REPUBLICAN PUBLICITY

Washington, D. C., March 20.—A new unofficial Republican organization, at the head of which is former Senator Bourne of Oregon, declares that it has organized itself for the purpose of taking the case of the Republican party before the country in the hope that it may convert voters to help it win the election in 1916. It is claimed that many rich Republicans are supporting the movement; and since the regularly organized committees are very much handicapped in their activities because they are compelled to make statements of their expenditures, it may follow that Brother Johnathan Bourne and his band of political pirates will in time overshadow the work of the accredited representatives of the G. O. P.

Fitzgerald's Sting

Representative Fitzgerald of New York, holds the important position of Chairman of the Appropriations Committee in the House of Representatives. Because he is a Tammanite things have been made uncomfortable for him in a number of instances. Fitzgerald, like a true and patriotic Irishman, has been inclined to fight back on occasions, but he saved his real wrath until the last day of the past session, when he prevented the appropriation from being made for the new Federal Trade Commission. The Board will get a few thousand dollars extra on the first of July, but it starts out on its work greatly hampered for want of funds. The Trade Commission is a favorite of the President, and Fitzgerald is "chuckling up his sleeve" because he has tied up this work for many months to come. The new Commission has organized, but it cannot engage in any extensive work.

All Doors Closed to the White House

President Wilson has practically become a hermit in these days, since he has denied himself to all visitors. For three weeks he will give his entire attention to a study of intricate problems connected with the European war. This is the first time in the memory of the oldest Washingtonian when the President has entirely excluded the public. Of course this is the first time there has been so big a war, and as the United States has been involved in so many ways, the President has determined that he will take personal charge of the situation.

Squelch of the Express Companies

Representatives of the American, Adams, Southern and Wells Fargo Express Companies have told the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington that the low rates of fare prescribed by the Commission have been "disastrous." The companies set out that in ten months under the new rates there has been a deficit of $2,760,804. It took Uncle Sam a long time to teach the plutocratic express companies their lesson—and perhaps the learning of it has been rather hard.

Death of Colonel Crook

A faithful old attache in the White House has died, and the President of the United States, who on account of important affairs has secluded himself from the public, found time to attend the funeral. Colonel William H. Crook served with Lincoln and all of the other Presidents down to the present day. He undoubtedly had a more intimate knowledge of the affairs of the Presidents and their families during the past fifty years than any other living American.

Public Lands Opened

During the first two and a half months of the present year 1,571,899 acres of public land have been restored to entry and 52,843 acres have been withdrawn. The withdrawals have been chiefly for the protection of water power sites.

The Spy Industry

Since the outbreak of the European war there has been no end of activities of spies of foreign powers in the United States, and as Washington is the headquarters of the nation, the principal attention of these foreign agents has been directed toward the seat of government. Washington has been described as the "clearing house of conspiracies of the world." The United States Government has ignored the spies, but has concerned itself regarding the safety of the representatives of foreign countries, since there has been a feeling that some covert act might be committed that would embarrass our position as the greatest neutral in the world.

Freedom of the Press

The editor of the New York Times protested to a special investigating committee of the Senate against many questions directed to him tending to show that his publication had taken a position favorable to the shipping trust, and in support of the lobby, and has attracted a great deal of attention. Editor Miller came to Washington with a clean conscience, and therefore he could afford to talk back to the Senators. Indications are that a lot of publications without as clean a defense are echoing the Miller statement in hopes that the investigation may not cover their own methods—since there is doubtless no end of pollution of news and editorial pages engineered from Washington.

Many Congressmen Remain

Although Congress adjourned March 4, there are still many representatives in Washington. It develops that most of them are from far away states, and are remaining here in the hopes that they may finish all of their business affairs with the Departments, as well as take care of applicants for positions. There are many hungry politicians still hanging on with grim hope and determination, and some have an idea that Father Democracy will be in better shape when he places their names on the payroll.

Bryan and His Critics

Just so long as Secretary Bryan continues to advocate temperance just that long will he continue to be a favorite mark for unfair criticism. Bryan's friends point out that he has spent more actual time in the State Department than any other secretary for many years, and they allege that he has actually been on the job in Washington nearly twice as much of the time as his immediate predecessor.

Doctor Cook and The Pole

One of the last matters brought before Congress revived the claims of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, and the Congressman debated pro and con as to whether Cook really discovered the pole, or was a mere fakir. The Doctor dropped into Washington, and there is evidence that he is still prosperous, since he is still able to put up at the best "tavern" in the Capital City. However the Doctor and his companions failed to secure any action from Congress.

The Rural Credits Body

The joint congressional commission to frame a rural credits bill, and report it to Congress at the opening of the next session, provided for in the agricultural appropriation law, has organized for the purpose of outlining a plan of operation.

The committee as made up so far consists of Senators Owen, Gore, Hoke, Smith and Hollis, and Representatives Glass, Virginia; Phelan, Massachusetts; Hayes, California; Lever, South Carolina; Morse, Indiana, and Holly, Oregon.

Total of 29,367 Bills Offered

The total number of bills introduced in the Senate and House during the three sessions of the Sixty-third Congress which recently ended, was 29,367. Of this huge number, comparatively few were enacted into law. In the Senate 7,751 bills were introduced, 573 resolutions and 244 joint resolutions. In the House the number of bills introduced was 21,616; Resolutions, 751; joint resolutions, 439, and concurrent resolutions, 60.

SUFFRAGE NOTES AND NEWS

One of the legal disadvantages of women in New York State was shown up in a skit at the Colonial Theatre in New York City, March 15. It was based on the law which permits a man to get himself appointed guardian of his children without telling his wife anything about it. The mother under similar circumstances is obliged to serve notice on the father.

Since the suffragists are called on to explain every flaw found in equal suffrage territory, they breathed a sigh of relief when they saw that the six states reported in the last Child Labor Bulletin as having no compulsory education as late as Jan. 1, 1915 were none of them states where women vote.

And the sigh of satisfaction deepened when they recalled that, according to the Russell Sage Foundation Report on Educational Suffrage Washington, with a woman at the head of the department, outranked all the rest.

Curiosity is the driving power of human progress. Without it man would still be primitive man. As long as the public weren't interested, had no curiosity about votes for women, the case was hopeless. Now success is imminent and this is the infallible sign.

You pick up the paper and see the heading "Woman Suffrage" and find yourself reading about the merits of "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Remedy." What the advertising man doesn't know about the public isn't worth knowing. When he puts "Woman Suffrage" as a heading to a patent medicine advertisement, it is because he knows that the public is more curious about woman suffrage than anything he can think of. This widespread curiosity, thus indicated, is what makes woman suffrage a perfectly safe bet—if not to-day, why then tomorrow.
