

New Fall Clothing

Usually about this time of year every man is debating with himself as to what he will wear during the coming Fall and Winter. In some cases the styles have changed quite a bit and a man must do some tall thinking to answer the question.

Possibly he may think that the new style does not look exactly right on him when he first puts it on. It may seem a little too snug or too loose. In a case of this kind a man really needs the suggestion and counsel of an experienced clothing man—one who has made a careful study of the business. We consider ourselves authority on this, competent to talk, and we feel absolutely sure of our ground. For that reason we ask you to place your confidence in us. Experience shows that you will not have any cause to regret. There's surely something to suit you in our new line of

GOVERNOR REGRETS HEALTH DEPT CUT

Favors Adequate Appropriations For Saving Lives.

WOULD KEEP SUPERVISORS.

Tells American Public Health Association That Work Under Biggs Has Been Divorced From Politics—Address of President Gedwick.

Rochester, Sept. 7.—Great regret that the legislature had failed to make adequate appropriations for the work of the state department of health was expressed by Governor Charles S. Whitman in an address here tonight before the American Public Health Association. Coupled with this expression of regret was a strong endorsement of the work of the department.

Governor Whitman said that, while the infant death rate for the state outside of New York city was 120 in 1913, it had been reduced to ninety-eight for the first seven months of this year, a reduction of twenty-two points. "This is a remarkable achievement in two years, and work which produces such results must not be interrupted," said the governor. "If this rate is maintained for the remainder of the year it will mean a saving of nearly 2,000 infant lives."

"Health Must Be Kept Out of Politics."

Continuing, Governor Whitman said: "The higher ethical standards and the broad humanitarianism which have developed among large masses of the people in these recent years imperatively demand that the health and social activities of the government shall be absolutely divorced from politics. Such has been the record, in my judgment, of the administration of the state department of health since its reorganization under the revised public health law, and such will be the future course of all such activities in the state government during the remainder of my administration as governor.

"I greatly regret that the legislature at its last session did not make appropriations adequate to fully maintain the work of certain divisions of the state department of health, and especially the division of sanitary supervisors, whose work has proved most important and beneficial to the local communities and by means of whom the knowledge and skill of the expert sanitarians of the department of health are placed at the disposal of the health officers of even the most remote rural districts.

Hopes to Continue Sanitary Supervisors.

"I sincerely hope that some means may be found by which the services of these physicians may be retained and feel confident that next year, when the members of the legislature are made fully acquainted with the facts as to the value of these services, funds will be provided for their continuance. I shall use my influence to attain this end. For, while rigid economy in the administration of the finances of the state is essential, savings in expenditures attained through decreased efficiency in health work are not only unwise, but resolve themselves in the end into irreparable waste of the most valuable resources of the commonwealth.

"To Save 25,000 Lives in Five Years."

"The promise of the commissioner of health made at the beginning of the year to save 25,000 lives in the state in five years seems almost certain of realization if the necessary support is accorded to the department in its work. We are confident this pledge will be more than redeemed. To the attainment of this splendid goal I pledge my cordial and hearty support so long as I am governor. I trust that New York may not only wage a successful war against preventable disease within her own borders, but that her example may be of some assistance to you who are fighting the same battles through the length and breadth of the North American continent.

Crowning Glory of Twentieth Century.

"The crowning glory of this twentieth century is to be found not in the great industrial progress and development, not in the marvelous scientific discoveries, not in the incredible expansion and efficiency of its military organization, but in the improvement in the social condition of the masses and in the higher standards of living rendered possible to a large extent because the losses from sickness and death have been so enormously reduced by the extraordinary developments in preventive medicine and sanitary science. To Pasteur and Lister and Koch and Hering and Eschich in Europe and to Reed, Flexner and Thomas Smith and General Gorgas, who is with us tonight, in this country, it is their and their associate workers in scientific medicine is the greater honor or due."

Dr. Sedgwick's Presidential Address.

The convention also listened to the presidential address of Dr. William T. Sedgwick of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who summarized the opportunities presented to public health workers.

"After the present bloody conflicts are over the races of mankind will turn as never before to the nobler pursuits of life, health and happiness," he said.

