The origin of the fire is unknown, but when discovered the building was a mass of flames.

The postoffice was located in the store and a considerable part of the postal supplies was burned. Mr. Murray saved part of the things in the front part of his dwelling, but the loss was quite heavy for all. The loss was partially colvered by insurance.

Death of an Estimable Lady

On Thursday morning of last week occurred the death of Mrs. Mary Youngs, wife of John S. Youngs, at the age of 73 years. Mrs. Youngs was one of Greenwood's most highly respected and esteemed citizens. She will be greatly missed in church and in the sick room, and in every good work in which she was engaged. She had been a sufferer for some time and was ready when the summons came. Mrs. Youngs left her surviving her husband and two sons, Frank D. of this place and William of Buffalo, and one daughter, Miss Ellen Youngs of this place, and many other relatives and friends.

Her funreal was held at the M. E. church of which she was a faithful member.

Among those from out of town attending the services were Randall Pease of Andover; Rev. Wm. Trowbridge and family of Hornell; Floyd and Flay Pease, Miss Emily Barney, of West Union; and Mrs. Frank Trays.

Our school faculty are attending the school convention in Rochester.

Austria disclaims liability for damage for causing the death of American citizens by the sinking of the Italian liner "Anconia" by a submarine.

It seems to be conclusively established by survivors that at the firing of a signal gun by the submarine, the Ancona was stopped, and that before neutral passengers could be placed in lifeboats that the vessel was sunk with many aboard, among them American citizens. This murderous act was in open disregard and defiance of the ultimatum of President Wilson to Germany over the sinking of the Lusitania, and Austria now for a defence for her murderous act, claims that inasmuch as the President's notice and ultimatum were not delivered specially to Austria that she has not been properly notified by the American position. Let us see: Germany and Austria are allies; in many actions under the same commanders both on land and sea; the Germans are the dominating power of the central allies, and dictate their plans. It is also alleged that the submarine that sunk the Anconia was formerly a German boat and transferred to Austria, presumably to evade responsibility on account of the President's ntoe to Germany, and should she now be allowed to escape the effects of her acts on the ground that she had not been personally notified of the American demands concerning the treatment of her citizens on the high seas?

If Austria knew of the American position on international law, would not that fact be notice enough?

Generally people are supposed to know the law and it would seem that special notice to one member of an alliance would be enough especially on a point of world-wide interest and discussion as were similar cases immediately preceding the sinking of the Anconia. The plea that Austria had not suffiecient notice of our determination to punish the killing of our citizens in that manner, as absurd and adds stupidity to her crime.

Does the apparent pro German sentiment among German American citizens express the real sentiment of our citizens of German birth, or is it only the manufactured sentiment of the paid militarists sent here for the purpose of aiding their cause by criminal practices here?

It would hardly seem probable that a German leaving the Fatherland to escape the tyranny of a military despot, would conspire against a free government and free people and against his own welfare by trying to establish the same tyranny here for it is possible that should Germany succeed in this war, that it would move for world dominion.

Emperor William apparently is as ambitious as was Caesar or Alexander whose ambition was to put the world under their feet. Should Germany win with a good margin Canadea would fall to her as conquered territory and could the United States hope to live peaceably beside her for upwards of one hundred years as under British dominion? With every Canadian transformed into a German subject and German soldiers what would be our safety against armed millions? Our nation would have to organize on the German plan with great and expensive armies and it seems strange with these results possible, that German-American citizens would do an act tending to make them probable. It is democracy on one side and tendency at least, to despotism on the other.

It looks as though German-Ameican citizens here would help the German people most by refusing unlawful aid to emperialism.

Greece is frying in her own grease. The Grecian people are strongly in favor of Servia and the entente allies and the Queen, who is a sister of Emperior William is for him but should the desire of one person, a foreigner at that, outweight the rights and interests of the whole people?

Mexicans cannot drop their border wartare all at once, but they are tapering off, quitting by degrees. Twenty-five crossed the border into Arizona yesterday and attacked a squad of six U. S. soldiers, who returned their fire. One American was wounded and one Mexican killed and one wounded.

