

OLD LIBERTY BELL OFF ON LONG TRIP

On the Long Journey to San Francisco and Return it Will be Guarded Carefully.

Philadelphia, July 4.—Resting on shock absorbers, with its everwidening crack placed so that the spectators may see it readily, the Liberty Bell will leave here tomorrow on its 10,000-mile trip to San Francisco and return.

The cost of this, the bell's eighth journey from Independence Hall, is borne by the Quaker City, and is estimated at $73,000. The escort will consist of twenty-six City Councilmen, who pay their own way, and the First Troop, Philadelphia Cavalry.

The bell will be mounted on a flat car at the rear of the train, and at every stop opportunity will be given to children and others to pass up movable platforms and view the long silent relic of American liberty. Illustrated booklets, cards and buttons will be distributed to the children along the route.

Four six-foot policemen will stand guard over the bell constantly. They are under instructions to keep sober, maintain good temper and answer all questions, no matter how foolish.

The bell will be lighted up at night. It will not be removed from the car at any time except when it reaches the Panama Exposition, where it will be on exhibition from July 17 until some time in November not yet fixed.

The Liberty Bell Special, which will speed at from eighteen to thirty-five miles an hour, will leave here at 3 p. m. tomorrow over the Pennsylvania Railroad, and go through Harrisburg and Pittsburgh to Chicago, where it is due at 5:40 p. m. Tuesday. Thence the journey will be by way of Des Moines, Ia.; Kansas City, Omaha, Neb.; Lincoln, Neb.; Denver, (July 10); Cheyenne, Wyo.; Salt Lake City, Boise, Idaho; Huntington, Ore.; Spokane, Wash. (July 13); Seattle, Wash.; Tacoma, Wash.; Portland, Ore.; and Red Bluff, Cal., arriving at San Francisco 9:30 p. m. July 15.

The bell will be removed from Independence Hall at sunrise tomorrow. Its first journey was to Allentown, Pa. in 1777, to escape the British. It was exhibited at the New Orleans Cotton Exposition in 1885, the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893, the Cotton States Exposition at Atlanta in 1895, the Charleston Exposition in 1902, the Bunker Hill Celebration, Boston, 1903, and the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, in 1904.

THE BOILED DINNER

How dear to my heart is the luscious boiled dinner, which fond recollection brings back now and then, that balm to the stomach, that forty-time oh, give me an old time boiled dinner again! So often I've sat at the restaurant table and down thru the menu I've hopefully looked for something to comfort my northeastern gable, for such a boiled dinner as grandmother cooked. The steaming boiled dinner, the noble boiled dinner, the grand old boiled dinner my grandmother cooked. I'm tired of the fodder you're constantly shovin', the things out of box and the things out of a gasoline oven, the chafing-dish horrors which frighten a man; your cooking school triumphs are wondrous and uncanny. That sort of refreshment too long I have brooked; I long for the skill of my dear sainted granny. I look for the dinner my grandmother cooked. The fragrant boiled dinner, the juicy-boiled dinner, the cultured dinner my grandmother cooked.—Ex.

Sign Boards on the Up-road

By Hamilton B. Williams

The Lord Christ stands on the highroad of the weighing place, weighing great and small, and his judgment (backed up by the experience of ages) is this: What profit if it cost the life? Life—that is the true wealth. To save it is worth any toil and sacrifice and loss.

But lay up, moreover, heavenly treasure, that is to say spiritual wealth. Nothing may get at that. God keeps it. Whatever earthly thing requires the slightest declension from par value of spiritual treasure, the slightest repudiation of high honor, the slightest treason to fine principle, the slightest ascent from eminence of nobility, the slightest hurt of another, will not cannot be profitable. It is not good to live in a haunted house. Unless one is able to walk at peace with his own soul, sit with his soul in the gray of the evening, speak with his soul as an intimate friend, he has missed the life-road. Self-respect is the ultimate good. Losing that one has lost everything. "What doeth it profit . . . ?" Hear the Christ speak.

WASHINGTONIANS PROTEST

Say Women Can Be Rallied on to U.S. Ballot Wisely.

All Washingtonians seem to have risen in wrath to repudiate Judge William H. Snell's charge, in a Massachusetts paper, that the women of Washington have not made a success as voters in his estimation.

Senator George U. Piper of Seattle, Wash., was both indignant and amused to find upon the occasion of a visit to New York that the record of the women of his state had been belittled by Judge Snell. "I could name not one but fifty instances to prove that the women can be rallied on to use the vote for the good of the state and humanity," he told a member of the Empire State campaign committee and began forthwith an enumeration that reflected his direct experience in the history of the politics of his state. "It was the women of Washington who were my reliance when I was trying to force the passage of the women's and minors' minimum wage law," he would say. "It's to the women one must look for help every time in trying to put through legislation of a social and humane nature."

Senator Piper declares that the best reasons for woman suffrage in Washington are the opponents of suffrage. He says every white slave in the state is against it; every exploiter of woman and child labor is against it; every enemy of a compulsory workmen's compensation law is against it; every liquor dealer, distiller, brewer, divekeeper and hanger-on is against it. He says it was the suffrage that opened the eyes of the supreme court and the legislature to what was due women. He says woman suffrage has brought power to the home and that 90 per cent of the men of Washington would as soon sacrifice their obligation to statehood today as to deny the suffrage to women.