In reviewing what had lately been done toward the promotion of public health and also in looking to the future Dr. Sedgwick laid great stress on sanitation.

"Up to 1888," he said, "preventive medicine, chiefly in the form of vaccination, was the principal weapon for the promotion of public health, but at long step forward was taken when in that year, with a reorganization of the state board of health of Massachusetts, sanitary engineering became a recognized and indispensable branch of public health science.

Present Day Achievements.

"Bacteriological laboratories for the quick detection of dangerous infections have now been installed almost everywhere, at least in the more progressive American cities and towns. We have begun the medical and sanitary supervision of schools and school buildings. We have invented and put within the reach of all but the very poor the most complete, convenient and salubrious heating and ventilating appliances in the world for houses, theaters, halls, hotels and workshops. We have made ice, once a luxury for kings and emperors, a universal solace for all classes in hot weather. We have perfected and extended the preservation of foods by cold and by canning, so that seasonal scarcity is almost unknown. We have invented and cheapened rubber clothing and especially rubber overshoes as a defense against our almost tropical rains. We have applied machinery to the manufacture of abundant and better and cheaper shoes and clothing. We have shown by experiment with a national spitting nuisance the possibility of modifying insanitary habits by education and reasonable sanitary ordinances.

Some Failures.

"On the other hand, we have failed to achieve many much needed sanitary conditions. Our water supplies are to a great extent either in good condition or on the way to improvement, but our sewage disposal systems are still in many cases far from satisfactory. In this respect the parallel between the individual and the community is close, for while many intelligent persons attend carefully to the water they drink, most are negligent of the disposal of Wastes.

"Probably the most lamentable failure in American sanitation today is the almost universal lack of public conveniences or comfort stations in American cities and towns. Failure like this to provide proper public toilet facilities is to fail in one of the very elements of sound public health.

"We have failed to reduce as we should have done typhoid fever in America.

"We have failed to reduce as we should have done American infant mortality.

Salmon of Alaska.

"We can hardly imagine a weight of two and a half billion pounds, but that is the figure at which the bureau of fisheries places the salmon caught in Alaskan waters since the United States acquired the territory in 1867. The value of the catch was $171,847,000, or about two-thirds of the total value of all the Alaskan fisheries for that period.

HORSES KILLED, DRIVER ESCAPES

A team belonging to Charles Guilford of Friendship, was instantly killed Wednesday morning and the driver, E. T. Andrews had a very narrow escape. Mr. Andrews was drawing milk to the creamery in Friendship, which is near the Erie crossing, and from all indications failed to hear the whistle of the approaching train and drove onto the crossing, directly in front of the engine. The driver saw the train just in time to avoid being killed himself and jumped but the engine hit the horses square and ground one of them into bits, while the other lived a few seconds after the accident.

MOUNT VERNON, THE HOME OF WASHINGTON

By J. E. Jones

A pretty little story of visits to Mount Vernon on the Potomac—impressions and sentiments like yours and mine," explain the author to those who have seen our country's greatest shrine.

Bound in colonial blue and buff with hand illuminated cover design and George Washington's colonial ribbon book mark; profusely illustrated with handsome half-tones and pen drawings, it is a dainty and invaluable reminder that will instantly appeal to every person who has been to Mount Vernon, while to those who have not had that good fortune, this clever, happy story of our beloved George and Martha gives a clearer view and understanding of their colonial home, which is to-day the pride of Virginia and the Nation.

As a souvenir or gift book, for young or old, there is nothing to approach the elegance of this little volume, and it will make one feel more like a patriotic American to possess it.

Stomach Trouble and Rheumatism Relieved By "Fruit-a-tives"

MR. L. LABRIE

594 Champlain St., Montreal.

"I have been restored to health by taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. For ten years I was a miserable sufferer from Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble. I was very weak, had frequent dizzy spells and when I took food, felt weak and sleepy. I suffered from Rheumatism dreadfully, with pains in my hands and joints and my hands swollen.

A friend advised me to try 'Fruit-a-tives' and from the outset, they did good. After I had started the second box, I felt I was getting well and persevered in the treatment. I can truthfully say that 'Fruit-a-tives' is the only medicine that helped me.
