THE AUDITORIUM
SATURDAY EVENING

Maelyn Arbuckle, "The County Chairman," for many years conceded to be the greatest stage contribution to American humor. The film production, due to the limitations of the oral stage, permits of even a more vivid and more elaborate interpretation of the plot than was possible in the stage vision. The film version is presented with many members of the original cast, including the star and Willis P. Swanton in his inimitable characterization, Sassaparilla Livingston.
The play is a blending of quaint characterizations and wholesome romance. The story deals with a rural political campaign for the office of prosecuting attorney, with a tender love story running through the structural web. The central character is Jim Haekler. "The County Chairman," whose junior partner in law practice is Tillford Wheeler. All the action occurs in the fictitious town of Antioch, but the principles of the drama apply equally to New York and Chicago, for one touch of politics, like that of nature, makes the whole world kin.
