His Own Medicine.
A medical practitioner on board an ocean liner administered rather freely sea water among the patients who were ill. No matter what their ailments were, a dose of the briny fluid was quickly handed to them, and they were told to drink it up.
One morning the physician fell overboard, which caused quite a consternation among the passengers. The captain came on the scene and inquired the cause.
"Oh, it's nothing, sir," answered one of the sailors, "only the doctor has fallen into his own medicine chest."
