Curious Origin of the Custom of Raising the Hat.

We consider a lady a gentleman who takes off her hat to a lady. At least this is the opinion of the gentlemanly, polite, conservative of this country. In some other customs common among the most civilized peoples, goes back to primitive times.

When a person was made captive his conqueror stripped him of his weapons and clothing and left him without anything he could call his own. The captive was thus made a slave; his lack of clothing being evidence of his subjugation. We need only to look at the sculpture of the Assyrians to see the truth of this fact. And in Isaiah xx, 2-6 the Lord said, like as my servant Isaiah hath walked naked and bare-foot three years for a sign, so shall the king of Assyria lead away the Egyptians prisoners and the Ethiopians captives, young and old, naked and barefoot.

The first step then, in tracing the origin of taking off the hat, is the surrender of the clothing among primitive and ancient peoples as a mark of submission. The next step is the uncovering of the body as a degree of reverence. There are all kinds of uncovering, though often only the most valuable parts of the clothing are taken off in the presence of superiors.

Captain Cook tells us that during his stay in Tahiti two men came on board and, as a sign of respect, of the greater part of their clothing and put it on Cook and his friend. In Abyssinia Spencer as it was the custom for rulers to have their bodies down to the waist removed, so as to be before superiors. But the same custom was removed, so as to be before superiors. The baring of the shoulders, especially throughout the world, is a custom as common as taking off the hat with us. In Africa the men bare their shoulders and doff their caps to persons, thus joining two customs one. In times of chivalry men removed their hats to ladies to show reverence. But this was only superficial in meaning. A knight would lay down a poor peasant woman carrying a large burden and never think of taking off his hat to her.—Oland Plain Dealer.

XXIX. NO. 15.

Abraham Lincoln Assassinated

Account of the Horrible Years Ago Next Thursday

York Herald of that 15 years ago next Thursday, 15, 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was assassinated and the attempt was made upon the Secretary Seward.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

War Department, Washington, April 15—1:30 a. m. General Dix, New York: A meeting at about 9:30 p. m. at the Theatre, the President, who in his private box with Mrs. Mrs. Harris and Major Rath was shot by an assassin, who entered the box and approached the President. The assassin then leaped upon the President and made his escape in the rear of the theatre. A pistol ball entered the back of the President's head and penetrated through the head. The wound was fatal. The President has been insensible since it was inflicted, and is now in a critical condition. The nurse alarmed Mr. Frederick Seaman who was in an adjoining room and hastened to the door of his father's room, when he met the assassin who had upon him one or more dangerous weapons. The recovery of President is doubtful. It is not probable that the President will survive through the night. Mr. Grant and his wife were expected to be at the theatre this evening but he started to Burlington at 8 o'clock this evening. At a Cabinet meeting, at which General Grant was present, the subject of the state of the country and the prospect of a speedy peace was discussed.
