AVERAGE OF HUMAN LIFE.

In General It Remains the Same in Spite of All Conditions.

Neither hot nor cold climates have any effect on a person's age. In spite of the difference in race, in food, in habits of life, the savage in the south sea islands has almost exactly as long a life as the African pygmy or the giant Fuegians. What is more, in spite of all the skill and science of modern civilization the average duration of human life is not a whit longer in the United States than it is in a tropical jungle or a blizzard swept tundra.

The Eskimo lives largely on blubber, the Hindu eats sparingly of rice, the Andaman islander consumes raw fish, the modern epicure his "hot bird and cold bottle," yet each one of these changes that diverse diet into exactly the amount of fuel his body needs to keep it going the same average length of time. The occupations of men are as diverse as their food, yet in this also the average remains the same. The Norwegians are largely a race of sailors and fishermen, the Swiss but seldom behold the sea, yet as a nation the one is not more favored than the other with length of life.

What is perhaps still more curious is that races and nations afflicted with special diseases do not live less long in consequence. One of the worst scourges of mankind is prevalent in Spain, the hookworm has for long been a perpetual visitor to the American negro of the southern states, and oriental nations are afflicted with various skin troubles, which would in a short space of time weaken people of other racial stocks so that a large proportion would die. Yet even this fails to alter the general average. True it is that if people of another racial type visit these several countries they are likely to fall victims to the diseases of which their hosts are practically immune. But, taking the matter by and large, even this question of disease fails to mark a change.

The clock of human life is set at a very definite point, and the tables of mortality, which are made out for one nation or for one period of time, will serve almost universally well. There are certain variations, of course. The infant death rate is far higher in savage tribes than among civilized peoples, but more adults reach advanced years. More feeble children grow old enough to give birth to still feebler children in civilized than in savage communities, but the result naturally follows that the stock dies out. The rate at which the wheels go around matters a great deal for the individual case, but it makes practically no difference to the race as a whole.—Boston Globe.

Hard on the Eyesight.

Looking into the fire, particularly a coal fire, is very injurious to the eyes. The stimulus of fire and heat united soon destroys the eyes. Looking at molten iron will soon destroy the sight. Reading in the twilight is injurious to the eyes, as they are obliged to make great exertion. Reading or sewing with a side light injures the eyes, as both eyes should be exposed to an equal degree of light. The reason is the sympathy between the eyes is so great that if the pupil of one eye is dilated by being kept partially in the shade the eye that is exposed cannot contract itself sufficiently for protection and will ultimately be injured.

Hatmaking.

The history of hatmaking in the United States dates back to very early colonial days. In 1662 the assembly of Virginia enacted a law offering ten pounds of tobacco for every good wool or fur hat made in the colony. Delaware in 1753 offered a prize of 40 shillings for the neatest and best hat manufactured in the lower counties. Soon after the close of the Revolution the manufacture of hats had become of great importance in Pennsylvania, and from that time the industry has continued to flourish.

Not the Cesteikin.

A speaker apropos of wifely sympathy said at a dinner in New York: "How hard it is when the wife is unsympathetic! Poor Jones trudged home through zero weather one winter night and, blowing on his frozen hands, said solemnly:

"'Well, I've got the sack.'

"'Oh, you dear!' his wife cried. 'The sealskin or the other one?'

"'The other one,' said Jones, laughing bitterly."

Enterprising Youth.

Coming in on the train the other day was a little nervous mother and a flock of children. As the train neared Bos... the mother began to question if everything was all right. "Have you got all the umbrellas, John?" "I should say I had. I had four when I started, and now I've got six!"—Boston Transcript.

Misery in Back, Headache and Pain in Limbs.

Dear Mr. Editor—For more than a year I suffered with misery in the back, dull headache, pain in the limbs, was somewhat constipated and slept poorly at night until I was about ready to collapse. Seeing an account of the wonderful qualities of "Anurio" prepared by Doctor Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., I sent for a box, and before using the whole box I felt and still feel improved. My sleep is refreshing, misery reduced, and life is not the drag it was before. I most cheerfully recommend this remedy to sufferers from like ailments.

Yours truly, W. A. ROBERTS.

NOTE: The close connections which exists between the heart and the kidneys is well known nowadays. As soon as kidneys are diseased, arterial tension is increased and the heart functions are attacked. When the kidneys no longer pour forth waste, uremic poisoning occurs and the person dies, and the cause is often given as heart disease, or disease of brain or lungs.

It is a good insurance against such a risk to send 10 cents for a sample package of "Anurio"—the latest discovery of Dr. Pierce. Also send a sample of your water. This will be examined without charge by expert chemists at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. When you suffer from backache, frequent or scanty urine, rheumatic pains here or there, or that constant tired, worn-out feeling, it's time to write Dr. Pierce, describe your symptoms and get his medical opinion without charge—absolutely free. This "Anurio" of Dr. Pierce's is found to be 37 times more active than Lithia, for it dissolves uric acid in the system as hot water does sugar.

Simply ask for Dr. Pierce's Anurio Tablets. There can be no imitation.

A store is in constant "touch" with its patrons, and ought-to-be patrons, through its advertising. Store-friends are held and new ones enlisted, through the influence of the ads which, especially to those who are not intimately acquainted with the store stand for the store's policies and possibilities of service.