Hans Schmidt, who killed Anna Amuller, cut up her body and threw the pieces into New York harbor, has got to suffer the penalty. The Court of Appeals has affirmed his conviction.

Hartleff York our former townsman, has struck it rich in Hornell by drilling a good producing gas well on the premises recently acquired by him. We congratulate him on his good fortune.

Catarrh Causes Cancer?

Few And yet folk have been unfortunate enough to see the why cancer rules life. Most everyone knows, though, that the grave is sweet to cancer victims. Catarrh is nothing in comparison—especially if it is only the cold in-the-head kind. Yet even that, according to Mrs. P. D. Rubin's doctor, may cause cancer as well as consumption.

Mrs. Rubin has reported as follows over her own signature:

"Everytim I used your people Catarrhal Jelly it cured me. It has great [illegible] and prevention. As much as I can say what I believe to be best for cold and catarrh, I have in [illegible] Jelly. I [illegible] suffered two-thirds of the year with a great deal of catarrhal trouble in a cold-head and sore throat. One phys[illegible] used to prescribe Hyomei and he said he saw a cancer as a result."

You can get (free) a book about this —and some Kondon Catarrhal Jelly, if you write immediately to Kondon Mfg. Co., Minneapolis. Or go to your own drug store here in town. They may have some free samples left. If not, get a 25c tube. This new paper guarantees that you will get your money's worth, or your money back. But best of all the genuine proved by 25 years' use—by millions of cases. Insist on

"The Bulletin" published by the State Department of Education, is giving some valuable Indian Lore. The following is from that publication:

THE CODE OF HANDSOME LAKE

Recently the State Museum issued a bulletin entitled "The Code of Handsome Lake, the Seneca Prophet" (Bulletin 163). Handsome Lake was the founder of the so-called "new religion" of the Six Nations, and his teachings were begun at the very opening of the last century. This is still the native religion of the aborigines, qualified in a measure, however, by their contact with Christianity, but it is a code of ethics that would make any man who followed it implicitly, a good man and any community that exemplified its precepts in harmony with the best conceptions of civic duty. The teachings of the prophet which have been transmitted from mouth to mouth by authorized "holders," are still the moral code of the pagan Indians on the reservations, of whom there is a large number.

It is probably true that the number of adherents of this native religion is waning as the tribes come into still closer contact with the teachings of Christianity, but it still has many devout adherents.

This code is known amongst the Iroquois as the Gai-wi-io, and it is proclaimed for the benefit of the people twice in the year: at the meeting of the Six Nations in September and at the mid-winter Thanksgiving. There are six preachers or "holders" who expound this teaching to the tribes, during the recital of which the preacher stands at the fireplace of the council house which serves as the altar, and his exposition of the code continues during three days. It is a time of "revival" among the so-called pagan Indians, and often brings the Iroquois from the Canadian reservations over to join in the general dissemination of the precepts of the prophet.

Handsome Lake was born in 1735 on the Genesee river, near the present town of Avon, Livingston County, and is buried on the Onondaga reservation where a monument stands to his memory. Though a sachem of the Seneca nation, his inspirations came to him only after he had wasted his prime of life. His teachings are somewhat interwoven with natural superstitions, and in this, too, his code is not unlike that of the other historic religions, but there is so much of excellence in his teachings that their vitality is still evinced by the earnose effort on the part of his followers to carry out his precepts. He made no defimte claim, he did not pose as infallible or even as truly virtuous; and Chief Complanter, now one of the expositors or "holders" of the code, says of him: "We do not worship him; we worship one great Creator; we honor and revere our prophet and leader; we revere the four mesengers who watch over us, but the Creator alone do we worship."

The Six Nations' ecutennial of the death of Handsome Lake took place on the Onondaga reservation during the first week of November, this year. Hundreds of visiting Indians and their white friends took part in the ceremonies of condolence.
