SUGAR REFINERS ARE ACTIVE

Washington, D. C., November 27.—Frank C. Lowrey of the Federal Sugar Refining Company of New York is out with an attack on the Democratic party because of the Administration's decision to keep the tariff on imported sugar. Lowrey was a familiar figure here in the exciting days when the Underwood tariff was in the making, and was recognized as the leader of the big seaboard refiners in their fight to have the tariff taken off foreign-grown sugar. In the investigation of tariff lobbying conducted by the Senate at that time, Lowrey testified that he had written a pamphlet on sugar, winding up with an appeal to vote for Wilson and Marshall, of which a million copies were distributed by the Wilson campaign committee, and that he had revised the chapter on sugar in the Democratic text book. After they had won out in the tariff fight nothing was heard from the refiners' camp until Secretary McAdoo's announcement recommending the repeal of the free sugar law. Since then the Lowrey forces have become very active again. Apparently they are playing for a big stake, for those conversant with the sugar trade say that free sugar would put millions of dollars a year into the refiners' pockets. They point out that during the last period of free and low duty sugar in the early nineties, the Sugar Trust increased its dividends to over 20 per cent, paid out $48,500,000 in dividends and accumulated a surplus of $50,000,000.

What's Bourne "Up To?"

The Republican Publicity Association is apparently a very prosperous institution. It occupies an expensive suite of offices and maintains a large staff of high-salaried employees. Former United States Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., is its president, and serves without pay. Senator Gallagher, of Wisconsin, and Martin B. Madden, of Chicago, are vice-president and treasurer, respectively. A number of other well known standpatters are on the executive committee. The object of this organization is to furnish Washington letters without charge to the newspapers. Senator Bourne explains that the work of the association is conducted through co-operation of two classes of people—men who contribute money to pay for the expense of the work here, and the editors who contribute space in their papers. The information added that the space contributed is no less important and even more valuable than a contribution of money.

Since there is officially maintained for the benefit of the Republican party two regularly organized national committees, headed by Charles D. Hills and Congressman Frank P. Woods, it is important to inquire: "What's Bourne up to?" It is certain that the regular party organizations did not ask him to "butt in," and that they have regarded his scheme as an intrusion upon their field of legitimate work. Large business interests that do not dare to openly "show their hands" are large contributors to the Bourne movement. The former reformer from Oregon let it be known at the outset that "the association will take no part in any campaign for the nomination or election of any individual to any office." However, the organization has attempted to put a dancer on the Hughes boom. Its opposition to Hughes' progressive tendencies has been very artfully concealed by waxing eloquent over the injustice of "ravishing the Supreme bench."

How Doth Caesar Feed?

Army and navy "society" is displeased because President Wilson is to marry into the "tradesman's class."

Secretary Daniels has taken a fall out of the Navy Court that acquitted Admiral Little of blame in connection with the inspection of the submarine K-2. The Secretary comments upon the attitude of the Admiral towards Lieutenant Moses whose warnings were ignored because of his inferior rank. The incident serves to illustrate the well known fact that there is more snobbishness among army and navy officials than with any other class. They are the aristocracy of the Cap-

A Volume of Good Cheer

Mr. W. C. Jenkins, the financial writer, has brought out a little volume that is a real classic. It is called "The Road to Recognition," and every man down in his luck, or suffering from the "grumps," ought to have a copy of it, since it is at once a tonic and a bracer. Many of the large corporations, who are familiar with Mr. Jenkins' writings, are presenting the book to their employees, because it proves a powerful stimulus for individual improvement. Mr. Jenkins makes one's work his happiness; and his guide-board illustration has "ambition" on the center post, while the cross-boards point to "loyalty," "enthusiasm and efficiency." The book is in pocket edition form, and is published by L. L. Poates of New York. It is a gem in literature, and in size it verifies the saying that "the best goods are put up in small packages."
