CONCERNING SUFFRAGE

The women of South Africa were but recently given the municipal suffrage. According to "The Public" at the first election held in Maritzburg 70 per cent of the women voted and but 63 per cent of the men. Another blow at the old bogie that women do not want to vote.

Serious riots at Wilkesbarre, taking place in one of the oldest manhood suffrage states, are not being cited as proof that votes for men must be recorded as a failure. But when industrial warfare takes place in equal suffrage territory, then the scribes get busy and blame it all on voting women.

The Irvington Gazette has hit upon a scheme which tells in a nut shell just why it continues to print a column of suffrage news. It heads the column with the statement: 510,000 men in New York State voted for Suffrage in 1915. Nothing further need to be said to prove that it is an important public question.

But suffrage is not a natural right, argues the standpatter, so why do you demand it as a right?

Neither is walking on the sidewalk, answered an eminent suffrage advocate, but if women were forbidden to use the sidewalk and complained of the injustice, it would be no answer to tell them that it was not a natural right, but one given by society and which society might therefore control as it saw fit.

The Kansas Sabetha Star takes up the cudgel to defend the voting woman on the charge of deserting her baby. It declares that, as soon as the Kansas women got the vote the baby became the center of political interest, and that more has been done for the Kansas baby, in the three years in which its mother has voted, than in the fifty years before.

Billy Sunday says that he always thought it a queer law that would let a whiskey-soaked old ward heeler vote and keep a bright, snappy woman away from the polls.

Coal, Wood, Gas

These cuts show the latest styles in Combination Ranges. No reaching over the fire or stooping to do your baking, boiling or roasting. All on the same level. Can change from gas to coal or wood in three seconds. The meat and bake ovens are conveniently elevated, similar to a Cabinet Range, and are heated with gas only, the valve being located in front.

Arranged for Gas.

Arranged for Gas, Wood or Coal.

The front of the fire box is so ventilated that it will not warp. Thus positively eliminating any trouble from changing the burners, which formerly might have occurred.

The flue pipe on the back has insulated jacket so that the range can be placed close to the wall.

The price is $40.00.

Have You Seen a Gas Heater in which You can Burn Coal; not a Coal Heater in which You can Burn Gas?

We have them for sale. They are built on scientific principles, retaining in the room practically all the heat produced. They not only radiate heat direct from the sides, but have a drum or opening running from the bottom to the top up through the center. Cold air is taken from the floor, passed up through this opening, taking this inside heat and bringing it out at the top, circulating it through the room instead of allowing it to pass up the chimney. This produces an even temperature throughout the room and saves fully one-half your heating cost.

Price only $20.00.
