Come Along, Friend

HAMILTON B. WILLIAMS.

Toward the Stile that waits all at the marge of day.

We seem to be going the same Trail-way

What 's There — silence or song. , .

I think we'll fare better in company

Across the Fields toward the far Country.

Come along, Friend.

Come along, Friend.

Come along, Friend

Come along, Friend!

Come along, Friend.

Come along, Friend.

Look up! light of Skyland 's

Flaming on the highlands —

W cannot go astray:

They know the way.

I hear Love call

Come along, Friend

Come along, Friend.

Cóme along, Friend.

In every dawning's madrigal:

"Come along, Friend."

gram given below a Love Song by Waldesrauschen

Hope lights torches, Faith gives staff,

And Love brings wine of cheer to quaff.

Enough! fair wage for the pilgrimage.

First the slopes, then the peaks and vision-place.

Ho! the Task, my comrade. Ho! the Road. . .

Love 's the wizardry that makes lift out of a load.

Where folk who climb shall see - Life 's glory-face.

Comrade, let us make this dour land

By the three abiding things a flower-land.

My good fellow, how goes your work?

When my dream-houses fall, and blight

Comes ravaging out from the starless night,

When your hard times come and will not go;

When you woo a smile and receive a blow;

Life can't always be the drear December.

There's June with roses, lad, remember

It 's Living, you know, and we must not shirk.

We shall know before long

If we meet sorrow ---

Well, there 's Tomorrow.

There 's Life in it, laddie;

Let us go at it gladly.

I shall need a hand

You will need the cheer

So we'll halve all trouble.

And make joys double.

That I carry here.

To help me stand.