The Women's Club of Tacoma likewise refutes Judge Snell's statements in a crisp presentation of facts. "Having had but two representatives, the women can hardly be held responsible for all the 'legislation,'" writes Martha B. Gaylor, the club's president, to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, "and in the face of such criticism as Judge Snell chooses to give us it is encouraging to know that we are responsible for strenuous and insistent work for prohibition, food sanitation, regulation of labor conditions for women and other constructive measures."

EARLY SUBMARINES.

Aristotle Says They Were Used During the Siege of Tyre.

Professor M. Z. Tourneur of Di-eppe, France, says that submarines have almost as hoary a past as aeroplanes, which, as is well known, involve ideas that are centuries old. The result of his researches has proved that submarines were built as early as the beginning of the seventeenth century. The origin of the invention is older still. Aristotle tells how Alexander the Great made use of submarines during the siege of Tyre more than 300 years before Christ.

A Dutchman named Cornelius van Drebbel astounded London in 1620 with a submarine that held twelve oarsmen and some passengers, among whom was King James I.

Previous to this, in 1534, a monk suggested the idea that a ship be constructed of metal so as to be water tight and able to resist the pressure of water. "If a sufficient weight be placed in such a ship so as to equal the volume of water displaced it could go on wheels at the bottom of the water or else sail beneath the surface by means of oars," he said. The necessary aeration, he suggested, could be established by means of water tight tubes, which could also serve as a means of communication with the outside.

He also suggested other means of constructing a submarine. It could have the shape of a large bell, with windows and a flat floor suitable for passengers. However, the form of a fish he recommended would be able to go backward or forward without turning. The propulsion could be by wheels or by ordinary oars. Leather machines for agitating and purifying the air would be necessary. Lighting would be obtained from phosphorescent bodies, and the direction learned by the aid of the compass.

Such a submarine was constructed and was shown to be practical to a certain degree. In 1537 a ship with twenty cannon, eighty sailors and many bags of money blew up and sank in the port of Dieppe. Three years later a Frenchman, Jean Barrie, called Pradine, built, according to the old monk's ideas, a submarine with which he promised to rescue the bags of gold and silver from the wreck and possibly some pieces of artillery.

The government guaranteed Pradine the privilege of working on the task for twelve years, authorized him to "collect and appropriate" the iron and other things that the lost ship contained and even protected him while working with an armed force. The great Pascal, then a little boy, was an eyewitness to these experiments of Pradine, which were carried on till 1650 with ultimate success.

THE BATTLE OF THE TIRE

It is interesting to watch the struggle now going on between the rubber and the iron tire. The struggle is the liveliest contest of the 20th century.

The struggle is a silent one, there are no war correspondents, no vivid descriptions of the fight but the results are reaching to present and generations than the war of 1861-65.

The rubber tire has been fighting for point of attack for years and has captured important positions in traffic, now pitched a decisive battle with its iron competitor by the "jitneys" at the street and the battle is raging to ocean. Upon the result struggle depends the future of rubber tire. If it is completely treated, its doom is sealed, but the battle it will revolutionize transportation methods of the street traffic in next struggle, the greatest battle between forces ever fought out on this earth is on, for iron disputed master in transportation is fortified behind billions and millions of men.

Stephenson applied the iron rail in 1814, but before the golden spike at Promontory Point, the country together with steel. It took the iron the years to creep from ocean to ocean, but the rubber tire while the creative mind of the genius sped across the coast an arrow shot from the bow. The roadbed was prepared and therein lies the rubber tire over that of government builds and means public highway.

But iron is a stubborn material; it has mastered every turn; it has fought battles of element and benefited and has never tasted the defeat, and when rubber full force against this the Mineral Kingdom, it may to the factory stunned beyond recovery.

The rubber tire first made appearance on the bicycle, but a frivolous servant and was for incompetency. It has been too much inclined to reveal to be taken seriously as a machine and its reputation is not inspire confidence in heavy performance.

But to those who care to dreamland, it is enchanting that there will be a marriage between a rubber and steel. The rubber tire will cities throughout the valley transportation at every why a city? It will travel in thence with a network of highways as beautiful as the road built by Napoleon. It will analyze the law making body nation for how could the iron run without the railroads on?

FEDERAL INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION

By Peter Radford

The recent investigation of the United States Commission of Industrial Relations brought to public attention an opportunity to representatives of distinct character, by side, and to study their parallel columns.

Capital and labor have been glaring at each other over many years and incidentally quiting the slings of war and quite gratifying to find that with, instead of each other's souls, it always the world better and far more factory to the farmer, who bears the burden of conflict, resolutions, speeches or containing charges and charges.

The love for justice and whole world kin. Understanding is far more powerful mandates of government, for no authority quite so commanding an honest conscience; there is a Supreme Court of Common sense no sheriff can keep the peace perfect as Understanding.

We suppose the time will come when capital and labor will be occasionally blinded by the flash of avarice or by the thunder peals of a fight. But Understanding is a peace that ever holds out a branch to men who want a man's income is always a thing for in it are the hope, and opportunity of himself, but there is nothing as heart quite so divine as Understanding is its hands.
