Women and Children Ask For Peace

SUFFRAGIST LEADERS ATTEND HAGUE CONFERENCE.

CHILDREN'S PEACE PETITION

Monster Roll, Two Miles Long, Bears Names of 350,000 School Children.

Headed by Jane Addams, the roster of the leaders of the International Congress of Women held at the Hague April 28-30, in the interests of world peace, is made up almost wholly of the names of women of world wide reputation for their suffrage beliefs and activities. War in its Relation to Women, Women's Responsibility, Women's Sufferings in War, the Passing of a Woman Suffrage Resolution, and the Promotion of International Good Feeling are some of the aspects of the war question discussed. Women of all nations were included in the call—not to arms—to peace. English, French, German and Dutch were chosen as the official languages of the Congress of Women.

A petition for peace two miles long bearing the names of children from 44 out of the 48 states in this country was presented to Secretary Bryan not long ago, for transmission to the rulers of the warring nations, to whom it was directly addressed. This work for peace was done by suffragists, the names of the Executive Committee being Kate Devereux Blake, chairman, Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. Thomas W. Churchill, Mary Ware Dennett, Harvot Holt Day, Florence Gunnsay, and Mary Garrett Hay.

The first object of the committee in preparing the petition was to pledge for peace the children of today who will be the people of tomorrow. In signing they were asked to "make a silent pledge to themselves to work for schools instead of for battalions." It is hoped that there will be a bond of sympathy for the children of Europe and Asia in the knowledge that the children of America thought of them in their suffering and tried to help them. And there was, and is, the hope that when the petition reaches the rulers the voices of the children may touch their hearts and help bring about a cessation of hostilities.

Miss Blake told Mr. Bryan that the children had signed the petition enthusiastically and that it had been arranged for presentation by the children of the New York City public schools, elementary, vocational and high. Little Ruth Kehler, in handing one of the Rolls to Mr. Bryan, said: "Mr. Secretary, we, the children of the National Capital, present to you these petitions from the children of our United States in which we ask for peace in Europe and we pray with more energy to have war kept from this nation."

Mr. Bryan replied: "I am very glad to receive petitions for peace here from any one. However, I think that they can come from no better portion of the population than from the women and children."

"The women at home have to bear the majority of the burdens of war, and they should have something to say in the determination of those conditions which may or may not cause war. Next to the mothers come the children, who have a right to say whether war should or should not exist. The children and their mothers should have the privilege of reasoning whether there should be war, because they suffer the burdens."

"In such privileges I see the ultimate coming of peace, and not in the influence of petitions. No one knows how far your petition will go toward bringing about an end of the present strife. God does not compel us to look ahead, but he does enable us to decide questions as they arise, and it is for you women and children to decide whether the time has not come for the settlement of all international disputes by arbitration."

"A copy of the petition is to be sent to the diplomatic representatives in this city of the nations at war, and they are to be informed, and are, in turn expected to inform their governments, of the receipt of the petition and the fact that there is on file at the American State Department a petition two miles long bearing the names of 350,000 school children of the United States, begging on behalf of the helpless children of Europe and Asia, who are being deprived of their fathers and their education, and are being irreparably degraded by the hideous conditions created by the war, that the strife be ended."

Chances to buy so-called "second-hand" things, often good as new and only half as expensive, are continually appearing in the...

MOUNT VERNON, THE HOME OF WASHINGTON

By J. E. Jones

A pretty little story of visits to Mount Vernon on the Potomac—impressions and sentiments like yours and mine—explain the author to those who have seen our country's greatest shrine.

Bound in colonial blue and buff with hand illuminated cover design and George Washington's colonial ribbon book mark; profusely illustrated with handsome half-tones and pen drawings, it is a dainty and invaluable reminder that will instantly appeal to every person who has been to Mount Vernon, while to those who have not had that good fortune—this clever, happy story of our beloved George and Martha gives a clearer view and understanding of their colonial home, which is to-day the pride of Virginia and the Nation.

As a souvenir or gift book, for young or old, there is nothing to approach the elegance of this little volume, and it will make one feel more like a patriotic American to possess it.
