is no one thing which you can do for which better results can be shown for the same amount of expenditure, than by this same close attention to the details of the primary work during the balance of the season."

Yours truly,
FRED BUCK,
Asst. Deputy Commissioner.

Not only must it be very gratifying to Superintendent Howland to receive such a compliment from the State Commissioner, but also he is the recipient of a kind word from every one who has to use the roads in this vicinity. Mr. Howland has seventy-five miles of roads under his care and there isn't a rod of it but what he has been over and put in A No. 1 condition this year.

Another gratifying thing to the tax payers of Andover, is the very economical way the road work is being handled. Only this week Mr. Howland is finishing a job on the P. Delany road which had been submitted for estimate for construction by contractors, and saved the town fifty to seventy-five dollars by doing the work with his own men, besides having the satisfaction of knowing that the work was done right.

GOOD NEWS FOR GALETON

A letter has been received by Boro Secretary M. J. Handwerk from the Highway Department, stating that copies of contract for constructing 6288 feet of good road in Galeton has been sent to the Potter County Commissioners for their signature, and as soon as same is signed by the commissioners and the Boro Council the road will be advertised and contract awarded.

This is indeed good news and paved streets for Galeton is now assured.

The paving will start at School Street and go west to the Boro line.

ANDOVER SILK MILL CLOSED FOR REPAIRS

Breakdown of Engine Causes a Week's Shut Down—Will Start Again Monday Morning.

Few people who are not employed by the Andover Silk Company Mills realize what that plant means to this community. Because they are just moving right along, without any fuss, attending strictly to the business of increasing production, adding every day or two more employes to the ever increasing pay roll, we think little about them. They have become a part of us, and their growth, while we all see it, attracts but little attention, because it is done without noise or bluster.

But when an accident occurs as did one the first of this week when their engine went to pieces with a crash and without warning, and the plant had to be temporarily closed down for a few days, Andover people began to realize what the silk industry means to this community. The payroll of the Andover Silk Company is the largest ever known in this community, we believe, amounting to $600.00 a week, with good prospects that it will soon be much greater. Most of this money goes directly into circulation for rent, groc[illegible] clothing and supplies soon after it is received by the operators.

This unfortunate breakdown not only will be felt by the trade people and the employees of the mill, but the owners will be the hardest hit of any of us, as it will mean the loss of hundreds of yards of produced goods which they are anxious to receive and which others are awaiting.

In this connection it may not be out of place to note the advancement in production gained since Superintendent J. H. Faisant took hold of the management of the plant. When he came to Andover, the average production per loom per day was around twelve yards of goods. To-day the average daily production per loom and the quality of goods made is as good or better than that of any mill in the United States, a showing any mill may be proud of.

The company who own the Andover Silk Company are very anxious to increase their plant here. They have the sale for the goods and capital sufficient to run a business ten times greater than the present fifty loom plant. It is therefore up to Andover people to assist them in every way possible in helping them secure operators, making our town a village that factory employees will like to live in and boosting for our silk mills every opportunity possible. Andover people are proud of the showing being made and are all true blue to the silk industry.

The breakdown early Sunday morning was one of those unfortunate affairs that come to all machinery occasionally, and to gas engines in particular. The engine, while it has done faithful service for the past seven years, and for a year or two has run twenty-four hours a day, and frequently seven days a week, was working nicely at 12 o'clock Saturday night, when inspected by the engineer Chas. Calhoun. But only a few minutes later a crash came, the bolt in the connecting rod gave way, on the inside of the engine, smashing the frame, the piston and the connecting rod.

Repairs were immediately ordered from the manufacturers of the engine and it is hoped that the shutdown will be only for a day or two at the longest.

Later. The silk mill will start up Monday morning.

SCHROEDER A GOOD WITNESS

Lackawanna Engineer Blames Company for Not Keeping Locomotives in Better Repair.

Corning, July 16.—The principal features brought out in this mornings' investigation of the Lackawanna accident were the facts that Schroeder had been reprimaned for not making better time btween Elmira and this city; that engine 1026 which he was driving was not in good condition, that the injectors were working badly and that freight engine No. 393 which was stalled was sent from the roundhouse in bad shape, thereby, so it is alleged, being the contributing cause to the disaster. The inquest was adjourned late this morning until next Tuesday.

Schroeder Testifies.

"While busy trying to remedy the working of the injectors of my engine, I passed the signal set at caution and while still working I passed the flagman sent to warn me of the close proximity of passenger train No. 9 standing on the track ahead."

This in brief was the explanation given at the coroner's inquest this morning by William Schroeder, engineer of the express train which ran into Lackawanna passenger train No. 9 near here on July 4th. The engineer said that it is now his best judgment that the accident happened in that way.

The water guage showed too much water, and the engineer reduced the injector opening. The water ran away rapidly, indicating that the water had been foaming. The injector was again opened, but did not work. The engineer attempted to apply the emergency injector, but the rod which operated it struck the cab as it was pulled forward and the injector did not work. Schroder went on the running board of the engine, and tried unsuccessfully to bend the rod.

He returned to the cab, tried the first injector and got it to work. Fireman Huntley came in and spoke about the water as he noted the trouble. Schroeder got off his seat to speak to the fireman and it was while talking thus for the fraction of a minute that he passed the point where the caution signal was set. The flagman stood about 2,000 feet away, with lighted fusee and flag, but Schroeder missed both. Schroeder had regained his seat and had been there 30 seconds when he saw the danger signal. He applied the emergency brakes and closed the throttle before the crash came, but had no time to reverse the engine.

Says He Ordered Repairs.

Schroeder testified that the reason he could not operate the emergency injector was because his engine cab was loose and swayed on its supports, bringing the cab into position where the injector rod struck it. He had reported the loose cab at the company's repair shops in Buffalo but the trouble had not been remedied.

