Lord Strathcona, who rose from the humble rank of a cooper for the Hudson Bay company to one of the strongest men in the British Empire, and the other day full of years and honor. He always insisted that his success in life was due to three things: INTEGRITY, THOROUGHNESS, DILIGENCE. It was this trinity of words in action that made him a good trapper, a successful officer of the company for which he worked, that built the great Canadian Pacific Railroad.

Lord Strathcona had great opportunities and he rose to them. His real capital was the three words that are the working capital that every young man may have without bond or interest. They will work for any man who will work with them. The certain reward is character and competency.

And this matter of competency, provision for age and dependents, is the severely practical issue of your life. It does not come to you in chunks, but in modest portion, and it is the care and safety of the weekly and monthly portions that

There must be something in a store that has real interest to you, or there can be nothing in a store's ads to appeal to you — of course. So that, by this rule, advertisers know "where to go."

Everybody is urged in attending the pictures at the Auditorium in time to see either the first or second performance from the beginning; that is, to see Reel No. 1 first. When one arrives so as to see the third or fourth reel first one does not get the "punch" of the play and keen interest is not awakened and the pictures are not so much enjoyed. It is like reading the last chapters of a book first, after which the first pages can have but little interest. To make it convenient for every one to see the program from the start, two exhibitions are given each Wednesday and Saturday evenings, beginning at 7:30 and about 9 o'clock. The early show makes it easy to take the children and get home early. The 9 o'clock show can be attended by those who have shopped and other affairs to see to and see the show afterwards. The band concerts too, which soon commence, end at 9 o'clock — just in time for the last performance. The Paramount Pictures now being shown are too good to see wrong end to. Be there at 7:30 or 9 hereafter and enjoy these beautiful pictures to their fullest.

I cannot sleep, the yoke I said. It seems I'm slitting in the head, when I put in to clear. No nods are batted 'neath my roof. I'm muchly wrooked from head to hoof. I'm giving bugs I fear. There is for me no sweet repose. No naps I cop; I cannot doze. I am a wretched guy. The Somnus kid has scampered hence and who can tell just when or whence. He'll put a nick in I. The poor unsteady boob was sad. I said to him, 'Wouldst thou be glad, an earful I will hand. He said if you will slip the guff I'll soak it up; no thought I'll muff. I've tried to stick, but fanned. Said I, 'tis well; just follow me and slumbers I will give to thee, but you must go it straight. Cut out the jitney torch and suds and blow your coin for steak and spuds and clean house in the pate. Then floor a job and hold 'er down. Toss up the nighthawk stunts in town. Hike early to the hay; thus from hang over jags you're freed. Three-cushion bracers you'll not need and sleep well, I Levin X. Gingles should say.
