By comparison. The low-priced suit you buy and never wear is by far more expensive than the high-priced suit that gives good service. Low-priced clothing is false economy. There is genuine economy in every suit of Stein-Bloch Smart and Clothcraft Guaranteed Clothes because they are unequalled for the service they render, and at the same time enjoy an acknowledged leadership in style, workmanship and tailoring.

Three officials of the paper box factory company have been arrested on account of the death by fire of 13 girls, who were burned fatally when the factory burned.

A gigantic plot of German military men to sink shipping in this country to the effect was unearthed by government detectives. A large quantity of high power explosives were found in their possession and they were experimenting with bombs when arrested. They have been sentenced to $25,000.00 bail. The German belligerents are continuing straining the peaceful relations between their government and the United States by their unbecoming acts.

Munition factories are being rigidly blown up or burned, ships sunk, strikes fomented in which our citizens are killed, all showing an utter disregard of the lives and property of our people.

The suffragettes are planning on a big parade of their forces in Hornell on Monday evening before election. We wish the demonstration a successful one.

One of the most important questions to be submitted to the electors of the state next month is that of woman suffrage. The objections to the measure show that there are no substantial reasons for denying to women a right, to which they are morally as much entitled as men are. When did man obtain the right, other than by self assertion? Would that fact make his rights morally any stronger than for woman to assert the same for herself?

The stereotype objections raised by her opponents are. She is not mentally qualified, but all must admit that she can bring up her son to the voting age, and instruct him in weighing right against wrong, upon which intelligent voting is based, and if she is a teacher, she is deemed capable of leading him through the different grades of study including political history, political economy and to qualify him to wield the ballot to safeguard his interests and liberties, still some claim she is mentally incompetent to do what she has taught others to do.

It is also contended that she is physically unqualified to perform the duties that necessarily follow the exercise of the right of suffrage, that is she cannot carry a gun in defence of the nation but that is no argument against her disfranchisement.

Quakers, the physically imperfect man, and many of the men in high station do not carry guns in battle and they are not disfranchised, but is not a woman who leaves her home and country to nurse the sick and wounded within the battle lines as many American women are doing to-day in Europe and doing so voluntarily, or the women who work in munition factories doing their share in the military service? It is insisted upon that woman's place is at home, if so should she not be allowed a few minutes at the polls to assist in the work of properly safeguarding the homes? Would this work unfit her for home duties? Would there be any more impropriety in her spending a few minutes in depositing her ballot along side of her husbands than in going to the same hall to a dance and remaining hours in frivolous amusements besides these stringent laws regarding the sanctity of polling places even prohibiting political discussion within the sacred precincts, surely it ought to be considered a fit place for woman to stand and not more unfit at least than on the other occasions mentioned.

As to her unfitness for holding office. She would not be compelled to any more than a man, and if a woman should be unqualified for office there would be no danger of her receiving nomination as each party naturally, in its efforts to win at the polls, nominates candidates against whom no question of unfitness can be raised if possible and there is no danger of a woman with young twins running for constable. The assertion that impartial suffrage is morally right is unanswerable. The slogan "no taxation without representation" is as applicable to our times as to the days of the revolution. Impartial suffrage would not be giving the lie to the Declaration of Independence, and it is properly contended that instead of the polls lowering women, that women would elevate the polls. Take the question of vice. What woman would vote to place temptation before her son? With the ballot she would wipe out evils that have been the subject of her prayers, while too many men have been temporizing with them.

FARM BUREAU WORK

Conducted by F. C. Smith
County Agent

ENTHUSIASTIC FARM BUREAU MEETING

An enthusiastic body of farmers met in the Town Hall at Belmont Monday afternoon and considered the agricultural problems of the County.

H. E. Babcock, Assistant State Director; F. S. Barlow, Manager of the Otsego County Farm Bureau; and Prof. Barron of Cornell were present to assist in this discussion.

Thirty-six men were present. They decided that a better and more thoroughly organized Farm Bureau was the largest problem. The next important problem was the lack of drainage and the acidity of the soil, low production and quality of hay; failure of colver; lack of records of milk production; inefficient Farm Organization; poor pastures; lack of adaptation and standardization of corn, oats and potatoes were the principle problems of the County.

The executive committee will decide the definite project for 1916 for solving these problems.

This is the first time in the history of Allegany County that a body of men have met to consider County Problems and a County Plan. Results must follow.

HOW TO GROW ALFALFA

Alfalfa will grow on almost any type of productive soil if it is well drained and if it is not acid. Lime must be applied to at least three-fourths of the cultivated soils of New York if alfalfa is to be grown successfully. Such are the statements made in a publication entitled "Alfalfa in New York," recently issued by the New York State College of Agriculture.

In many cases soil must be inoculated with nitrogen-gathering bacteria for alfalfa, and this may be done in either of two ways, according to the college. Soil may be procured from an alfalfa field or a sweet clover patch and applied at the rate of from 200 to 300 pounds an acre to the new field just before sowing. This soil should not be allowed to dry before it is applied. The other method of inoculation is by means of cultures, which may be obtained at cost either from the United States Department of Agriculture or from the State College of Agriculture at Cornell.

Alfalfa should be cut when the new growth from the base of the plant is from one to three inches high, regardless of whether the plant is in bloom or not, so the college authorities state. This new growth starts as the plants reach maturity.

Precautions Against Dodder

Care should be taken not to use alfalfa seed infested with dodder. Dodder seeds may be removed, it is stated, by screening the seed in small quantities through a 20x20 mesh sieve made of number 34 wire. Dodder-infested spots in an alfalfa field should be closely mowed, the stubble sprinkled with kerosene, then covered with dry hay, and burned.

Other cultural directions, together with lists of desirable varieties, and further information on alfalfa, are given in the publication. Any resident of New York State may obtain it by applying to the State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y.

WILL BE WORLD'S BIGGEST WARSHIP

Keel of Mighty California Laid at Navy Yard in New York

New York, Oct. 14.—In the presence of Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and a big crowd, the keel of the California, the largest and mightiest battleship in the world and the first one to be driven by electricity, was laid here to-day. Secretary Daniels and other Navy officials praised the American Navy engineers who have made the electrically driven battleship possible. This system has been equipped after a notable showing by the Koller Jupiter, the first large ship to be so equipped.

The California will cost $15,000,000, more than any other battleship ever built anywhere, and will take three years to complete.
