NOTHING NEW ABOUT SUFFRAGE

Few Countries Left on Civilized Globe Where Women Are Not at Least Partly Enfranchised.

Will New York Be First Eastern State to Grant Full Suffrage?

The reactionary who refers to woman suffrage as "an innovation" and shivers and shakes over the awful prospect of trying a political expedient so "new and unproved" might feel better about it if he would familiarize himself with certain salient facts in suffrage history.

Woman suffrage is not new. It has been proved. Country by country, year by year, either partial or full suffrage has been put into effect the world over until today there is hardly a country on the civilized globe that has not enfranchised its women to some extent. The only thing left undone is to complete the enfranchisement. Here in America the eleven states in which women have full suffrage, plus Illinois, in which they can vote for the president of the United States, by no means tell the nearly finished story of the enfranchisement of American women as a matter of fact, there are only fourteen states in the Union that do not already give women partial suffrage. In twenty-two states women have bond, school or taxation suffrage.

What is true of America is true of other lands. It began in 1838, when Kentucky granted school suffrage to widows with children of school age.

A banner year was 1869. That year England granted municipal suffrage to single women and widows. Victoria granted municipal suffrage to married and single women. Wyoming granted full suffrage, the first state to grant full suffrage to women.

From 1869 to 1881 school suffrage made great strides. Some of the states granting school suffrage were Michigan, Minnesota, Colorado, New Hampshire, Oregon, Massachusetts, New York, Vermont and New Zealand.

Western Australia and South Australia granted municipal suffrage, and Scotland granted municipal suffrage to single women and widows. In 1881 the Isle of Man granted parliamentary suffrage.

Another banner year was 1887, when Kansas, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Arizona and New Jersey granted women either school or municipal suffrage.

In 1888-9 England gave county suffrage. British Columbia municipal suffrage. Scotland county suffrage, the province of Quebec municipal suffrage to single women and widows.

From 1893 to 1898 only one year stands out in which women were not granted some kind of suffrage over a wide range of countries. In France women engaged in commerce were

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body, and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

Scott & Bowen, Bloomfield, N. J.

given the right to vote for judges of the tribunal court. Ireland gave women the right to vote for all officers except members of parliament. South Australia, Idaho and Utah gave women full suffrage. England gave parish and district suffrage to married and single women.

In 1900, 1901 and 1902 some notable victories were won. Western Australia gave women full suffrage. New South Wales full suffrage. Australia full suffrage. New York tax-paying suffrage and Norway municipal suffrage. In 1903 Tasmania gave full suffrage. In 1905 Queensland gave full suffrage. In 1906 Finland gave full suffrage. In 1908 Victoria gave full suffrage.

In 1911 California gave full suffrage, the biggest victory the women had won in the west. Honduras gave municipal suffrage in its capital city, Belize. Iceland gave parliamentary suffrage for women over twenty-five years of age. In 1912 suffrage was given new Oregon, Arizona and Kansas giving full suffrage. In 1913 Alaska and Norway gave full suffrage and Illinois gave limited suffrage. In 1914 Iceland, Montana and Nevada gave full suffrage.

In 1915 Denmark freed her women and the action of the female parliament was sustained by the king of Denmark's senate, thus completing the enfranchisement of Iceland's women. New York has already given women the school and tax-paying suffrage in villages. In November the state will have a chance to be first over the line in the east to enroll for full suffrage. That is why from the Hudson to the lakes you hear little else today but "Vote for the woman suffrage amendment, Nov. 2, 1915."

GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES.

Work of Uncle Sam's Board That Revises and Corrects Them.

An obscure but interesting government institution is the United States geographic board at Washington. Not many people know of its work, which consists in determining for the government departments the correct names that are used in postal guides, in official reports and on maps.

A great many things interfere with uniformity in geographical nomenclature. The postoffice department sometimes calls a postoffice by a name that does not correspond to the name of the town where that postoffice is.

