THE FORUM

BE STUDIOUS

By Rev. V. J. Eggleston

This is one of the times where it will be well to be cautious. This would seem very apropos advice for a professor to give to a body of students but I suspect you may think it a little out of place to a community made up of business men and clerks, typewriters, mechanics and farmers as well as professional men. I make the suggestion because I think it may be needed just here. It is to be expected that a body of students will be studious. That is their business. It is their sole occupation. They would be a lazy lot of triflers if they did not study. There are many people in Andover who feel that they have no call to be studious. They do not wish to be studious, or they do not know how to be studious. I am sure the more you know the better christians you will be. I do not mean what you guess at, but what you know: I have heard of young men who were very pious in the days of ignorance who lost all their religion when they became educated. If there are any such, I should have grave doubts about either the genuineness of their piety, or the thoroughness of their education. This idea that as soon as a man tries to know a little something, he must become a skeptic is about as silly and pernicious an idea as can lead captive a diminutive segment of a water-soaked brain. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed," says Paul to Timothy. I am profoundly grateful that there is a movement among many young people to study. Study the Word of God. Study history. Study every thing you can. Get a few facts and fix them. If a man finds a dollar and lays it aside, he has that dollar. It is not much, but it is a dollar.
If you learn that Maria Teresa engaged in war with Frederick the Great because he stole her province of Silesia, it is not much, but it is one fact around which you may at a later date, group other facts in history. If you only learn one principle in science, it is so much capital stock, and may some day yield you a rich profit on the investment. Study to learn it so that you need never go back to re-learn it. It is better to fix firmly one fact than to half know a dozen. Things you half know, you must continually look up to see if you are exactly right, consequently they are of no value whatever in an emergency. Know what you do know for a certainty. It is an old expression, "Beware of the man of one book." The man who can quote accurately a few things, can state with accuracy a few events, who knows a few principles, is really an educated man. So I say, learn something and learn it thoroughly. It is not yours until you have fixed it so that nothing can drive it out of your brain. Every person who can afford to own a book or take a newspaper, ought to be studious, and know a good deal more Dec. 31, 1915, than at the present writing. To every young man and woman wishing to start a library, I would suggest the following as a nucleus, viz: The Bible, Revised Edition Dictionary Encyclopedia General History Biography Natural Science Philosophy Theology Poetry and Standard Fiction Literature

NOTICE OF ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING

AMONG THE SUFFRAGISTS

"When Eve got the vote hell broke loose in the Garden of Eden," exclaimed Representative Rogers of Litchfield during the suffrage debate in the Connecticut Legislature.

Dear Mr. Rogers, "It was "indirect influence" that Eve used and that all the women in the world are using to this day. It is to substitute the open method of the ballot for this sinister, because dark corner, power that suffragists are asking the right to vote.

Mothers' Pension bills having passed the legislatures of Arizona, Kansas, Wyoming, and Montana, every equal suffrage state has this law on the statute book. Not half the states with manhood suffrage give this protection to helpless women and children.

"Why do you want to be a citizen?" was one of the questions asked when one alien recently presented themselves as candidates for naturalization in the city of Rochester, and one of them answered, "Why, because I want to have my rights to vote like other people."

Unconsciously he became spokesman for the fourteen Rochester women in black robes who had filed quietly in and sat in silent protest against a government which grants the ballot to foreign born men and refuses it to American women.

"Talk about politeness of men! There's nothing like it," wrote a Hornell woman to the Up-State Press Bureau and she added, "I was careful to explain to all the polling place officials that I was not a voter, but just a New York woman who had come out to see what was going on, but while it was a busy day, policemen, judges, watchers, and all had time and courtesy to spare, a sort of an overflow. And to think how afraid some people are that votes for women will spell the death of chivalry. Why we eastern women don't know what the real article is."

In New Hampshire during the debate on the municipal woman suffrage bill, Dr. Dillingham of Roxbury opposed the bill on the ground that women as a class deceived their husbands, neglected their children, wore indecent clothes, and were, in short, a menace to society.