Schroeder said that he had taken two drinks of gin on the night before the wreck as medicine. He had no other intoxicants. Saloonkeepers and bartenders called testified that Mr. Schroeder had taken only mineral water in their places that night.

Aside from the fact that Charles Klapproth, a close friend, testified last week that he saw Schroeder stagger in Elmira at 12:30 on the morning of July 4th, there has been no corroboration of the charge that Schroeder was intoxicated the night before the wreck. Henry Winkle and John Bater who were with Klapproth at the time, testified today that Schroeder was unknown to them and they did not see him at the time, being busy watching fireworks.

Schroeder made a good witness and for more than three hours underwent a rigid examination without allowing his story to be broken down at any point. He was contradicted by only two witnesses. Schroeder testified that he looked at his watch and that he was home at 12:10 a. m.

Charles Danaher, an employee of the Lackawanna, testified that Schroeder boarded a street car on which he was riding at 12:20 o'clock and got off later. Stephen Janskoski, a lunch-wagon clerk swore that Schroeder was in his place with a companion at 1 o'clock in the morning.

Schroeder told the representative of the interstate commerce commission that he thought that flagmen should be required to use torpedoes at all times in flagging trains and that a second man should ride with the engineers of passenger trains drawn by engines of the Mother Hubbard type.

—The News is in advance.

SUFFRAGE PLAY.

Given in Moving Picture Reels, Under Auspices of Lucy Stone Club, a Success.

The "Votes for Women," moving picture show was a decided success in itself, but the storm which accompanied it outside, kept many from attending.

Preceeding the two suffrage reels the committee of the Lucy Stone Club under whose auspices the entertainment was given, had arranged a fine musical program consisting of a piano duett by Mrs. F. I. Bettinger, and Miss Starr; a trombone solo by Leonard Ruscitti, accompanied at the piano by Miss Minnie Clair; a duet by Miss Margaret Auwerter and Howard Richardson; a solo by Miss Julia Raufenbarth; and a piano selection by Mrs. George Crandall.

The story of the play was read to the audience by Miss Grace Cheesman just before the lights were dimmed for the pictures.

The reels depicted conditions in the cities in the tenement districts, and large stores, which are allowed to exist under the present political conditions, and showed how they would be speedily remedied if women had a vote, as a protection for herself and her sex. Withall the two reels made an interesting story, and finished by giving a splendid reproduction of the mammoth Suffrage Parade held in new York recently.

The ladies of the Lucy Stone Club are to be congratulated upon being able to present this entertainment so full of trite suffrage propaganda.

GROUNDS FOR DAMAGES.

It is said that the Clark Bros. shops will be erected in Olean. It is also reported that the people of Belmont complied with every demand made upon them by Messers Clark Bros., and they of the county seat are sore. It is also alleged that the people of that village have a written agreement signed by Clark Bros. contracting to erect their shops in Belmont if certain conditions were complied with. The people of that town made good. Now it is said the Clark Bros. refuse to keep their part of the contract. Such being the case, there is little doubt but that the people of Belmont have good grounds for an action for damages and it is also said that such action will be pressed to the bitter end.—Wellsville Democrat.

—The people who buy advertised things—a growing company, you may be sure—will always hold the opinion that the merchant who has anything to sell that's worth advertising WILL ADVERTISE IT.

INSTANTLY KILLED BY LIGHTNING

J. J. Warfield Meets Death While Working on Potter Lease, 4 Miles Southeast of Andover, Wednesday.

While returning from an oil well upon which he had been working, Josiah J. Warfield was instantly killed by a bolt of lightning, Wednesday evening at about 5:30, on the Potter farm about four miles southeast of this village.

Wednesday Mr. Warfield and Fred Stebbins went to work on the Potter Lease, owned by the Empire Gas and Fuel Co. Having finished their work at about 5 oclock they started for home. After driving a few rods Mr. Warfield remembered that he had left some of his tools where he had been working, tied his horse to a fence and went back after them on foot. A heavy electric storm was threatening, so Mr. Stebbins drove to F. S. Potter's barn to wait until it has passed. Mr. Warfield got his tools, consisting of a pair [illegible] combination pipe tongs, two combination wrenches, a double bitted axe and some other small tools, and was on his way back, walking in an oil road through a piece of wood, when a bolt of lightning struck a large soft maple tree but a foot or two from him instantly killing him. The body was not much burned, indicating that death was caused more from the shock than from injuries received direct from the bolt, although a straw hat he was wearing was completely demolished.

F. S. Potter and man were drawing hay from a field the other side of Mr. Warfield to his barns. Hearing the terrible report from the lightning bolt, they started immediately for the barn, and had gone but a short distance when they found Mr. Warfield's body lying prostrate in the roadway. They rushed to his aid, but death had preceeded them. They immediately summoned help. Dr. W. H. Loughhead, of Andover, was called, and by the use of his automobile was at the side of the body in 30 minutes after receiving the message. Coroner Ayers was summoned from Alfred and came immediately.

Mr. Warfield was 54 years of age, and leaves besides his wife, a son Herbert Warfield and a daughter, Mrs. Clara Childs to mourn the loss of a loving father. He was a man beloved by all in this community. A member of the Andover Methodist Church, of Andover Odd Fellows and Rebeckah Lodges, Andover Grange, the Andover Maccabee Tent, and the Lucy Stone Club and was an active and faithful worker in them all. He will be greatly missed by every one.

Mr. Warfield has been employed in the Andover Oil and Gas field since its development, having worked some twenty years for the Empire Fuel and Gas Co., formerly the Mutual Gas Co.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Methodist Church.