Then there is the corruption of a name that comes with time. London's "Rotten Row," which was originally "Route du Roi," is perhaps as remarkable an example as can be found anywhere. Thus Coanjoek bay, in North Carolina, becomes by local usage Comjack; Minister, in Ohio, becomes Minister; and Holland, in Michigan, becomes Rowland. Sometimes these corruptions are so generally accepted that they take the place of the original. Thus Valken Eylandt (Falcon island), named by the Dutch in 1614, is corrupted into Falkner's island, then Falkner's island and finally Falkland's island. The accepted name at present is Falkner island, and this name has the sanction of the geographic board.

Where there has been an absolute change from one name to another the board consults local feeling, and if the verdict is nearly unanimous it follows local usage. Usually such changes are in the direction of greater refinement. Thus Hog island in Maine has become Appledore island, and Hog island in Long Island sound is now known as Center island. Sometimes the desire to change a name is inspired by other motives. The people of Virginia, wishing to honor the memory of the first state geologist, attempted to change the name of Elliott knob to Rogers knob. But, since the first name was well established the board gave it sanction, and Elliott Knob is now official.

In some cases confusion arises because explorers have "discovered" the same spot and given it different names. Cape Disappointment, on the coast of Washington, got its name from Meares in 1788. Four years later Gray named it Cape Hancock, and for some time it was known indifferently as Cape Hancock or Cape Disappointment. The original name has now been restored.

The board exists only by virtue of executive order and has never been recognized by congress. Its members are officials from a few of the departments and bureaus at Washington, who serve without compensation.—Youth's Companion.

GETTING AHEAD OF MEASLES

PUBLIC HEALTH HINTS Prepared Each Week For the Readers of This Newspaper by the New York State Department of Health.

It is a curious thing that, while public health officials are gaining ground rapidly against much dreaded diseases like typhoid fever and scarlet fever, they are not making much headway in controlling measles. Today measles KILLS MORE PEOPLE than either of these other diseases. This is partly because people often do not take measles seriously and partly because measles requires somewhat special precautions.

It used to be thought that measles was a light disease, that every one had to have it and that the sooner it was over with the better. Yet over a thousand children died of measles in New York state in 1913, and the worst of the "sooner the better" theory is that THE YOUNGER A CHILD, THE MORE LIKELY IS A FATAL RESULT. Every year for which an attack can be postponed is so much gained.

The reason why it is so hard to check the spread of measles is that it is particularly catching in the very EARLY STAGES, when the child is not very sick, but is going out to school and to play. The first symptom is a running nose like an ordinary COLD IN THE HEAD. Too often by the time the physician diagnoses a case as measles and sends the child HOME to be isolated other children have already caught it and THE HARM HAS BEEN DONE.

If measles is about, any cold in the head should be considered SUSPICIOUS, and at all times children who seem to have colds in the head even a cold itself is most likely to be serious.

It takes usually from ten days to two weeks for measles to develop in a child who has been exposed to a case of the disease. Any child who has been in a room or at play with a child coming down with measles should be kept out of school and entirely away from young children FROM THE EIGHTH TO THE FIFTEENTH DAY after exposure. During this time he should be carefully watched for feverishness, running nose, inflamed and watery eyes and sneezing, which are usually noticed for three or four days before the rash appears. If any of these signs appear it is wise to call a physician.

Other children in the family of the patient are more likely to take measles than those exposed for short periods at school, and they should be kept out of school and carefully watched for FIFTEEN days from the time they last saw the patient.

All this, of course, applies only to exposed children who have not previously had the disease. Measles is rarely taken more than once, and ger of another.

The important points to remember, if measles is to be controlled, are: That measles is a SERIOUS DISEASE, particularly among YOUNG CHILDREN.

That the disease is spread by the DISCHARGES FROM THE NOSE AND THROAT, not by the scales from the skin.

That the most dangerous time is at the beginning, for three or four days BEFORE THE RASH APPEARS.