In Terre Haute, Indiana, at about the same time Mrs. Stella Stimson was testifying at a government hearing about what she saw on election day. Among other illegalities she saw 400 colored men vote in a precinct where but eighteen lived.

Mrs. Stimson proved that men had failed to run a decent government. Dr. Dillingham proved that women weren't fit to try. If the almost unanimous testimony of the Congressmen from the equal suffrage states can be trusted, the solution lies in letting men and women together take hold of a job too great for either one alone.

COSTS OF MILK PRODUCTION

That at least one-eighth of the dairy herds in the state may return an annual net loss to their owners, is indicated in a bulletin just published by the Cornell University agricultural experiment station.

The study upon which the figures are based was carried on in Jefferson County in response to a general demand for information on the cost of producing milk.

Year-long records were obtained for 53 dairy herds in the county, which is considered to have more favorable conditions than the average of counties in which the dairy industry is important.

Facts were gathered about the quantity and value of milk and butter-fat produced, the costs of feed and equipment, the profit or losses, and various other items.

While 7 of the 53 herd were kept at an aggregate loss of more than $1300 or an average loss of $190 apiece, the average profit on all herds was 31 cents on the hundred pounds of milk; and the average net profit on each cow in a year was $20.39. These figures indicate that the farmer may make, under favorable conditions, a little less than two-thirds of a cent on a quart of milk.

Cows Above Average

The bulletin states, however, that most of the cows studied were above the average in production, which resulted in an economy of production; further that the food costs were not much more than half of what they would be in some less favored parts of the state, and that other costs were from twenty to forty per cent less than they might be elsewhere.

Some "Lady Boarders"

The principal cause of loss in dairying is the keeping of cows which do not pay for the food they eat; they have come to be known as "lady boarders" and serve their most profitable use according to the dairy experts, when converted into meat and hides.

"The one way to insure their elimination from the herd," the bulletin says, is to determine the yield of each cow by weight of milk, and by the use of the Babcock test for the butter-fat content. The formation of cow-testing association is urged upon dairy farmers, and details of their organization and purposes are given. It is announced that copies of this bulletin, number 357 in the Cornell experiment station series, entitled "The Cost of Milk Production," may be secured free on request by residents of New York.

Turkish Rhubarb

Possessing a savor all its own we come on scores of large cases full of big, irregular blocks of a bright yellow colored root. "Rhubarb," says our guide, indicating it. "Ah Then it comes from Turkey?" We cry joyfully, glad to display our learning for once, but our friend smiles contemptuously. "There is no such thing as Turkey rhubarb," he says, "and what is more, there never has been." All the rhubarb of commerce hails from China reaching us through Russia for the most part, but because in olden days it made its journey by way of Turkey it became known as Turkey rhubarb, and Turkey rhubarb it will remain.—London Telegraph.

Paper Money

Marco Polo (1254-1324) of Venice was the first person to announce to Europe the existence of paper money in China under the moguls. The fact has induced the belief that the moguls were the originators of it. But in the history of Ghengiz Khan and of the mogul dynasty in China published in the year 1728 the author speaks of the suppression of the paper money which was in use under the dynasty of the Sung, who reigned in China previous to the moguls, and he also mentions a new species of notes which were substituted for the old in 1264.

I OWE MY LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

They Did Me More Good Than All Other Treatments Combined

Mrs. H. S. WILLIAMS

PALMERSTON, ONT., June 20th, 1915.
"I really believe that I owe my life to 'Fruit-a-tives'. Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been told that people on the street often ask me if I thought I could get all without help. The same old 'stomach trouble and distressing headache' nearly drove me wild. Some time ago I got a box of 'Fruit-a-tives', a famous medicine made from fruit juice and they cured me. I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street noticed my improved appearance, asked me the reason. I replied, 'I'm taking Fruit-a-tives'. He said, 'Well, 'Fruit-a-tives' are making you well, go ahead and take them. You are doing more for you than I could do.'"
